Are You Patriotic? Then Vote!

On November 4th a National Presidential Election will be held in the United States. The only right way to select a President (and other executives) is for everyone to signify his or her choice. Consider it a sacred duty to your country to go to the polls and cast your vote.

Up Stream, My Boy

In one of the Sunday newspapers a chap preaches a sermon about the American home being a thing of the past, stating that none of the family stay at home any more; that the parents and children all lead "hectic" lives and are constantly looking for something to jazz them up.

Quite true, old timer, quite true. But listen, you may sit on the doorstep and howl that stuff night after night and no one will stop long enough to wonder why you are there or what you are doing. All he said was true as gospel, but what he said will not make a single dent in any person who reads it. It is a good deal like J. J. Carr's statement that the average person is preaching economy but meaning economy for the other fellow.

The way of living has changed, whether for good or for bad, it has undergone a decided change. There is no longer the old home circle no more than there is the horse and buggy, and all the screaming and carping will not bring it back.

Civilization may be breaking, as some of the pessimistic ones assert, but if she is, why, she is, that's all, and none of the preachments such as the Sunday newspaper writer gives will change it.

You can't swim up stream, my boy, so get in with the current of life. But in doing so you will note while the American home is about a thing of the past and that many other good old things have passed, there is still a lot of the milk of human kindness in almost everyone, and there is today a greater individual Christianity among men than ever existed before. True, it is of the individual style, but it is there. More Golden Rule methods are practiced today in business than ever before; less and less deception marks the business world. So, taking it all in all, the old world is a pretty good place to camp in for a while yet, at least.

THE SOURCE OF TRUE REFORM

more and more general that laws enacted in an effort to crystallize and establish some great reform are simply the deliberate announcement that the nation or state adopting them has achieved the moral status which it seeks to maintain and perpetuate by the enunciation, not of a mere theory, but of a mature righteous judgment. Thus the abolition of slavery in the United States was not an experiment which the people, by the amendment of the Constitution, expressed their willingness to try. It was the declaration that a great progressive step had been taken in line with what President Coolidge would call the religious convictions of the American people.

The progress of this growth may be traced as definitely through the ages as in the history of America. Only as mankind has gained, in the revealing light of understanding, a clearer and better concept of right, of justice, of the meaning of freedom and liberty, has there been genuine progress. And in the future this progress will be great or slow according as ignorance, prejudice and selfishness are destroyed. Those who oppose the application and enforcement of progressive and constructive laws may assume to believe that in so doing they are defending the cause of a minority imposed upon by a dominant majority. Analyzed in the light of reason, this alleged right of the minority has been submerged. If the rule of right is the rule of reason, if the declared policy of a great nation is not enunciated primarily through legislation, but is the result of a higher and better understanding, it is as fixed and immutable as Truth itself.

Red Cross Reports Year of Disasters

WASHINGTON, (AP) — A new American disaster record, including 735 deaths, nearly 2,000 persons injured and 44,000 made homeless, and property damage of close to $45,000,000 has given the Red Cross its busiest year in relief operations.

Of the serious disasters of the year which closed July 1, 12 were fires, the most serious being the $10,000,000 Berkeley, Calif., conflagration. There were seven cyclones and 14 tornadoes, the latter including one in northern Ohio in June which killed 84 persons, rendered 6,800 homeless and did property damage estimated at $20,000,000; and another in South Caro-ing in April which took 74 lives. The cost of relief service which the Red Cross and its branches and chapters rendered to stricken communities, as shown in the society's annual report, was more than $737,000. A large percentage of the disasters occurred east of the Mississippi in territory usually immune, notably the states of Maine, New York, Vermont, New Jersey and Maryland.

A feature of the year's relief work was the establishment of a national mobile disaster unit operating from Red Cross national headquarters in Washington, and supported by a reserve of workers in nearly every state. This unit has at its disposal the airplane facilities of the war, navy and post office departments to afford the quickest transportation in emergencies.
