Pendleton Fires Numerous.

PENDLETON, Or.—During the cold weather of the past few days, the fire department has been called to several homes on still alarms to put out fires that have started through carelessness. Fire Chief Ringold has issued a statement asking that property owners exercise every precaution against fire, while stoves and furnaces are being fired up to capacity to fight the cold.

Pupils Give Programme.
PENDLETON, Or.—The city schools closed Friday for a Christmas holiday of two weeks. In the high school the closing was marked by a special assembly in charge of teachers. Several one-act plays were presented.

Many teachers have gone home for the holidays, and others will attend the annual convention of the Oregon Educational Association, Austin Landreth, principal of the high school, has been appointed a delegate to represent high school teachers, and Agnes Carter will represent grade teachers.

From Hell's Kitchen to Heaven
For Richard Dix.

From Hell's Kitchen to Heaven is a long, long journey, even as the crowd files, but Richard Dix makes the trip in a few seconds in "Manhattan," his first starring picture for Paramount. One minute Richard is strolling along the sidewalk of New York's famous madame district. A yeggman taps him over the head with a blackjack and the next minute our hero is groping through clouds to a massive silver gate, where St. Peter sits on a rainbow, dais and challenges all comers.

Stage directors have often grappled with the problem of depicting the Heavenly threshold, but it is doubtful whether the scene has ever been portrayed more graphically than in this motion picture. The background is the vast vault of the sky, with the golden rays of a rising sun spreading out radiantly from the far horizon. Clouds drift across the foreground, dissolving and changing shape.

In the foreground, at St. Peter's knee, is a huge book. A close up reveals the book is filled with the age and "omnification" of the applicant. Upon this information, St. Peter either admits the newcomer to heaven or consigns him to outer darkness.

More than two hundred names were written in the book that was prepared for the scene. They are not fictitious names, all belong to electricians, camera men, scene shifters, carpenters, painters and mechanics employed at the big Paramount studio on Long Island.

If the records in St. Peter's big book may be taken as authentic, most of these persons will have a much longer time getting to Heaven than Richard Dix did. Jacqueline Logan has the leading feminine role in "Manhattan," which will be the feature at the Star Theater today. Gregory Kelly, George Seligmann, Gumbo Smith and others appear in the all-star cast.

The story is a romantic action-drama of New York by Jeffrey Parnot. R. H. Burnside directed.

Gloria Swanson has fallen in love. Nobody knows the lucky fellow's name but he answers to the name of "Billy." He is a staid young chap and an English as Yorkshire pudding.

Gloria herself will tell you that it was a case of love at first sight. It was a rainy Sunday during a recent trip to London and she was sitting at her window in the Carlton looking down the Haymarket. In a high-powered car he sat straight, calm and dignified. In a moment, Gloria says, she realized she had met her fate. She hurried down into the street but when she reached it the car had gone.

She was heart-broken. For the next two days she talked of nothing but the young English aristocrat she had seen in the motor. She must find him. Some one suggested advertising in the papers. For the next three days her suite in the Carlton was the scene for a steady stream of visitors. At last she was rewarded. Into her sitting room walked not the gentleman himself, but his brother. His long grey hair and soft grey beard were identical with those she had seen from her window. She rushed to him and threw her arms around him. "You are going to America with me," she whispered. "I shall call you 'Billy'!"

Billy wriggled his whole body with joy. He has no tail for he is one of the finest specimens of old English sheep dog ever brought to this country. Following his recent arrival with his mistress on the Lythian he went directly to her country place while Miss Swanson returned to the Paramount Long Island studio to make "Wages of Virtue," her new Allan Dwan Paramount production which opens at three days' run tomorrow at the Grand Theatre.

Bon Lyon (courtesy of First National Pictures) has the leading man's role opposite the star. Norman Trevor and Ivan Linow also have prominent roles in the strong supporting cast which includes Joe Moore, fourth and youngest of the "movie moores," Armand Cortez, Adrienne d'Ambricourt and Paul Panzer.

"Border Legion," New
Zane Grey Film,
Coming to Star

The "Old West" has come back! Once again in the far North country where Zane Grey wrote the novel "The Border Legion," cowboys in picturesque garb ride through the great stretches where wire fences have not come.

Once again the tinkle of spurs and the creak of saddle leathers break the hazy hush of midday. Once again, in a clod of just that darkness the sun, great herds of cattle move through the sagebrush wilderness with the steady rumble of a thousand hoofs.

Once again the rolling hills bear the shrill "ooo-oo" of the cowboys, riding herd with one knee thrown nonchalantly over the saddle horn. The old west was reborn for "The Border Legion," in locations personally selected by Zane Grey. Far in the North country, a selected east of Paramount players headed by Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Charles Ogle, Rockcliffe Feltous and Gibson Gowland, brought to life the characters that lived long ago.

Approximately 100 minor players, chiefly cowboys, take part in the spectacular production, directed by William Howard.

"The Border Legion," which opens at the Star Theater on Friday was filmed true to life. The story, adapted to the screen by George Hull, has to do with the activities of a band of ruthless outlaws who preyed upon settlers and gold towns in the early days of Idaho.

A replica of one of the great cattle drives of the early days is a striking sight. Here, in perhaps, one of the greatest of Zane Grey tales, produced as is fitting such a story, with a cast that approaches perfection, Moreno and Miss Chadwick have featured roles, and others, besides those already mentioned, include Charles Ogle, James Corey, Edward Gribbon and Lake Cowgry.

Smuggling Plays Part in Big Film at Sherrys.

The story of "The Miracle Maker," Leah Baird's latest release for Associated Exhibitor, contains some thrilling scenes which were filmed in Chinatown. The story tells of how Chinese are smuggled into the country in open defiance of the immigration laws.

Miss Baird, in her latest photoplay, has brought out all the sordid details of this traffic in human souls, and the scenes of the streets in Chinatown and its opium dens and dives form some of the thrilling material for the picture. Though Chinatown appears a surface of silk and splendor, there is really a nation of slums that is brewed in its underground recesses. There is not one-half of San Francisco's Chinatown that is known to the police. Though the actual shops and houses are known to them, there are subterranean refuges for criminals of all sorts that will never be known. The picture is thrilling throughout.

Comedy, "Hot Heels"

Fred Thomson And "Silver King" In Picture.

Wonderful athletic feats—even more unusual than the many which have made him famous—feature Fred Thompson's "Thundering Hoofs," the first of his new series of F. L. O. outdoor dramas. In this story Thomson battles barehanded against an enraged bull in a Mexican bull-fight arena, where he saves his horse, Silver King, from certain destruction on the horns of the big animal. Silver King has been stolen by the villain and sold to the Mexicans for slaughter in the arena. The blindfolded horse is just standing, trembling awaiting the push of the bull when Thomson hurries into the ring, leaps down from box to box, swings from a horizontal bar into the arena, and gives battle to the bull. Charming little Ann May, in the role of a Spanish scowder, leads a capable cast of players in support of the world's champion athlete. Others in the cast are Charles Matton, Bill Lowery, Carrie C. Ward, Fred Huntley and Charles de Bevenne.
