TIGERS DROP FIRST GAME OF TRIP

WALLOWA FIVE IS VICTOR IN SNAPPY TILT

Real Holdout

Here's Earl McNeely, Washington outfielder who drove in the run that decided the 1924 world series with the Giants. It was the first for Washington that has hit no doubt has caused McNeely to boost his price for the coming season as he is already being asked for a $100,000.

Reports received here from Wallowa state that the Wallowa high school team defeated La Grande high in the first game of a series of three up to the bridge line. Tonight the Tigers meet Joseph and Saturday night play at Enterprise.

The game at Wallowa, which ended 20 to 22, according to reports, was fast and furious from start to finish, with the invaders showing up stronger than when the teams met in La Grande. The advantage of playing in a home town, which Wallowa enjoyed, offset any increase in strength the Tigers displayed.

JOHNSON SEEKS COURT RELIEF TO STOP STORY

NEW YORK (AP)—Walter Johnson, veteran pitching hero of the last world's series, Thursday asked the supreme court to issue a restraining order enjoining the publication of a series of sensational articles purporting to be a history of his baseball career.

The star of the Washington twirling staff also served notice on the courts that he would sue for $50,000 damages and for an accounting of receipts from publication of eight of a projected series of 12 articles dealing with his life.

The veteran pitcher alleges the series is a "sham, a fraud and a fake." His injunction plea will be argued before the supreme court by his attorneys, Hyman Bushel, next Thursday.

Published in Many Papers. Johnson's complaint recites that since November, 1924, the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and many other papers in the United States have been publishing articles in the series. The articles, written by Lillian Barker, represent Johnson as having related his experiences to the writer for purposes of publication. The complaint charges that the Thompson service sold the series on the representation that they had been related to Miss Barker in his own words and that the papers had the sole right to dis-
