Miss Coolidge Married Saturday

Miss Lorna Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Coolidge, was married at the home of her parents Saturday evening, November 22, to Howard Preston Miller, of New York. The ceremony was performed by Reverend William Cross, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in the presence of about fifty guests. The impressive ceremony was held in the living room of the home of Mrs. A. L. Richardson, 1020 "B" avenue.

The living room was transformed into a flower of beauty. The first place, before which the ceremony was performed, was banked with chrysanthemums and ferns. Cathedral candles cast a mellow glow, forming a fitting background.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was beautifully attired in an exquisite wedding robe of broad crepe satin and lace. Her wedding veil of silk net was held in place by a band of duchess lace and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a shower of rose buds, orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Edith Bragg, of Salem, was maid of honor. She was attractive in a creation of shimmering greenorgette with bandeaux to harmonize. She carried an arm bouquet of pink rose buds and lily-of-the-valley.

Sister of the bride, was the little flower girl and was adorable in an apricot chiffon costume. She carried a basket of daisies and rosebuds. Clifford Brown, of Salem, acted as best man.

The ceremony was followed by an informal reception. Receiving with the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cox. Dispensing hospitalities at the handsomely appointed supper table were Mrs. William Ash and Mrs. Albert Thomas Hill, assisted by Misses Marjorie O'Brien, Mabel Herstinger, Mina Ash and Irene and Louise O'Connell.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for a wedding trip to various cities of California, returning to make their home in New York. Mrs. Miller wore for her going away costume a dress of ecru and brown tulle with ruffled tulle and hat to match with a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Miller is a graduate of the University of Oregon, a member of the honorary fraternity Phi Beta Kappa and the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Kansas and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity. He is now associated with The Charles Scribner's Sons Publishing company as educational editor.

The out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Ravenscroft of Wallawa, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown and Miss Edith Bragg of Salem, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dobbin and C. L. Caldwell of Union, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lyle Palmer of Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Watkins were hosts at a charming dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hill Friday evening, honoring Miss Lorna Coolidge and Howard Preston Miller, whose wedding was an event of Saturday. The twelve guests seated around the beautifully appointed table composed the wedding party of Miss Coolidge and Mr. Miller.

After a delicious dinner was served the evening was spent at bridge.

Mrs. Elmer Stoddard was hostess to the club Saturday afternoon at the Country club. An excellent luncheon was served at one o'clock after which the afternoon was spent at bridge with Mrs. Lee Bouvy winning high honors for the club prize and Mrs. H. M. Bay winning the guest prize.

The Riveria Parent-Teachers association met Friday evening at Lane Chapel and a very enjoyable evening was spent. This meeting was especially for the fathers of the children in Riveria school and a large crowd was in attendance.

The evening's program follows: Songs, "Out Where the West Begins" and "Love's Old Sweet Song" by seventh and eighth grades; dialogue, "Thanks Goose," by Wesley Paeger and Evelyn Hoehne, members of the fourth grade; songs "Mr. Duck and Mr. Turkey" and "Jack Frost" by the first grade; recitation, "Little Town of Tale Ho!" by Francis Lewis; song, "Tooth Brush Drill" by fourth grade; recitation, "The Birth of Thanksgiving" by Frank Anderson; dialogue, "I have a little snow and a little rain" by second grade; dialogue, "How Thanksgiving Comes to November" fifth grade; address by Reverend Lapham; short talks by G. S. Birnie and Superintendent A. V. Hampton.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program.

Friday afternoon, November 21, the Greenwood Parent-Teachers association were entertained with an interesting program of songs and readings given by the children of the school. Mrs. E. P. Moosman very beautifully told the Christmas

Friday afternoon, November 21, the Greenwood Parent-Teachers association were entertained with an interesting program of songs and readings given by the children of the school. Mrs. E. P. Moosman very beautifully told the Christmas story and illustrated her talk with lantern slides which were reproductions of many of the great masterpieces. "Lerath's Adoration of the Shepherds," Raphael's "St. Anne Madonna," Hoffman's "Christ in the Temple" and Sord's "Last Supper" were some of the pictures shown.

A short business meeting followed the program and plans for a costume and art cabinet were discussed. Mrs. Green, music supervisor for Greenwood and Riveria schools, presented the association with a check for $31.50, which is half of the proceeds of the opera given recently by the two schools.

The other half will go to the Riveria Parent-Teachers association.

The class for Bible study, formerly meeting with Mrs. Harriett Macdonald, will meet tomorrow, Tuesday, and hereafter, at 2:20 o'clock at the Neighborhood club rooms at the public library. It is important that all those intending to study with this class should attend this meeting, as the first lesson of a series on "The Sacred Scriptures of the Bible" will be presented. The International Sunday School lessons are being studied in their deeper symbolic meaning. Visitors are always welcome.

