La Grande Theatres

Rupert of Hentzau To Show at Arcade Has Fine Cast.

Is there any one who did not read and enjoy Sir Anthony Hope's Prisoner of Zenda and its enthralling sequel, Rupert of Hentzau? Of course there may be some such but it is hard to believe. Following close on the heels of the books were the stage versions in which many prominent actors took part, and now best of all come the pictures. The Prisoner of Zenda, a Metro production, had a successful run last year, and it is prophesied that the Seizelick Distributing Corporation's Rupert of Hentzau, which opens at the Arcade theatre on Wednesday, will out-distance all previous photoplay winners.

It is said that never before in screen history has such a cast of celebrities appeared in any production as may be seen in the cast of Rupert of Hentzau. Elaine Hammerstein, Bert Lytell, Lew Cody, Bryant Washburn, Hubert Havorth, Claire Windsor, Irving Cummings, Mitchell Lewis, Elmo Lincoln and Marjorie Daw are all popular stars, while Adolphe Menjou, Nigel De Brulier, Josephine Crowell and Gertrude Astor are well known for their many splendid portrayals in leading roles.

Fort Lytell, Hubert Howarda and Bryant Washburn played in the stage version of Rupert of Hentzau, which they felt was of great benefit to them in their screen characterizations.
