BRANCHLINE TRIP BEST OF JUNKETS

Wallaowa county fair.

Went to Wallowa Lake. When good night and goodbyes had been said to the friends at Enterprise all members of the La Grande party headed for Ross Leslie's resort at the head of Wallowa lake.

The night was theirs and guests of the Wonderland wondered very much who might be the bunch of more than fifty who turned themselves loose to enjoy not only the beauties of nature, but the relaxation which comes to such men when turned out for a trifle. A sleepless night followed, and many were the good natured pranks played upon those of the party who even attempted to recline in the arms of Morpheus.

A fine breakfast was served at the resort the following morning, followed by a lunch at Joseph where J. H. Paure presided and reminded the Joseph citizens that he was an old timer among them. He soon convinced everyone of that fact by recalling some events in lodge and sportsmen's circles which he had taken part in when Joseph was a much younger city than she is today.

Merchants Visited. Returning to Landing the party visited the merchants of that community in the afternoon and then drew into the city of Wallowa for dinner last evening. Wallowa people turned out well and the basement of the Presbyterian church was filled with the banqueters.

At this meeting the La Grande crowd was at its best for Joseph from the good fellowship speakers they had accumulated a lot of funny incidents and happy experiences on the trip which they freely related. Howard O'Brien very ably acted as toastmaster.

Drum Corps a Fine Feature
 Headline the excursionists was the American Legion drum corps with Ray Williams wielding the "big stick." Twenty members with drums and bugles made the atmosphere of every community elated, reverberate with good cheer. The boys were all handsomely uniformed and presented a fine appearance. Not a lax moment was experienced in the entire journey for the drum corps would not permit it.

Quartet at Its Best.
 The joy of having a Chamber of Commerce quartet, consisting of Elmer Stoddard, George S. Brien, Sherwood Williams and Lawrence Dutton, in the party was simply great. At every dinner these excellent entertainers simply captured the audience. Each member was at his best and it is not putting it too strongly to assert that the chamber of commerce quartet is in a class by itself and that it is one of the best adjuncts to La Grande's civic and social life.

Experiments

While the quartet was receiving admiration and merited applause at every stop, Warren Gilbert, Ernest Watkins and Andrew Playle decided that something had to be done to offset this exquisite feature of the banquet. These young men had received severe chastisement from older members of the party for they were charged with being the ring leaders of the night brigade which maintained Col. Larson, slugged Howard O'Brien and did many other things to break the peace and quiet at Wallowa lake.

Their opportunity came at the Wallowa dinner and when the quartet had rendered one of its best numbers, the trio—Watkins, Gilbert and Playle—arose on the other side of the room and began singing an original story, in rhyme, of the complete trip. They chose for the time of their story, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More." For twenty-five verses with a chorus between each verse the boys picked out first one and then another of the party, "bawling" each out in a rhyme that was especially fitting.

The excursion was planned and carried out by Floyd McKenneth, chairman of the committee, and when the machines rolled into La Grande last evening after completing the trip every occupant was delighted with the entire program, was better acquainted with Wallowa county people and knew his fellow La Grande men in a different and more pleasant way than ever before.

The third scene of amusement was across the tracks, on the north side, where a charivari was held. Reporters failed to learn the names of the parties but one was a La Grande girl and her husband hailed from Baker.

The charivari was lengthy and highly amusing. Taken all together—a "good time" was had by all.

RUTHE HAS $25,000 BLAZE
 RUTHE, Mont.—Fire destroyed the Union Furniture Exchange store, Ott's grocery and the Walker block, all in the same building, causing a loss estimated at $25,000. Prompt work by the firemen and absence of wind prevented what might have been the most serious blaze in years. Adjoining buildings were not fireproof.

The cause of the blaze, which originated in the basement of the building, is not known, but Fire Chief Martin said it might have been due to spontaneous combustion of old rags.

New Treatment For Varicose Veins and Ulcers

Swollen veins are dangerous and often hurt. Sufferers are advised to get a two-ounce original bottle of Emerald Oil (see strength), at any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and ointment at once. Physicians recommend Emerald Oil. It is used in hospital practice and a small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated, and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush as directed until the swelling is reduced to normal. So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that swollen phlebs and even goitres disappear when used steadily. Red Cross Drug Co. will supply you. (Mail orders accepted.)—Adv.

Man Crushed Under Truck

OMAK, Wash.—While driving a truck loaded with gravel, Bernard Middleton, age 24, went over a narrow fill on the Duck Lake road and was instantly killed. He was driving a county truck hauling gravel for resurfacing this road and had apparently leaned over to fix something on the truck. The truck apparently rolled over once and struck the gravel with sufficient force to turn back on its side, entangling the driver under the stop and crushing his skull. But one person witnessed the accident, Mr. Middleton grew to manhood in this section.

Progressives Wednesday completed their organization for the forthcoming campaign by naming C. W. Booth, Lewis county state chairman, and E. I. Poage, Ada county secretary of the state central committee. W. J. Hanna, A. D. McDonald and H. E. Samuels were named as committee members. Candidates nominated at the state convention which closed early Wednesday morning.

While many had left on early trains, a party of the delegates went to Arrowrock dam by automobile, and relaxed in other ways, following the strain of the convention.

The state ticket, as it will be certified to the secretary of state, contains the name of one Democratic candidate for the supreme bench, while the Democrats were to name one Progressive for congress and one for the supreme bench.
