LA GRANDE ROBBERIES CONTINUE

Unfortunately, nothing was secured simply because nothing was there to be stolen. The place was entered by a simple method—sawing or drilling a hole in the door and then opening the obstruction to entrance without difficulty.
Caution Necessary.
With no one knowing just where the next haul or attempted haul will be, citizens are beginning to pay heed to cautionary measures and try to make burgling a more strenuous task.

Porch lights are being left on more than in the past, doors are rarely left unlocked or windows unfastened and in some cases, even the inside lights are not turned out. Simple protecting steps of this kind certainly make one less likely to be the next to report to the police that a ring, a watch, some money, or whatever it may be, "was stolen last night."

TRADE INCREASE REPORTED

WASHINGTON (AP).—An almost uniform distribution of increases in the foreign trade of the United States which was noted during October was indicated by detailed figures for that month made public Tuesday by the commerce department.

While the imports were approximately $219,000,000 against $209,600,000 for October, 1923, all the geographical divisions of the world with the exception of North America showed substantial increases in their share of the selling trade to the United States. Exports from the United States which amounted to $527,000,000 against $529,000,000 in October, 1923, went in larger quantities to all parts of the world except to Asia where there was a small falling off.

PLAN IGNORES TWO COUNTRIES

BERLIN (AP).—Pan-European suggestions are constantly being put up at once Europe, but nearly all the men and women who want Europe to federate and become a sort of United States of Europe have yet schemes as to the exact way the federation should be effected.

Count Coudenhove-Kalergi, the Austrian publicist who has recently attracted much attention by his writings on the subject of Pan-European and was a speaker in the recent session of the international peace congress in Berlin, does not think that England and Russia can be members of a successful Pan-European organization.

His scheme for pacifying Europe is quite unlike that of the late Sir Max Waechter, who recently died in London. He was known for years as the old man who never failed to talk with kings and politicians throughout Europe about the advisability of abolishing customs barriers in Europe and federating all European states, much after the manner the United States is federated, with an international police force to keep order instead of competing armies, which were keeping the nations poor.

Count Coudenhove-Kalergi thinks the interests of Europe are too varied for all the nations to be brought together. He regards the British empire as a group which must stand quite alone because of its ramifications and power. Russia is another widely-spread empire which he believes must stand alone. Pan-American is another group he would have stand alone. So his Pan-European would be Europe without the British Isles and Russia.

League of Nations advocates are especially hostile to the Coudenhove-Kalergi plan, which is frankly critical of the League of Nations on the ground that it is too much centralized to be operated with success. It is the idea of Coudenhove-Kalergi that the various groups or sections into which he would divide the world could cooperate and maintain much better relations by standing alone than if they were all consolidated in one group.

Eastern Asia, that is Japan and China, would be a separate group under the Coudenhove-Kalergi scheme.

Palestine Looks Ahead To Railroad Expansion

JERUSALEM (AP).—In few ways has the English administration lent itself more to the economic development of the Holy Land than by the development of its railway system. With a standard gauge line from Egypt through Gaza and Lud in the coastal plain to Haifa, at the foot of Mount Carmel, one of the chief seaports, and another from the port at Jaffa, crossing the one at Lud, to Jerusalem, the chief economic centers are well connected with Egypt and the outside world. The Haifa-Damascus road and several short branch lines make most of the country accessible by rail.

A report is now current that negotiations are progressing satisfactorily for the construction of a line from Haifa to Beirut along the coast passing through Acca, Tyne and Sidon. A line is already in operation as far as Acca, and only two miles more need be built to connect by rail one of the largest seaports in the Near East, Beirut, with Haifa, Alexandria and Port Said.

There is also talk of constructing a line across the Syrian desert connecting the Haifa-Damascus railways with Baghdad.
