120 Enjoy Outing

Everyone had a very enjoyable time Thursday evening and Friday, when one hundred and twenty mothers and daughters of the L. D. J. church had an outing at the West ranch, formerly the N. K. West ranch, above Hilliard.

Friday morning the girls were divided into groups and under the supervision of the mothers cooked breakfast. From ten o'clock until noon the time was spent hiking, after which dinner was served and an hour of rest enjoyed.

A program had been planned for the evening but on account of it being cloudy and starting to rain it was rushed through more than had been expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nowland entertained at Main Jangle Thursday evening honoring their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Perotol, of Buffalo, New York.

Miss Loraine Pierce, daughter of governor and Mrs. Walter M. Pierce, of Salem, formerly of La Grande, expects to return to her home in Salem Sunday evening.

Fashion Notes

Paris.—Lingerie of white linen is again in favor. Indeed the smart French woman seldom favors lingerie of any sort.

London.—Some of the young and slender are appearing today in the pagoda hat. It is a logical result of the high crowns so popular nowadays and being made of inverted taffeta, ruffles—looks as much like a pagoda as necessary.

London.—With the filmy garden frock of brown and sand lace, a touch of orange is now expected. It is supplied in the brilliant handles of brown parasols and walking sticks.

New York.—It is not too late in the season for new ideas in bathing suits to crop up. For example even the snug little Jersey now has a little cascade plated taffeta ruffle down one side.

New York.—Venilian fuchsia, the gorgeous shade between crimson and corise, is effectively used at present in smart little hats of velvet. These hats are so splendid in coloring that they require very little ornamentation.

Oregon Journal Writer Praises Wallowa Lake

(Several weeks ago Ernest W. Peterson, automobile editor of the Oregon Journal, logged the highway from Portland to Wallowa Lake. The following interesting article appeared in the automobile section of the Journal.)

Truly there is no need for Oregonians to go outside of their state to enjoy a genuine vacation. The trouble with many of our residents who go elsewhere is that they are not acquainted with the beauty of their own commonwealth. We should be thankful that much of Oregon is as God made it centuries ago, and yet so near the main highways that we can enjoy it.

One of our beauty spots, still in its natural state, is Wallowa Lake, in the northeastern corner of the state. This beautiful body of water, and the scenic beauty which towers above it and surrounds it, have recently been christened "Wallowa Lake Wonderland," a name full of meaning and truth.

The writer was privileged recently to visit this marvelous country in a Hupmobile sedan furnished by the Manley Auto company of Portland, "Hup" distributors for Oregon.

Roads Are Good. Starting from the Journal building in Hupmobile was driven east over the Columbia river highway and the Old Oregon Trail to La Grande, 296.5 miles from here. The entire drive was made in high gear and with great ease, the car responding to the slightest touch upon either the wheel or the accelerator.

The road from Portland to La Grande needs no description. To The Dalles it is paved, and from there to La Grande the gravel road is in good to excellent condition, save for a few short miles of rough spots.

The La Grande Wallowa Lake highway has its terminals in the center of the city of La Grande and at the upper end of Wallowa Lake, a few miles from the point where Wallowa Falls comes tumbling over the side of the mountain.

Section Is Paved. From La Grande to Island City, 2.7 miles the highway is paved, and from there to the upper end of the lake it is gravelled and in excellent condition. This road is much better shaped than the Old Oregon Trail, which is considered an excellent highway.

North and east from La Grande the highway winds its way up and down through one of the most beautiful farming districts of the state, passing through Island City, Alsea, Imbler and Elgin. Eleven miles from Elgin the road forks, and takes the farm road to the north and a few minutes later upon a deep and beautiful canyon which it follows for many miles. This is the Minam river canyon and one of the most captivating sights in Oregon. The road has virtually been cut out of the side of the mountain. Above are high, wooded hills, and hundreds of feet below a bottom of which splashes the beautiful Minam river.

Road Follows Canyon. The road follows this canyon to its conflux with that of the Wallowa river, and then starts winding its way upward through Wallowa canyon. The highway follows the north bank of the canyon, the railroad the south bank, and Wallowa river takes the preferred position at the bottom.

