Sherrys Showing Richard Talmadge In "American Manners."

"American Manners" is crammed with daring exploits. The stunts of Richard Talmadge, who plays the role of Roy Thomas, will find their way into the hearts of all who enjoy air-raising stories.

The picture throughout is gripping and thrilling. It deals with Roy Thomas, a young American athlete, who has spent a number of years in Paris. Coming back to America he is instrumental in uncovering a smuggling ring which has been operating in the hotels controlled by his father—and it is while he is engaged in this undertaking and later as a bank-shooter and disguised as a deckhand that some of the most thrilling action ever shown in a picture takes place.

The hero's dive from the top of the mast, to rescue the girl he later marries, starts the action ball rolling, and after that, hazardous happenings come so thick and fast you wonder how Talmadge ever came through the picture alive.

A delightful romance runs through this story and, of course, the winning of the girl is the goal that brings victory out of seeming defeat in the hand to hand fights in which the hero engages.

A splendid cast has been selected to support the young star, including such well known screen favorites as Hilda Lynch, Mark Fenton, L. C. Shumway, Arthur Mellett, Pat Harmon, William Turner and George Ward.

had a decent burial and accepts in return for his act of courtesy the band's picturesque regalia.

Gibson, as the cowboy, then plays bandit to win the love of his girl. Gibson plays the droll cowboy and the dashing bandit-act with equal cleverness and the picture as a whole is full of fun.

La Grande as the winning heroine is exceedingly charming. Edward Sedawick, who directed the filming, is responsible for the direction of most of Gibson's outstanding plays and has made this one a very human story as well as a rollicking entertainment. In the cast are such veterans and adepts as Robert McKim, Harry Todd, Howard Truesdel and Clark Comstock.

Zane Grey Story Coming Here—To Be In Natural Colors.

The first motion picture to be entirely in natural colors is the Zane Grey Paramount production, "Wanderer of the Wasteland," which was produced in the original locale, described in the book, the deserts of Arizona, by Irwin Willard, Jack Holt, Kathryn Williams, Noah Berry and Billy Dove are featured in the principal roles.

According to Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president in charge of production of Paramount, "Wanderer of the Wasteland" is Zane Grey's favorite story and the most popular of all the books he has given to the American public.

"In this picture we have used the famous Technicolor process—the same process which proved such a sensational success in the Biblical epics of Cecil B. DeMille's super-production, "The Ten Commandments." To achieve the best results we went to considerable expense and trouble so that the coloring of the picture might be as near perfection as it is possible to attain. A special camera staff organized by the Technicolor company was sent from Boston.

Western Film Thrills About In Star Picture.

For those who want to step out of the routine of workaday life into the atmosphere of refreshing comedy one can do no better than to recommend Hoot Gibson's new Universal western feature, "Ride for Your Life," now showing at the Star theater.

This is the first "western" that Gibson has appeared in for several months and it carries the flavor of the west in colorful abundance.

Gibson has the role of a youthful cowboy, romantic but indolent. His sweetheart, ripe with adolescence of romantic and healthful girlhood, does not respond to his attentions as a Romeo. She is thrilled with the thoughts of a gallant young bandit who robbed her of a ring for a keesake. The cowboy is "among those present" when said bandit breathes his last, gives rich milk, Malted Grain, in powder form, makes the Food Drink for All Ages. Digestible—No Cooking. A Light Lunch always at hand. Also in Tablet form. Ask for "Horlick's," at all Fountains. BEWARE Avoid Imitations—Substitutes

This staff took with it into the desert all of the intricate paraphernalia necessary for the photographing of color pictures, the entire production company spending several weeks in camp, as practically all of the picture was photographed in the desert.

"Not only because of the color photography but also because of the dramatic story, which Zane Grey has written, we expect 'Wanderer of the Wasteland' to prove one of the outstanding pictures of the year."

British' Faces Still Set Against Feminine Rivalry

LONDON (AP)—Although another report has been submitted by a commission recommending an increase in the number of women police employed in England, it is pointed out in many quarters that such a recommendation will not be speedily carried out.

The fact of the matter is that although great political and social changes have taken place in England, this is still a country of masculine domination, albeit the women received the vote during the war. What the women must overcome is the traditional prejudice which men have against feminine competition in the various callings of life.

Sir Neville Macready, former head of the London police force, thinks that London alone might usefully employ 200 women police constables, whereas at the present time there are only 110 women on the police force of the whole country.

Although women who are carrying on the fight over here to win recognition for women of all the rights which men enjoy, hail the policy commission's report as a victory, they realize that much ancient prejudice must be overcome before the English "copette" can enter into the fullness of jobs which were so long the exclusive property of the sterner sex.
