DIG UP BONES OF MEN OF '76' Notice of Final Account. Notice is by this given that the undersigned Mabel F. Allen has filed her final account as executrix of the estate of Anna E. Henry, deceased, in the County Court of State of Oregon for Union County, and that the Judge of said Court has set September 4, 1924, at 10 a. m. at the County Court room in La Grande, Union County, Oregon, as the time and place to hear objections to, and for the settlement of, said final account.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) - The skeletons of three soldiers of General Washington's Revolutionary army, buried nearly a century and a half ago, near his camp site which is now a part of Berkeley, a Norfolk suburb, were unearthed several days ago in the yard of a citizen of that place. The bones were exhumed by laborers in digging for a sewer line. Buttons of copper or bronze and other time-worn objects indicated two of the men had been officers and the bones of one showed he must have been well over six feet in height.

While today there is nothing to indicate the place, now part of a residential section, was once a military burying ground, the skeletons found the other day make a place within the past two years. A citizen of the suburb, J. H. Jones, now in 50 years old, recalls that in his boyhood days his father had pointed out the place as an old camp registry used by the forces of Washington. Soldiers buried there, according to the story, fell in the battles of Great Bridge and Money Point.

A monument long has marked the site of the battle of Great Bridge, and Money Point derives its name from an incident that occurred there during the Revolutionary War. It is related that money had been provided for the payment of the troops but before it could be distributed the British made a sudden attack and, fearing its capture, the Americans placed the money in a cation and dropped it overboard. After the battle, which continued for several days with great fury, efforts to locate the cannon proved futile and the money to this day is supposed to be lying buried in the mud in the Elizabeth river.

During his campaign in this section, then one of the principal ports of entry for the colonies, Washington selected a site almost entirely surrounded by water, thus assuring him against attack except by water, so much impressed was he with the strategic value.

Notice of Final Account. Notice is hereby given to all concerned that Henry W. Peehler, executor of the last will and testament of L. A. Peehler, deceased, has filed his final account in the administration of said estate in the County Court of Union County, State of Oregon, and said court has set Thursday, the 4th day of September, A. D., 1924, at Two o'clock p. m. at the County Court room in La Grande, Oregon, as the time and place for the hearing of said account and all objections thereto.
