La Grande Theatres

Women Shown How to Change Husbands.

When "Changing Husbands," the new Paramount picture, featuring the talented Loretta Joy, opens at the Grande theatre Friday for a two-day run, every woman from eighteen to eighty will be Johnny-on-the-spot for the initial showing. There is something about the film that strikes a responsive chord in the feminine heart. It is safe to assume that every married woman has at least once wanted to exchange her "lord and master" for something a little better in the husband line. As for the prospective bride, the idea of learning a safe and simple method for acquiring a new "Bobby" in case the one she now has does not come up to her expectations, is bound to have a powerful appeal.

Miss Joy in the principal feature role has a part that puts her ability as a versatile actress to a severe test inasmuch as she is called upon to portray a dual role. Among the principal players in the supporting cast are Victor Varconi, Raymond Griffith, Zsuzsanna and Julia Payne.

A story with the hero and villain unknown—until the last reel. And several persons suspected of murder until the final moment!

Most motion pictures begin with clearly defined characters of good and evil, but Clara Beranger has reversed the method in her original comedy-drama, "The Bedroom Window," which William de Mille produced for Paramount. In fact, suspicion shifts in so many directions that seldom will two persons agree upon the same suspect at the same moment.

The story opens with a murder. A young clubman rushes into the darkened bedroom of a New York banker and locks the door behind him. When the police break in, they find him with a revolver in his hand and the body of the financier on the floor.

But the final solution of the mystery is a cheerfully guarded secret, and a secret it will remain until "The Bedroom Window" is shown upon the screen at the Star theatre today and Friday.

Mary McAvoy and Malcolm McGregor head an unusually strong cast of featured players. Others include Ricardo Cortez, Robert Johnson, George Fawcett and T. W. Walker. Playing in support are Charles Ogle, Madge Madama, Guy Oliver, Lillian Leighton and George Callahan.

An "Our Gang" comedy is also on the program.
