poned upon her testimony. "Doctor, you haven't said anything about a split personality. Oh, I beg your pardon. I forgot you were not another alienist." Ironically began the prosecutor. He read rapidly a record of what he said. Miss Nathan's original statement to him that Loeb was "perfectly sane and rational," and "manly, a gentleman and all that she expected in an ideal," and with voice gradually rising over protests by Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, crescendoed a shouting demand of the court.

"Have we got to where the state's attorney is not permitted to show that a witness is a deliberate perjurer?"

Crowe Catches Tartar. In Arnold Maremont, University of Chicago law student, Mr. Crowe caught a Tartar and did not succeed in materially changing his testimony which had dealt chiefly with Leopold's philosophy of a superman and egotistic right to do "anything as long as it gave him pleasure."

John Abt, a young graduate of the University of Chicago, who knows both Loeb and Leopold, and Max Schrayner and Edwin Meiss, fraternity brothers of Loeb before he was graduated from the University of Michigan, were the other witnesses.

All three testified that they had observed childish tendencies in Loeb, the last two saying Loeb, although a senior, did not share all the privileges of a fourth year man at school, drank heavily, for which he was disciplined, and was regarded as argumentative and rather of a bore.

The defense said Thursday night it would continue with lay witnesses, young men and women of an age with Leopold and Loeb. In the list, said Mr. Darrow, were Miss Germaine K. Reinhardt, nicknamed "Patchie," who has visited Loeb frequently in jail, and Miss Rosalind Nathan, sister of Lorraine, although there was some doubt whether the latter would be called.

Said Loeb Was Cuckoo. It was Miss Rosalind who said Loeb was "plain cuckoo; plain cuckoo," testified Miss Lorraine Thursday, after he had stuck his thumb into all the chocolates on a plate passed to him at a dance at the Nathan home as he sought a soft centered candy.

physics or chemistry." Prof. Meibouzal appealed for fuller recognition of "purposeful striving," not only because without it, the problems of personal development, social life, and industrial organization, can never be given a distinct or adequate explanation.

"The life of man," the speaker said, "from birth to death is one long series of purposive strivings. Some times, as when he plans his career and sets out to build up a home and a family, his goal is remote and somewhat vague, defined in his mind in general terms only. Some times it is precisely and exactly defined, as when he goes to eat his favorite dinner at his favorite table in his club.

"Yet, this striving is always one aspect of his waking life. And even in his dreams, the striving goes on, bringing what strange and partial satisfactions it may to the buried thwarted and denied tendencies of his nature.

"It may be that eventually men of science will agree that there are in the universe two ultimately different kinds of process, the mechanistic and the purposive, the strictly determined and the creative, the physical and the mental."

"But," Professor Meibouzal concluded, "if I attempt to guess at the future development of science, I incline to follow the lead of the most powerful intellects of all ages and to predict that, if a resolution of the two types of process into one shall ever be achieved, the purposive type, which we regard as the expression of Mind, will be found to be more real than the other."

UMATILLA CROP LIGHT. PENDLETON, Ore.—The wheat yield in Umatilla county this year will not exceed 2,500,000 bushels, according to the estimate made by Henry W. Collins, buyer, miller and grower. He based his estimate on grain already sold, deliveries to warehouses, and a check of the different parts of the wheat belt. This is a reduction in former estimates some of which were that the county might produce 4,000,000 bushels this year. Harvest has been earlier this season than for years, and Saturday night of this week will see practically the entire crop in the sack. About the only exceptions will be on foothill land, but that acreage is not big. NEW TODAY. NOTICE.
