The year books were also distributed at this meeting. Mrs. W. P. McAdory, chairman of the committee on music gave an excellent report, telling of the plans of the Monday Musical for the coming year; Mrs. E. L. Holmes, who is chairman of the program committee, also gave a very interesting report; Mrs. H. H. Cleaver, chairman of the Art Department, and Mrs. Carl Hecht, supervisor of literature and drama, also gave complete reports of the work outlined for the coming year. Following the reports of committees Mrs. George T. Cochran and Mrs. J. D. Lynch, who attended the conven-

Smart Coat Dress

THIS really is a coat dress. It is fastened but once in the front and is worn over a sleeveless slip of a different color. Its usefulness lies in the fact that one may have a number of underings of different shades and fabrics to give variety and change. The lines are very smart and the sleeves show the new flaring cuff that is considered more flattering than the straight sleeve line.

Talked Like a Dutch Uncle

"My father is a physician and, naturally, I was opposed to all patent medicine. So when a friend told me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for my stomach trouble, I laughed at him. Some months later, after my father told me he had used all known remedies in my case, I met my friend again and he talked to me like a Dutch uncle and finally induced me to try it. All my symptoms have now disappeared. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

Beauty Hints

To obtain face powder for Poppo, Nora's wife, during marriage had to brave tempestuous seas in frail crafts and scale the dangerous cliffs of England. In those early days powder was merely a chalk, and Poppo preferred chalk from the English cliffs.

Since the fastidious Poppo also fancied baths from the milk of wild asses, her beauty was costly; both the capture of the wild asses and the obtaining of the English chalk frequently involving loss of life.

That the ladies of Roman society a few years B. C. knew quite a good deal about beauty culture methods is evident from some of the beauty advice given by the poet Ovid, born in 43 B. C. When Roman women got to buying their wigs in the open market place, Ovid humorously besought them:

"Keep us in darkness, for 'tis wiser
To hide some secrets from men's eyes."

He also cautions, according to a free and somewhat modern translation by Wright:

"But do not let your art be seen
Your husband must not cover
And powder puff behind a screen,
Or come upon you from behind
When the cold cream is coming down
And moistening your dressing gown."

No dangerous cliffs need be scaled today to obtain milky powder. Not even angry sleeping crowds need be struggled with. Miss 1924 merely telephones a shop to send her the particular powder she prefers—and it matches her coloring far better than the dearly gained chalk matched the skin of Poppo.

Instead of the sticky white of a century ago or the hectic pink of ten years back, the favorite modern powders are rich and creamy to match the naturally rich skin of the modern outdoor girl, and they come in various shades such as Peach powder (made for the blonde, and peaches and

Cream for brunettes. There are also other powders for evening, or when special effects are desired. There are even rouge, lipstick and eyebrow pencils of varying shades, for the rules of beauty now demand that make-up shall not distort the face by painting over it colors that never belonged there, but that it shall merely accentuate the natural beauty of the face—and modern science has provided beauty aids which do this in a gratifying way. The result is that a merely good-looking woman today is in reality as beautiful as the most famous of ancient beauties, for today the standards of beauty, due to increased knowledge of cosmetic art, are far higher than the standards of olden times.

He began to have trouble with his stomach, which made him cross and irritable. Finally, his wife claims, he grew so abusive that she could not live in the same house with him. She asks for a divorce and custody of her two children.

The above story explains the cause of a great many divorces. Every man or woman with stomach distress of any kind should use Smith Bros' M. A. C., the guaranteed stomach treatment.
