Laurette Taylor Due in Newest Film At Sherrys.

Laurette Taylor, America's most loved actress, made a record of a four years run in the stage play "Ope of My Heart." Producers for a long time tried to interest her in the screen and she finally capitulated to the Metro organization. For her first picture Miss Taylor did "Ope" because it was the best known play of the modern theatre. It was a smashing success and won for the star millions more of admirers.

Now she has completed her second film offering, "Happiness," taken from her play of that name which was written by J. Hartley Manners, the author of "Ope." According to the latter, "Happiness" even outdoes "Ope" on the screen. "Happiness," which comes to the Sherry theatre today was directed by King Vidor, while Mr. Manners wrote the adaptation and continuity, and Chester A. Lyons was photographer. Comedy showing "Pigskin."

All Star Cast In Ice Picture Coming to Star.

One of the biggest all-star casts brought together for any production this season was selected by Thomas H. Ince for the filming of his remarkable new drama "Those Who Dance," a first National release, running at the Star theatre Fridays, Saturday and Sunday. "Those Who Dance," Bessie Love, Warner Baxter, Robert Agnew, Matthew Betz, Lucille Ricksen and Lydia Knott! It would be hard to find more potent names in the list of film favorites or actors more suited for the interpretation of the dramatic roles of this unusual story.

To Miss Sweet, whose portrayal of the title role in Ince's "Anna Christie" has won international applause, was entrusted the characterization of "Rose, Carny," a part which taxed her ability to the utmost and gave her opportunity for another success. She has turned in this production to the characterization of a lovely little girl from a small town who, when she finds her brother has fallen in with gangsters of New York's underworld, pretends to drop in with the fast life of the crowd. The tight situations in which she finds herself and from which she is saved only by daring and lightning brain work have been screened with dramatic tension that keeps everyone on edge for what next.

Bessie Love, always a favorite, has an entirely new type of role in "Those Who Dance." With a sleek boyish look and gaudy frocks and jewelry that looks as if it came from the ten-cent store, she Ernest Torrence Has Rival—And It Is a Woman!

Edna May Oliver, who plays the part of Hannah, the quiet slave, in William de Mille's production of "Opepanda," is a contender for Ernest Torrence's laurels. Miss Oliver played Hannah in "Icebound" when it was on the boards at the Harris theatre last year, and scored a personal success.

When William de Mille planned the film production of Owen Davis' prize play, he selected Miss Oliver to appear in the stage role she had created.

As the stumbling slavey on a farm in New England, Miss Oliver presents a character study which is filled with quaint mannerisms, a personality which is made more ludicrous through its romantic pessimism. In her stammering walk, her wonderful play of facial expression and her seeming listlessness, she creates a memorable figure on the screen.

Miss Oliver makes her debut in Paramount pictures in "Icebound" after several years of success as a character actress on the stage. She made her debut with Nance O'Neill in stock in Boston.

"I adore character parts," said Miss Oliver, "and believed acting before the camera would be same. I've learned differently, however. Screen acting is most exciting, but most delightful."

Richard Dix and Lois Wilson are featured players in "Icebound" which will be shown at the Arcade theatre today. Among the more prominent players in the supporting cast are Vera Reynolds, Ethel Wales and Alice Chapin.
