Germans Call for Light On Who Started the War

MEINSTER, Westphalia, Germany. (AP)—That the allied governments deliberately keep their peoples ignorant of the Russian, Austrian and German publications of official documents pertaining to the circumstances leading to the outbreak of the war, is charged by the sixteenth Congress of German State Archivists, held here recently. Furthermore, it is alleged that the allied governments refuse stubbornly to open their state archives for scientific research, such as to the diplomatic string-pulling behind the scenes, previous to the war.

In the manifesto, unanimously adopted by the assembly, the French colleagues of the archivists have been called upon to come out of the dark and contribute their share to the enlightenment of the world at large as to the real causes of the war, for the sake "of justice and the establishment of unbiased truth."
