27 YEARS AGO

Daily Morning Observer, January 24, 1898.—Word comes that the body of the then unknown man that was found and buried last fall below The Dalles on being exhumed and examined by his wife and other acquaintances, proved to be the body of Fredrick Foster. Foster was long and favorably known in this county.

J. M. Church is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Cutler, of Utah, who will personally manage the construction, and when completed, the operation of the sugar factory in this city. The size of the building will be 80 by 200 feet, two stories high, to be built of structural steel. This does not include any out buildings.

Druggist Newlin has returned from his Portland visit.

Henry Hug purchased of John Vaugn 80 acres of land on the north fork of Clark's creek.

A. J. Goodbrod, the Union fruit man, is registered at the Sommer house.

Freeman Ladd, the pioneer valley farmer, was in the city last week with a span of little driving ponies which tipped the scales at 1450 pounds each.

The Elgin train experienced some trouble in getting to Elgin Saturday on account of the snow. It was found necessary to leave the train within about 17 miles of Elgin and buck the track clear with the engine, which then returned and proceeded with the train.

G. F. Couch, of Island City, agent for the Public Coast Elevator company, bought two large lots of wheat Saturday. The two lots amounted to 23,000 bushels, the larger portion of which had been stored at the Conley mills.

The Grande Ronde Advocate, edited by Messrs. F. S. Clark and C. T. McDaniels, reached us this week as a successor to the already advocating republican principles.

The republicans of this city made their initial move for the coming campaign Saturday night by electing officers of the club. J. A. McWhirter was chosen president; H. T. Williams, vice president; O. O. Kincaid, secretary. The delegates chosen to attend the State League which meets in Portland Feb. 1, were J. M. Church, W. J. Lindsey, J. S. Mathison, C. S. Dumphey, M. Baker, John Young, Davis Bay, A. Jackson, F. O. Steincamp, Jas. Palmer and J. A. McWhirter. Over 50 representative republicans were present. After passing a resolution urging unity and harmony within their own ranks, the opposing who do not indorse the national republican platform as adopted at St. Louis.

Hunt's Letter

of Stone's appointment, one thing seems sure. He will bring new vigor and force to its physical makeup.

Stone is still famous at Amherst as the most stalwart center rush in that college's football history.

Unlike Chief Justice Taft, who has built without muscular frame, Stone has bulk plus muscle. His broad shoulders and barrel-like chest aren't padded with fat. As he walks, he swings along in a loose, powerful stride like an amiable mastodon.

There seems to be no effort behind the stride, but—try to stop him. His mere physical momentum is terrific.

There always seems to be some senator who keeps a diary. In the present Senate it is Henry Ashurst of Arizona. Some day Ashurst's daily chronicle of the doings in the upper house may fit in many missing links in the chain of history.

Back in the first Senate, under President Washington, William Maclay of Pennsylvania wrote his daily dozen lines to record interesting phases of official life.

Since the season of official dinners is now on in Washington, it may be interesting to note what Maclay wrote in his diary about a presidential dinner in Washington's day.

"Went to the president's for dinner," he wrote, under date of Aug. 27, 1789. "The president and Mrs. Washington sat opposite to each other in the middle of the table; the two secretaries, one at each end. It was a great dinner, and the best of the kind I was ever at. The room, however, was disagreeably warm.

"First was the soup; fish roasted and boiled; meats, gammon, fowls, etc. This was the dinner. The middle of the table was garnished in a tasty way with small images, flowers, etc. The dessert was—first, apple pies, puddings, etc.; then iced creams, jellies, etc.; then watermelons, or submotions, apples, peaches, nuts. It was the most solemn dinner I ever sat at."

MAGGIE P. AMES

UNION.—Died, in Oakland, California, January 7, 1925, Mrs. Maggie P. Ames, age 68 years.

Maggie Pelham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owens Pelham, was born at Malone, Clinton county, Iowa, in 1847, she was married to George W. Ames and started as a bride across the plains in a prairie schooner. They landed in the Grande Ronde valley in 1862. It is said they were the first white folks to cross the river where Cove now stands.

They purchased a tract of land that suited them, and today Union is built on a considerable portion of the Ames land. They homesteaded what is now the E. Draper place in High valley, and later bought an island near it. They engaged in farming and stock raising and Mrs. Ames was as active in the work as her husband until death separated them in 1904, when Mr. Ames passed on. Mrs. Ames continued her residence in Union until eight years ago when she went to California to spend her remaining days with her family. Mrs. Esther Metcalf, of Portland, Mrs. Ames was one of the early pioneers of Union. She was a great worker, endured many hardships and privations to carve a home here and was rewarded with great prosperity. She was a good Christian woman and a faithful member of the Adventist church for the past 30 years. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. McDaniel, of Parkdale and a number of nieces and nephews, Mrs. W. M. Cockrell of Elgin, Oregon, being one of the nieces.

Mrs. Ames was to have been united in marriage to the wife of Rev. Woodruff, but owing to the illness of Mrs. Woodruff, Mrs. Ames went to the Woodruff home to care for her. Mrs. Woodruff died January 9.
