WOMEN TOLD TO VOTE OR CEASE ALL COMPLAINTS

CHICAGO (AP).—The 3,000,000 women in the General Federation of Women's clubs were urged to vote in the November election by Mrs. John D. Sherman, their president, in a statement given out in this city. If any of them has a voting family, she is indifferent to good citizenship, they must arouse "him" to his civic responsibility. Mrs. Sherman asserts. Voting is a duty, not a job or politics.

It also is the best possible demonstration of good citizenship.

"The woman who does not take the trouble to go to the polls an election day certainly should never raise her voice in protest over anything that goes wrong in Washington or her own state capital," said Mrs. Sherman. "By her vote she earns the right to an expression of opinion in national and state affairs."

WOULD QUELL MOVE

STIMLA, British India (By the Associated Press).—The Earl of Reading, viceroy of India, today exercised his emergency powers by the promulgation of the ordinance supplementing ordinary criminal law in Bengal with the view of suppressing revolutionary crime of an anarchical movement, which, it was stated, was found deep seated and dangerous.

Sherrys Showing Rupert Hughes' Story "True as Steel."

Rupert Hughes has followed his "Hone" and "Gimme" both stories touching on problems of modern life, with a third equally interesting discussion. This time it is the problems, joys and temptations of the woman in business, and the brilliant author-director presents his discussion originally an entertainment in "True as Steel," now showing at the Sherry theatre. It is an unusual picture in more ways than one, for it is nothing of the spectacular, melodramatic, or the wildly impossible. Hughes has simply created human, living characters, who live natural lives in the natural way. There are no spicily heroines, there are no god-like heroes; there are no plotting villains, which alone pass the picture in a division of its own.

The leading woman is married; the leading man is married; they have an affair through a business meeting but break it off rather than ruin the lives of their respective mates. Alleen Tringle, who seems to be bounding toward stardom as fast as she can make pictures, plays the central figure of the story, and she maintains the splendid standard of her work in the film version of "Three Weeks." Huntley Gordon plays opposite her, with Norman Kerry, Cleo Madison, Louise Fazenda, Eleanor Boardman, Raymond Hatton, William H. Crane, William Haines and others in the supporting cast. Comedy showing, "One Stormy Orphan."

Players Making "Story Without Name" Thought Run-Runners.

Louis Wolheim and Ivan Linow are two rough looking birds. So rough looking, in fact, that they attracted the attention of revenue officers who were cruising about Long Island Sound, recently and brought a visit to the yacht where they were playing bridge. "The Story Without a Name."

CLAUDE E. PRATT

I really thought as the fall weather was coming on that the great demand for building material would begin to let up. But on account of the prevailing house shortage in La Grande, the demand is growing and from the way it looks scores of houses will no doubt be needed to complete before the bad weather sets in. Some large carload shipment of lumber and shingles are being received by us this week. I really believe this is the very time to build, as nearly every indication points to the fact that lumber will increase in price. In fact, already the price is suffering up on the outside; however, we are selling at the same remarkable low prices, and will continue to do so as long as possible. Nails, 25c boxes, in large lots only. We are also selling any amount of units that you wish at a great reduction price.

his latest production for Paramount. "What are you carrying?" said one of the revenue men as they swarmed on board. "I don't know, what are we carrying?" asked Wolheim. "This is no joke. Where's your papers?" was the rough rejoinder of the officer. Just then Director Willat interrupted the conversation and informed the men that coal, a few movie cameras, and a group of actors were being carried. "In this port," said the agents, "We'll just search the boat for liquor. I don't like the looks of these two fellows." A finger of scorn was pointed at Wolheim and Linow, who had been letting their beards grow for a week so as to look rough. Just then Anne Ayres and her maid came out of the cabin and the revenue men hesitated in their search. "Movies, eh?" they mumbled. "Well, we'll watch you work while."

Willat called his cameraman and Antonio Moreno and Miss Ayres went through a scene for the picture just to prove to the skeptical men of the law that they were making motion pictures. Finally they showed off in their revenue cutter, satisfied that they had not run into a bootlegger's yacht. Miss Ayres is featured with Moreno in the principal roles of "The Story Without a Name," which opens a three days' run today at the Arcade theatre.

The story is an adaptation by Victor Lewis of the photography magazine "Radio-Play" title, serial by Arthur Stringer. Others in the strong cast include Tyrone Power, Deanna Godovsky, Maurice Costello and Jack Bohn.

Regiments of Cooks Feed British Royalty

LONDON (AP).—The royal kitchens at Windsor castle and Buckingham palace which were overhauled during the absence of the king and queen in the Scottish Highlands and are now spick and span, are very interesting institutions. It is said there is no royal house in the world where the kitchens are so well arranged as in the grays castle at Windsor, the home of English sovereigns since the days of William the Conqueror. Built originally centuries ago, they have been modified from time to time to meet the needs of changing conditions, but wherever possible the old has been preserved and not infrequently English beef is served to King George which has been roasted on a spit that did duty in the days of the Plantagenets.