Near Wallowa the canyon ends and the highway runs into a fertile farming country, exceptionally green, owing to the abundance of water for irrigation, which continues through Lostbie, Enterprise and Joseph. A short distance from Joseph the road suddenly comes upon Wallowa lake and follows the water for about six miles to the upper end.

Wallowa Lake Wonderland, comprising 200 acres, has a most beautiful setting. It lies in the quadrangle formed by the lake and three mountains. It is at the head of the Wallowa valley, the only valley in the United States for the possession of which our government was compelled to fight a war. The Nez Percé Indians valued it so highly because of its beauty, its game and its fish, that the great Chief Joseph chose rather to fight than to yield to demands made upon him by the pale faces.

Wallowa is an Indian name, meaning "beautiful water."

Many Other Lakes. But Wallowa lake is not the only point of interest in this region. There are 60 other lakes enclosed in the hills, which surround the larger lake, all of which abound with fish. Among them are the Ice Lake, Asteroid lake, Minam lake, Steamboat lake and Chimney lake. To the south stands the Eagle Cap, the second highest mountain in Oregon. To the east is Snake River canyon, the deepest canyon in the world, and 1500 feet deeper than the famous Colorado river canyon.

From the Wonderland grounds two trails lead off to the south, either of which will take you into the land of majestic peaks, clad with eternal snows, the melting of which feeds scores of lakes.

To the lover of nature a climb to any of the many peaks nearby would be a delightful trip, from which deer and wild elk are quite often seen.

Business men of La Grande, Enterprise and Joseph have developed the lake resort to a point where it is a most desirable place from an auto camp ground to hotel rooms, housekeeping cabins, sleeping cabins and tents. Saddle horses, pack horses and guides are kept on hand for those who desire their services. The resort is being efficiently managed by J. Ross Leslie.

The writer would suggest one improvement along this route for tourists, namely more signs in Enterprise and Joseph showing the route to the lake. Outside of these two cities the highway is well marked.

As branch roads open north from Enterprise into Lewiston, Idaho, and east into the Snake river region, this district will be accessible from a greater area. At present all travel must be drawn in from La Grande.

Being 370 miles from Portland, Wallowa Lake is a little too far for a pleasant week-end trip, but it is not too distant from Eastern Oregon points. This lake resort ought to be patronized liberally by persons living in the entire district from Walla Walla and Pendleton to Baker and Ontario. The possibilities of this resort are limited only to the amount of patronage it receives.

The Hupmobile makes the entire round trip from Portland to the lake without mishap, and would have made the entire journey in high gear, had the driver not continuously yielded to the temptation to stop along the highway to view the beautiful scene and take scores of pictures.

The car averaged 18 miles to the gallon on the trip, which included all the slow driving while sightseeing in the many cities en route. While traveling through the sagebrush district to Umatilla on days when sun did its best to beat all previous records, the engine ran perfectly and smoothly and did not over-heat. No carburetor adjustment was needed on the entire trip, the drive ranging from the low altitude of Portland to 4205 feet while crossing the Blue mountains.

WENATCHEE, Wash. — The first carload of 1924 Winter Banana apples was loaded at Rock Island and shipped. Other cars will follow, it is said.

The car was sent through G. M. H. Wagner & Sons, who have sent out the first car of bananas for 13 years or more. Last year the first car was shipped August 14. The apples are unusually well colored and appear to be properly matured.

In the last two days, 17 cars of pears, one of apples and three cars of peaches have gone out, bringing the season's shipment to 240 cars.

HUNT'S LETTER

papers that the better prices for farm products, now current, have already solved the farm crisis is being found erroneous.

Reports being gathered in interested political quarters are that present condition are but a pause; that they are perhaps causing the pain of the patient but are by no means putting him on his feet again.

In other words, the good prices received this year by farmers who made crops in which prices have advanced, will be used in paying off or reducing accumulated indebtedness or in making purchases of supplies and equipment they have been unable to buy for the past few years.

The result is that although agricultural indebtedness and need will be relieved, agricultural bank accounts will not be fattened. The farmer, even in the wheat and corn country, will still be well behind the game, in his average for the past three years.

In addition to these farmers, however, who are finding even this small measure of relief in improved prices, it is now emphasized that whole sections will be worse off this year than last, because of crop failures.

As a result it seems certain the great emphasis of the campaign is to be kept on things economic.

