This brought him the title of "Trust Buster Kellogg." His conduct of these cases also won him something of a reputation as a "progressive" or insurgent Republican.

As a senator, however, Kellogg evidenced few signs of his old trust-busting vigor, and none at all of progressivism. He was a regular with the regulars.

And his petulance with inter-views during this period which preceded his defeat for re-election to the senate won him in capital circles the alternative nickname of "Nervous Nellie."

President Coolidge has made it plain that he does not expect the change in his secretary of state to result in any change of foreign policy. And it may not, consciously.

But unconsciously, so far as the White House is concerned, it seems inevitable that the Department of State under Frank B. Kellogg will not be quite the Department of State it has been under Charles Evans Hughes.

Intentionally or not, the personality and the temperament of the new incumbent will pave the way to a change. Whereas Hughes dominated the department and was supposed likewise to dominate the executive's ideas on foreign affairs, Kellogg is cast to play a part in a less self-assertive way.

Instead of the "Hughes policy" in foreign affairs, which was impervious to penetration by outside influences, we will now have an "administration" policy, in which will be blended not only the best thought of the secretary of state, but also of the president and other leaders in the party and the administration.

Not the least interesting of the tests of influence which Kellogg must face will be that exerted by the new chairman of the senate committee on foreign affairs, Senator Borah.

Borah's square chin was offset by Hughes' square whiskers. Kellogg, without squariness, either of chin or whiskers, may be less able to withstand Borah's assaults.

STAGE UPSETS; TOT BRUISED

WALLOWA, Ore. (Special)—Mrs. Martin and three children of Troy, narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday evening when the Troy-Wallowa stage on which they were passengers was upset a couple of miles east of town on the Whiskey creek market road.

The thawing weather had caused the snow to melt from the road, and in an effort to travel at the edge of the road to get the sled onto some ice and snow, the sled slid off the road down a steep embankment, turning over. As the sled and box landed bottom side up, Mrs. Martin and children were underneath a part of the load.

One small girl was painfully bruised and suffered a badly wrenched back. The driver, Ray Knight, and another passenger riding in the front seat were able to jump as the sled upset, escaping without injury. It is stated that the mother and other two children also escaped with slight bruises.

The weather has been quite warm here for the past few days and as a result the greater part of the snow on the roads in the valley has melted leaving the roads bare. The nights have been quite chilly, freezing the water, until the roads are a glare of ice in many places, making travel quite difficult with anything except sharp sled teams.

Guy Downing and George Deam have been busy the past week mowing wood at Mr. Downing's home on Dry creek.

Mr. Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Downing were called to Joseph Tuesday by the serious illness of Frank Fisher who is suffering from an attack of appendicitis.

Farmers Hauling Wood Several of the Leap farmers have been busy the past several days getting up their winter's supply of wood.

George West was in the Leap section the first of the week looking for fat hogs.

Plans are being completed for entertaining the large number of grangers expected to be in attendance at the meeting of the Wallowa County Pomona Grange which meets here February 7.

Rev. Geo. H. Fosbe, lecturer of the county organization, returned the first of the week from Joseph where he was assured that a large delegation from that section would be here. A good attendance is expected from other parts of the county.

The entertainment committee has been successful in securing some good speakers for the occasion. Including Prof. Hurd of the O. A. C., and Mrs. Jones, chairman of the H. E. C. committee of the Oregon State grange.

A stumpy program is being prepared. Members of the Hurdgrange, grange, have consented to contribute some musical numbers. Also some special numbers have been promised from the South Fork grange of Lostine.

Radio Program Enjoined. Local radio fans have been enjoying some bits of the entertainment from radio station 7CD Wallowa, Ore. Conducted by E. C. Waugh, a program put on by this station Tuesday evening, was heard clearly in several parts of the country. With the continuation of regular programs, station 7CD promises to become one of the most popular entertainers to listeners in—

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING RECOMMENDED TO MEN SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Co-operative wool marketing associations, such as are maintained in some sections of Oregon, were strongly recommended by speakers at the annual convention of the National Wool Growers' association here Thursday.

"Only through co-operation can the growers escape placing themselves at the mercy of the wool buyers," said H. A. Lindgren of the Oregon agricultural extension service.

WHEAT AVERAGE LARGER. WASHINGTON (AP)—Increased winter wheat acreage in France has brought the total area in 19 northern hemisphere countries to 77,729,000 acres on the basis of reports to the department of agriculture. Last winter, 75,500,000 acres which were planted.

