The courtroom is crowded, the hundreds of spectators are tense with suppressed excitement. The judge sternly watches for any outbreak of emotion. But everything is so quiet that the dropping of a pin would be audible in every section of the immense room.

The prisoner, a mere girl hugging a baby in her arms, sits beside her mother, tremblingly waiting for the verdict that undoubtedly will spell doom for the charged with murder. There is a single ray of hope for her—in the jury is a woman. Perhaps she will understand.

This is the dramatic atmosphere in which Harry O. Hoyt directed "The Woman on the Jury," a First National picture which is to be the feature at the Arcade theater today. But the courtroom only made in but one of the many spectacular sequences which have been provided by the author, Bernard K. Hurst, whose play ran for more than a year on Broadway.

Stella Breaner is featured, with Frank Mayo playing opposite her. Other notable in the cast are Myrtle Stedman, Robert Rosworth, Henry H. Wallbank, Bessie Love, Margery Gray, Arthur Lubin, Lew Cody, Roy Stewart, Ford Sterling, Stanton Rock, Jean Herriott and Leo White.

Director Hoyt, who adapted Colleen Moore's sensational "Flaming Youth" has proved in this new picture that woman was made for love, to love and to love, yet she must be trusted in return.

Big Sea Thrills In New Ince Film "The Marriage Cheat"

Thomas H. Ince, himself a lover of the sea, has again brought its most thrilling influence to the screen in "The Marriage Cheat," a vivid drama of emotions to which the ocean contributes many thrilling moments, for its setting is on the rugged island of Hull Head in the South Seas.

Spending every possible hour of his spare time at sea aboard his yacht "Edra," Mr. Ince is particularly fitted to make the most of the sea sequences that chance to enter into his productions. And in the production of "The Marriage Cheat," under the direction of John Griffith, every effort was made to make the various sea "shots" come off as thrilling action.

One of the most exciting incidents in the story occurs when the yacht "Edra" is wrecked on a jagged reef as it heaves the shelter of Hull Head. "Detavia Canfield," played by Leatrice Joy, and her lover are put into a life boat and lowered away from the side of the yacht, which is being pounded by the heavy sea and boiling badly. As the members of the crew are bowled over the deck of the yacht, washing everything in its path and forcing the men to relinquish their hold on the ropes, Row first, the lifeboat drops into the ocean, rights itself and with Miss Joy and the baby inside in the bottom of it, is whirled away by the mountainous waves. "Detavia Canfield," emitted by Adolphe Menjou in the picture, is forced to make a thrilling leap into the sea and is struck by a falling sea as he plunges into the ocean.

Another thrilling bit of action falls to Percy Marmont, in the role of "Paul Mayo," lone misadventurer on the island of Hull Head, whose amazing romance with "The Edra" is recounted by the appearance of her husband. Seeing the distress signals from the yacht, he has only one thought—the safety of Detavia and her baby. Shoving a flimsy outrigger canoe into the roaring surf, he jumps in and, single handed and with almost superhuman strength forces it through the huge breakers and out to the wreck.

There are many other striking pictures of the sea in "The Marriage Cheat" and its influence is felt throughout the picture.

Filled with the clearest regard for correctness in details and convincing characterizations, this new First National attraction will be shown at the Star Theater tomorrow.

"The Rejected Woman" Now on at Sherrys Theater.

Three of the most noted institutions of luxury in the world were used in the filming of "The Rejected Woman," a picture which has as its keynote the modern girl's desire for luxury, which will be seen soon at the Sherry theatre. There are Sherry's famous Park Avenue restaurant, the internationally known Ambassador Hotel in New York and the French Line steamship "Paris."

Sherry's set table and entire right to permit Alice Robson, Corred Nagei and Leonora Hughes to make a simple honeymoon party. Likewise the Ambassador Hotel gave the use of a lobby and one of its grandest royal ballrooms for a night while Sherry Park, the picture, got just what he wanted.

The steamship "Paris" was put at the disposal of Distinguished Pictures on two different trips to the port of New York.

By using these three "real" atmospheres is given to the picture, which never could have been obtained in a studio, no matter how expensive the sets. However, to leave everything in keeping, Clark Robinson, art director for Distinguished, has designed a number of artistic interiors for the scenes in the New York City and Long Island homes of the hero.

Concomitantly, "O. Ma, the Rent Taker."

"Shepherd of the Hills" Coming to Arcade Tuesday, November 18.

W. T. Cassell has an outstanding success in his production of "The Shepherd of the Hills" in which W. H. Patton stars in Harold Bell Wright's story adapted from his widely read book of that name.

The play like the story is simplicity itself, and the author has wisely retained all of those homely, natural qualities which have a universal appeal to all classes of theatre goers, but there is a different angle injected making for sincerity which does not fail to convince. "Homer" who sees "The Shepherd of the Hills" at the Arcade theater will never forget the subtle, beautiful tenderness of "Ed-ra" and the quiet dignity of "The Shepherd of the Hills" is a real treat in store.

The engagement is for one night, Tuesday, Nov. 16. So make your plans as you won't miss this performance for "Edra" says it's worth going miles to see.

The trouble about writings is that the people are almost sure to be sure again in a few years.

work, and "The Shepherd of the Hills" Mrs. Patton's best characterization so their many friends and admirers among the theatre patrons have a real treat in store.
