 ing in a remote corner.
 "Are you a Kentuckian?" she asked, sympathetically.
 "No, madam; I am a musician." A salesman for a Portland business concern was in Baker and had been invited to dinner and was asked to say grace. This was an entirely new experience, but he took it valiantly.
 "Dear Lord," he began, "we thank You for all your favors of recent date. Accept our heartfelt gratitude. We trust that we may continue to merit Your considerence, and that we shall receive many more blessings from You in the future, Amen."

COTTAGE WOMEN ELECT
 SALEM, Ore.—Representatives from 14 of the five Oregon branches of the American Association of University Women held a conference here yesterday and perfected a state organization.
 Miss Mabelle Hair, of the University of Oregon, was elected president of the state association.
 Other officers are Mrs. Katie Jamleson of Corvallis, vice-president and Mrs. R. A. Klein of Corvallis secretary-treasurer.
 Delegates were present from Portland, Corvallis, Eugene and Salem. The purpose of the organization, it was said, is to unify the work of the various branches throughout the state.
 Miss Hair announced that she would appoint a number of the working committees following her return to Eugene.

CELERY YIELD HEAVIER

SALEM, Ore.—Approximately 300 carloads of celery will be shipped from the Lake Labish district a few miles north of Salem, this season, according to statistics prepared here. Last year the yield was 200 cars. Some of the product will be shipped to Oklahoma and Texas markets. In past years most of the Lake Labish celery went to Kansas City, Omaha and coast points.

Are You Patriotic? Then Vote!

On November 4th a National Presidential Election will be held in the United States. The only right way to select a President (and other executives) is for everyone to signify his or her choice. Consider it a sacred duty to your country to go to the polls and cast your vote.

Heroes

A publisher of public school supplies has happily chosen from Longfellow an inspirational verse for the cover of a pupil's report book in wide usage. The quotation so appropriately employed is:
 "Lives of great men all remind us
 We can make our lives sublime,
 And, departing leave behind us, Footprints on the sands of time."

Hitching your wagon to a star means making a model of some great man or woman and then perseveringly striving to emulate your ideal. Knowing the great traits of great men we unconsciously acquire them for ourselves.
 For the child in school there is no stronger urge than the image of some great man or woman, living or dead.

Unfortunately, young people of the formative age sometimes choose their model unwisely. Bandits, pirate chiefs and other unscrupulous adventurers too often are the appointed heroes of the adolescent age. When these are not worshipped by youth for their crimes and atrocities but for their daring deeds and adventuresome spirit they are not to be discounted as valuable incentives to growing boys but their place should be taken by D'Artagnans, who have all the courage without the rascality of the others.

If a peace-loving country such as ours it is noteworthy that the world's military leaders occupy the topmost pedestals in the hero-worship of boyhood. A place in history as a warrior and soldier is a passport into the hearts of young America. It is not that George Washington was the "Father of his Country" and a great patriot but that he was a brave soldier that establishes him as a hero in the minds of American boys. The same holds true with great many adults who have not lost the romanticism of youth.
 We can all benefit from following in the footsteps of a great man but let us choose our model with care.

About Growing Old

The psychologist who said the other day that old age and death is a mere matter of psychology, seems to be skipping about the edge of sophistry. To claim full credit for modern knowledge which has lengthened human life five years in two generations is one thing, but to reach from that for a logical conclusion that life may be prolonged indefinitely by mere psychological effort is something different. This would be comforting to those who desire to live to be 200 years old, but before men reach that age other knowledge than merely how to wish for prolonged existence will be necessary.

To fix an arithmetical program by which human life is to be lengthened according to the ratio of the first modern steps is to invite disappointment. Some time, possibly, men may live to be much older than in this generation, but when that time arrives human beings will be found living as well as thinking in a manner far from the habits of 1924. Physical death and old age is something more than a simple matter of psychology, at least in man's present state of knowledge.

Contradicting the impression that nobody saves time by holding the gas pedal down when motoring toward a railroad crossing, it is shown that such speeders reach the morgue several years sooner than they otherwise might.

Shanghai seems as hard to capture as the barnyard rooster of the same name.
