Zane Grey Film In Colors Makes Big Hit.

Many people wonder how Zane Grey's story, "Wanderers of the Waste Land," new showing was taken in natural colors. Following is a brief description of how it works:

Two films pass behind the lens simultaneously instead of one in using this process. Trisima separates the red and green of the picture. On one film the reds are recorded and on the other the green. When these are combined in the development of the laboratories in Boston a red filter stimulates everything from the green film except the greens and a green filter eliminates from the red all except the red. The two films are then cemented together so that the finished print shows blues, yellow, orange, gold and straw color as well as shades of red and green.

The process of development has advanced so that there is no running of colors into each other. This technical process is only about two years old, and is advancing so rapidly that when the use becomes more widespread a new technical equipment may be developed in another year.

Harry Carey in An Unusual Role At Sherrys.

If you dislike the usual Western picture, you are in for a pleasant surprise.

On the other hand, if you like Westerns with action and thrills galore, here's the treat of your life. "Tiger Thompson," the new Hunt Stromberg production starring Harry Carey which comes to the Sherry theatre for a two day run today, is said to be as different from other Westerns as "The Lightning Rider," Carey's last picture, was different from the usual Harry Carey feature. Cramped to the brim with action and telling a story of tense dramatic interest, it

Buck Jones Back At Star In All-Western.

The loyal legions of Buck Jones fans throughout the country will be delighted by his return to 100 per cent all-western drama in the new William Fox offering, "Against All Odds," which comes to the Star theatre tomorrow.

By an interesting coincidence, this is also the 100 per cent all-western picture which Edmund Mortimer has ever directed. His first western accordingly is rich in unbacked humor, weird mystery, phantasy and imagination in addition to the standard western "stunt" at which Buck is past master.

"Leatherstocking" Runs Saturday at Matinee Only.

Episode Four.

"The Paleface Law" is the title given to chapter four of the thrilling Patheserial, "Leatherstocking," featuring Edna Murphy and Harold Miller. Paleface law is what Hotty, the religious daughter of mysterious old Tom Hutter, now held captive in Ikenosak's camp, tries to teach the Huron chief and his braves.

Hotty's faith in God's teachings is so great that, undaunted, she goes alone into the Indian camp and tries to teach them to love their enemies and do good to them. This is a difficult teaching for the Indians to understand, when the paleface himself does not live by his law. The climax finds all the white characters of the story in the Huron's camp in a situation of grave danger.

offers something more in a genuine characterization by the star. As a cowboy character, Carey has been going by nature. Carey is given the opportunity of putting in many of the little human touches for which he is noted. When he is called upon to protect a girl whom he has never seen, however, he suffers a strange metamorphosis and assumes all the characteristics of the title.

"Tiger Thompson" is quite the most unusual character Carey has yet portrayed.

"Breezy" Bruce Mason, who has been responsible for many of Carey's best pictures in the past, directed, under the personal supervision of Hunt Stromberg, Comedy, "Jonah Jones."

In Dallas, Tex., they want school children to wear uniforms, so some teachers may suggest straight-jackets.