The twenty-ninth birthday anniversary of R. P. Burnett was the inspiration for a reunion at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Otto Pieper, at 2902 North Fir street recently. Thirty-three guests were present and an enjoyable time was spent. At noon a buffet luncheon was served.

Meeting the Great And Near Great at 10 Downing Street

LONDON (AP)—Robert Lloyd, the gray-haired doorman who has ushered the great and near-great in and out of the door of 10 Downing street for many years, is being retired for old age. He is 67, and his head is full of memories and impressions of most of the figures who got into Europe's spotlight in the days before, during and after the World War. It was in the war days, when the vigorous Lloyd-George occupied the prime minister's house, that the doorman of No. 10 found the most exciting moment of his life. Of all the prime ministers for whom he opened the door, he liked Lloyd-George best.

"I revered him," he said.

"When Mr. Lloyd-George was prime minister we were on hot fenders all the time. I was constantly being hit by field marshals, generals, admirals, ambassadors, and other distinguished visitors."

"Marshal Joffre was always good humored. Marshal Foch seemed kindly, but was always in a hurry. General Smuts was charming. He always shook hands with me. I recall Signor Mussolini arriving, too. He burst into the vestibule and, snaking me cordially by the hand, expressed his pleasure at meeting England's prime minister. 'I had to tell him he had hold of the wrong man.'

"The first time the Prince of Wales came to lunch, he dashed in with: 'Hello, portier! Where do I put my coat? Here, leave it on your chair, will you?' The Duke of York was more serious.

"The way in which De Valera, Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith arrived with guards on their backs, was quite new."

Armistice day, according to Lloyd, was easily the most exciting he ever experienced. Crowds packed the short narrow street in front of the house, calling for Lloyd-George. He came out and spoke to them from the steps, but the growing crowd was not satisfied, and after the little Welshman appeared at a window and talked to them again.

When Grandfather Was A Little Boy

EVERY fall there would come a day when his mother would say to his father, "John, it's time to see about the children's shoes."

Shoes were matters to reckon with in great-grandfather's family. As in many other families of the countryside, calves had to be killed and skinned. The skins were taken to a tannery across the river, and in due time young John would set off with the leather to the cobbler to have his measure taken.

Old Sam, the cobbler, was a friend of the family. They knew him. They knew his work. They knew the quality of the leather they had furnished him. They could have estimated pretty accurately the time young John's shoes would wear him.

Those days are gone forever. No longer do you know personally the makers of your shoes. Your clothing, your food, your furniture, your household utilities are produced by men and women you will never see.

That element of confidence, however, which in former days came from personal contact of neighbor with neighbor and friend with friend is still present.

Nowadays, advertising is the bond between manufacturer and consumer; between merchant and patron.

Through advertising, maker and dealer build with you their reputations.

Through advertising, they make a bid for your friendship.

To them, your friendship is essential, and to assure it, they see to it that their goods are as advertised.

By reading advertisements, you KNOW where and what you can buy with confidence.

Noblemen, Mechanics Sit in Swede Chamber

STOCKHOLM (AP).—Nothing short of an American lily can compare with the newly elected personnel of the second chamber of the Swedish Riksdag for variety of occupation and social status. The list of members contains more than 50 different titles to describe the pursuits and positions of the 230 persons constituting the full membership.

The Social-Democrats gained enough strength to dictate a new cabinet headed by the veteran statesman Hjalmar Branting, who has twice before been Social-Democrat premier of Sweden. Among his cabinet members are P. V. Thorsson, minister of finance, who rose from a shoemaker's apprentice, by his present place at the king's council table. Per Albin Hansson began his career as a grocery boy and is now minister of defence.

But the stories of obscure beginnings are no more fascinating than a peep at the titles by which the present members of the second chamber describe themselves. They show blacksmiths and iron workers side by side with admirals and university professors, farm hands, shoemakers and stone masons, rubber workers with noblemen, governors, army officers of high rank, prominent lawyers and judges. No less than 72 describe themselves as proprietors of farms. The list contains 20 editors, 11 teachers and professors, nine carpenters and cabinet-makers, four locomotive engineers and firemen and several other railroad employees.

Other occupations selected at random from the list are as follows: mechanic, chaplain, baker, miller, glass blower, clergyman, gardener, mail carrier and accountant. Of the three women members one is a trained nurse, one a photographer and one sets herself down as "wife." There is one baron, one count and several other noblemen of Sweden's bluest blood.

If he advertises it, he knows it's good!
