Marriage Is Theme Of Dana Picture At Sherrys.
"All quarrels can be avoided if your husband will do just as YOU say."
"Jealousy and suspicion don't get you anywhere but they keep you going."
"It's queer more men aren't doctors—they're such a good excuse to get out at night."
"I've apologized to the woman who's trying to break up your home, your husband will do it for you."
—These are titles taken from the newest Viola Dana picture, "Don't Doubt Your Husband," a Metro production which is coming to the Sherry theater for a run of two days. They give an idea of the story by Sada Cowan and Howard Hinnell that is said to make the merriest photograph of Miss Dana's career.

Married Life Bumpy
Miss Dana appears as a smart, young suburban wife who bumps along the road of matrimony with jealous outbreaks, making each bump. When she notices that her husband, played by Allan Forrest, is more interested in the ankles of a beautiful interior decorator (Winifred Bryson) than in the decorations, she decides to trail him. As luck has it, the husband, taking the other woman home, gets into a smash-up and sprains his ankle and is taken to her home. The wife arrives there in a frenzy of anger.
It's a real matrimonial smash this time, but everything gets mended in a series of incidents that are said to sparkle with the sunshine of good humor, smart satire and dramatic situations.

Picture at Star Crammed with Action and Thrills.
In a Paramount picture brimful of thrills and crammed with action that includes one of the mightiest climaxes on the screen, William Farnum made a triumphant return to the silver sheet in the Wallace Worley Paramount production "The Man Who Fights Alone," last night at the Star theater.
Farnum's characterization of the capable, fearless engineer whose unwarranted jealousy and suspicion of his best friend all but leads to his destruction is nothing short of the work of a genius. He proves that as a dramatic actor of emotional parts he is in a class by himself.
"The Man Who Fights Alone" is based upon an adaptation by Jack Cunningham from an unusual story by William Blake

Colleen Moore Proves Herself the Best "Tomboy."
Rodolph Valentino can claim the title, "the screen's greatest lover."
Norma Talmadge is accorded the distinction of being the greatest of all emotional actresses.
To William S. Hart goes the title, "the screen's greatest purveyor of Westerns."
But to Colleen Moore must go the title—"The screen's one and only tomboy."
Miss Moore stands so far ahead of her competitors for this distinction that there is really no competition at all.
She has been "tomboyish" in

APPLE PICKING STARTS
HOOD RIVER, Ore.—Many apple growers here started full crews picking standard varieties of apples. For the most part, however, the main harvest of fruit will not be under way until next week. Up to last night the season's total shipments of apples and pears from here had reached 52 carloads. The Apple Growers association had forwarded slightly more than half of these.