The 10 countries which included the United States and Canada, represent more than 40 per cent of the total wheat acreage in the northern hemisphere, except Russia and China.

The French area is placed at 12,329,000 acres against 12,892,000 last winter.

The department has not received complete reports from Italy, North Africa and India which normally plant more than fifty million acres to winter wheat.

BAKER REPORTS DISCOVERY. PARIS (AP)—A journeyman baker claims to have found a formula for bread dough the use of which will keep the loaves in an edible condition for months or even years.

Recently laboratory experiments have proved that the loaves could be kept relatively fresh for 12 months while the inventor, Jean Mathis, says this period will be extended to two years.

dition and will cause constant anxiety and uncertainty regardless of which in the controversy briefly predominates.

"The United States government has made the very worst income tax imposture so imposing in fact that regardless of whatever merit taxing of incomes possess human disposition rebels when the words are mentioned.

"All of this being true and well established by experience let us as loyal citizens, who desire to see the state advance, turn to other extreme and make Oregon exceptionally attractive, not only to settlers whom we must look for further development of our agricultural lands, but also to people who have money to establish manufacturing enterprises and other industries.

"Already we have several hundred eastern people possessing property in the state upon which they pay taxes. Income and inheritance taxes entirely eliminated we will claim these men as permanent residents, for most part, and they will bring enough wealth into the state which can rightfully be taxed as property, to more than offset the amount now received by the state from inheritance tax.

"Argument that it will attract the idle rich may be partially true, but suppose it does. Observation teaches and has proved that men with wealth do not stay idle, except in rare instances, and even then their wealth does not remain idle for long. Shortly after leaving in Oregon one investment will be made. Other investments will follow and soon the establishing of industry after industry will be the result. This is exactly what is going on in Florida now and we are better situated here because Oregon has much more to offer than has the state of Florida.

"Taxation is a fixed overhead expense, no matter what the politician may say. Here in Oregon this fixed expense must be met as in other states and the way to lessen the burden is to attract more people with wealth and prosperity to assist in paying this established fixed expense.

The Time is Ripe. "With our splendid road system nearing completion which transforms the greater portion of the state into a highly improved park with cities and towns of the state brightened up for the tourist, why not go a step farther and make it an inviting place for the wealthy people to come and locate permanently among us. This will soon result most favorably upon the farming section. Property will become active and begin to change ownership, and it is my prediction that Oregon will soon be better off than a taxation point of view than we are today, besides achieving a prosperity in business and industry the like of which has never before been witnessed in the entire north-west."

Resolution Given. The resolution introduced by Senator Dennis: "Resolved by the Senate of the State of Oregon, the House of Representatives jointly concurring that article IX of the constitution of the State of Oregon be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to be numbered 14, to read as follows: 'Section 14. No tax upon inheritance or upon the incomes of residents or citizens of this state shall be levied by the state of Oregon, or under its authority.'" son, Claude, 17, succumbed to spinal meningitis while in the service. Mrs. Haisten was the first La Grande "gold star" mother. Claude's death came in 1917 and in the same year Mr. Haisten and his family moved from here to Red Rock, Arizona, after two decades spent in the Grande Ronde valley.

Daughter Killed. All went well for awhile and Mr. Haisten's health, which necessitated the move to Arizona, improved steadily.

But in 1923 the finger of death again pointed at the family and his daughter, Juanita Haisten, was killed in a street car accident in Phoenix, Arizona.

That left Mr. and Mrs. Haisten and one daughter in the family, and the mother had lost her sense of sight.

Then the final tragedy in Mr. Haisten's life, as was mentioned before, was written in bloody letters Wednesday night.

Was Prominent Here. While a resident of this city, the deceased was prominent, not only in the business world, but in municipal politics. For several years he served as councilman when this city was governed under the mayorality system.

He is survived by besides his widow and daughter, a brother, H. B. Haisten, now county coroner of Wallowa county with his residence at Wallowa.

MAN HUNT FRUITLESS. TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Sheriff Bailey, in charge of the hunt here for the slayers of Postmaster Hastings of Red Rock, Ariz., shot as he sat in his office, reported that efforts to find trace of the men had been unavailing.

According to reports, two tramps went to the store Haisten owned and in which the postoffice is housed and asked for something to eat. Haistens refused and the tramps left.

Later, when Haistens was sitting in the postoffice, the report of a gun was heard outside. Haistens was shot in the abdomen.
