MINE ASSAYER BURNED WHEN PIPE BURSTS

BAKER, (Special)—George H. Jennings was severely burned yesterday afternoon at the E. & E. mine. Mr. Jennings and Mr. Tyler, of Seattle, were assaying and as the former turned off the gasoline jet of the furnace the pipe burst spraying him with molten. The flames burned him about the face and head. Mr. Tyler succeeded in getting Mr. Jennings out of the building and smothered the flames with dust.

In the meantime the building caught fire and spread to the barn. Mr. Tyler and Jennings succeeded in getting the horses from the burning barn.

The employees of the mine with the assistance of four electricians of the Eastern Oregon Light and Power company, who were at Bourne, carried water and managed to prevent the fire from burning the other mine buildings.

Mr. Jennings was brought to the St. Elizabeth hospital, where he is today, resting as well as could be expected.

MANY CHINESE SMUGGLED

Illicit Traffic in Forbidden Aliens Becoming Difficult to Handle in Philippines.
 Manila, (AP)—The smuggling of Chinese from British North Borneo into the Philippine Islands has increased largely in recent months and has become a profitable traffic, according to officials of the customs service.

Within the last week nearly 50 Chinese have been arrested in Zamboanga on charges of being in the country unlawfully and were deported either to Borneo or Hongkong. They are brought from the coast of Borneo in native boats and landed on the various islands of the Sulu group only a few miles from the British possession. After reaching Philippine territory they easily work their way into the more populous sections, and many of them are never caught.

The customs authorities have ordered all available patrol boats to southern waters for the purpose of beginning a vigorous campaign against this traffic in Chinese as well as against the opium traffic.

HUNT'S LETTER

Inquiries sent out by mail to sound the extent of this "radio reaction" is the following from a reply received from a rural section of the parties and Dr. Slaughter was on his feet in an instant, as was also C. E. Spence. Both demanded that Mr. Meisel talk to the motion in hand, which Mr. Spence read, raising a point of order.

Meisel Belongs Deftly
 But like Banquo's ghost, Mr. Meisel would not down. Above the roar of debate, he belittled defiance of the chairman and everybody else who tried to quiet him. "Shut up and sit down," shouted Mr. Spence.

"I defy you to shut me up when you let Dr. Slaughter raise the question without shutting him up," belittled Mr. Meisel.

Time and again Chairman Coulter tried to "shut him up" on a point of order, but Mr. Meisel would be heard and was heard, for he went right on talking in spite of the chairman's efforts to keep order in the convention.

Time and again Chairman Coulter tried to "shut him up" on a point of order, but Mr. Meisel would be heard and was heard, for he went right on talking in spite of the chairman's efforts to keep order in the convention.

Dozen Try to Talk
 In a minute, there were a dozen on their feet. Several jumped to the defense of Elton Watkins, representative in congress, who was lauded as "the only man in Oregon who ever kept all of his pre-election campaign pledges."

Some of the "three" men did not appear to like this remark, but they swallowed it without comment. Even the women present got into the fight on this point, for there were several among them who were angry for Elton Watkins and who announced openly that they hoped the convention would endorse him.

It later developed that Mr. Kellaher did not mean all that he said. He merely meant, he said, that anybody who wanted the convention's nomination should write and ask for it or appear at the meeting in person and not have some of their friends put the nomination over while they kept in the background. He didn't intend, he later explained, that anybody should rebuke the party that had given him the nomination. But it was a hotly fought over the matter while it lasted. When it came to a vote the whole brightness was voted down and among those who voted it down was George L. Cleaver.

Party Name Adopted
 It seems that although the convention adopted an emblem in the earlier session of the day, with the name Independent Progressive party emblazoned on it, the convention had not formally adopted a name until the matter was called to its attention last night. Then there were several who wanted it to be called the farmer-labor party of Oregon and who asked what anyone had to fear from such a name, since the objects of the party were to bring relief to those two elements of society. There were others, who thought that the non-partisan banner should be adopted because of the fact that the non-partisans had carried some prestige from

LA FOLLETTE OREGON PARTY IS STARTED

Petitions Declared Necessary
 He said that it was necessary to be a party, but admitted that any body of 100 persons could put a ticket in the field as an independent one. F. E. Coulter, as chairman pointed out that the convention could not put a ticket in the field because there were not 100 voters present, only 42 delegates being on hand.

His Meisel, who admitted that he is a member of the farmer-labor party, charged again, and again that there was a faction in the convention that was trying to get the endorsement of that convention for its friends in the old-that fact. It was called to the attention of the convention, however, that the national organization for La Follette was known as the Independent Progressive party and several believed that this name should be the one to be adopted by the state organization here. So this was done.
