"Man Who Fights Alone"
Showing at Star
For Three Days.

"The Man Who Fights Alone" at the Star theater today, Thursday and Friday is unusual in theme and gripping in story. What is more it marks the screen comeback of William Farnum, this time under the Paramount banner. On top of that it has a superb supporting cast headed by lovely Lois Wilson and Edward Horton, both featured. Wallace Worley directed the production.

"The Man Who Fights Alone" is from the story "The Miracle of Hate." You have all heard a lot about the miracles that have been performed by love, but sometimes the terrible emotional power of hate can do things even more startling.

Farnum has the role of a two-fisted engineer who wins the love of a beautiful girl who also has been courted by his best friend. Ill health makes it necessary for him to form a partnership with his friend who is an honorable man in every respect. As day after day he sees his wife and his friend talking, laughing and enjoying each other's company, suspicion and bitterness creep into his heart until there comes a time when his mind is so warped that he resolves upon a desperate course of action. How his little daughter saves him from the consequences of his own folly and how he is made to see his partner to be without foundation, forms a mighty climax that will send the good blood tingling and coursing through your veins.

A two-act comedy is also on the program.

"Desert's Crucible"
At Sherrys
Today Only.

Ben Wilson's production, "Desert's Crucible," starring the celebrated cowboy star, Jack Hoxie, and including in the cast Claude Payton and Andree Tourneur. The picture was directed by Roy Clements, who also wrote the story.

In his screen career Jack Hoxie has played many parts, all very much alike in general characteristics, but in this picture he offers his numerous admirers a novel impersonation—he plays two parts, one that of a young fellow who is being fed up on society life, and is sent to a ranch to be made over into a man; that of his own brother, an Indian half-breed with personal traits and characteristics directly the opposite of the other character.

It is a strong and exciting story and Jack Hoxie very skillfully brings out the distinctive peculiarities of each character. There is an apparent resemblance physically between the two characters but there it ends.

It is a good audience picture. The story holds from beginning to end. It is beautifully photographed, like all Hoxie pictures, villainy has a bad time of it, and ed dramas that ever graced the silver sheet. It was directed by Clarence Badger, and the cast includes Ben Lyon, Charlotte Merriam, Joseph Strick, Charles Murray, Russell Simpson, Mary Alden, Mary Carr, Sam De Grasse, June Elvidge, Anna Q. Nilsson and Hull Montana.

"Painted People"
At the Arcade.

"Painted People," a First National picture which boasts Colleen Moore as its featured player, is a photograph of unusual excitement and contains a wide range of settings.

The story, which is based on the Collier's Weekly serial, "The Swamp Angel," by Richard Connell, opens in a poor district of Clinton City, with the action being supplied by the poverty-stricken residents of the town.

Next we are transported into the wealthy portion of Clinton City, with stately mansions forming the background for fashionably dressed men and women.

Then the spectator is given a taste of stage life, with many views "behind the scenes" and "out front" to delight the eye.

"Painted People," which is coming on Thursday to the Arcade theater for an engagement of three days, has been pronounced one of the most delightful comedies of the season.