That is what the La Follette backers are hoping for. They expect to picture the whole national problem as an economic one, in which the big question is whether "prosperity" is to be measured in terms of the whole people or simply by the situation of the few.

Galileo's Pendulum Honors Claimed for German Inventor

WETZLAR, Germany. (AP) — Galileo is all wrong when it credits Galileo Galilei, with having invented the pendulum, according to Dr. Voltmann, keeper of the public archives of this city. In his opinion it was Jobst Bodeker of Warburg, Westphalia, who constructed the first centrifugal pendulum.

The instrument invented by Bodeker was made in 1578, while Galileo's pendulum is recorded as having been constructed in 1623. Bodeker's clock with pendulum was but short-lived, however. After being installed in the cathedral of Osnabruck it had to be nursed along from time to time by the inventor, and after his death it soon came to a full stop.

Dr. Voltmann bases his contention upon documents he has found in the archives under his care.

CHURCH NEWS

CHRISTIAN CHURCH — There is an Assembly, a time for the Assembly, and a place for the Assembly of those who could worship God. "Forasmuch as the assembling of yourselves together," as the admission of God's Word. The pastor will bring the message at the morning hour. Subject: "Continuing Steadfastly." The Bible School meets at 2:45. The past two Sundays have seen a larger attendance than the corresponding Sundays of a year ago. C. E. at 7 o'clock. The evening preaching service will be at the Lutheran church, Dr. Elmer Grant Keith preaching the sermon. — O. W. Jones, minister.

ZION ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH—M Ave., opposite high school. Rev. Wm. F. Holt, pastor. Sunday School and services as usual. Union services in the evening at this church. Dr. Elmer Grant Keith of the Methodist Episcopal church will preach. Someone said that the story of Jonah and the whale is a parable; but Jesus said that it was a fact. He really based the fact of His own death and resurrection upon the fact of Jonah's past imprisonment in the belly of the "fish," and his subsequent release after three days. Both facts are miracles, and therefore are above reason—but not against it. Of course it is an easy matter to turn the resurrection of Jesus into a mere parable, if the history of Jonah's incarceration first is brushed away as a mere figure of speech. Pastors must guard against both errors.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH — "God," said Jesus, "is spirit; and spirit is not less; and when the two meet in fellowship there is religious Perplexities." With that belief as a foundation for action, we invite you as spiritual beings to have fellowship with the Great Spirit as we rather tomorrow for our religious opportunities. The Sunday School at 9:45 with the continued presence of the best summer session we ever held; the morning worship at 11 at which time Miss Flavia Litter will again bring the message of music while Mrs. J. A. Tedford will preside at the organ and the minister will speak on a vital theme; and the Christian Endeavor at 7 offer privileges to all. The Union church service at 8 in the Lutheran church with Dr. Elmer Grant Keith as the preacher of the evening. May we allow our spirit to meet with God, our Father on the Lord's Day.—Wm. Crosby Ross, minister.

ISLAND CITY COMMUNITY CHURCH—"The Discipline Prayer" will be the sermon topic for next Sunday morning. "The Church We Forget" will be the evening topic at 8 p. m. The Bible reading contest grows in interest, which means that it also grows in value. The Epworth League is now having an interesting series of studies upon the early history of the Methodist church. It meets at 7 o'clock. The Sunday School convenes at 10. A cordial invitation to all the people of the community.—Hall K. Wallis, pastor.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH—"Some Marks of a Christian." This is the theme the pastor will use for the sermon at 11:00 a. m. at the Methodist church, Fourth and Depot street. The general public will be interested in both the theme and the discussion. We are specializing in good music. See here if this is not worth while. On the great organ Mrs. Parkinson will render Beethoven's "Proud, Andants Movement 5th Symphony," and also one by Pausa, "Solace." The special vocal number will be supplied by Miss Lota Peterson. This insures something devotional and beautiful. Union service at the Lutheran church at 8 p. m. Do not forget that the church school opens its session at 9:45 with a piano solo. Classes for all. Only three more Sundays in this church year.

SALVATION ARMY—Adj. and Mrs. Peterson, officers in charge. Sunday morning Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. The children are especially invited to attend and make arrangements for a gigantic picnic. Adj. and Mrs. Peterson are home from Seaside and will conduct their usual meetings.
