Drones May Be Efficiently Lazy by Science's New Guide

WASHINGTON (AP)—A guide by which lazy people can figure out just what motions are effort-saving and what positions will throw them out is provided in a report by Dr. Francis G. Benedict, director of the Carnegie Institution's Nutrition Laboratory.

By a series of tests conducted at the laboratory in Boston and described by Dr. Benedict in a communication to institutions headquarters here, the amount of energy required for various motions of the body has been determined on the basis of the amount of heat each produces.

The corner loafer, Dr. Benedict says, might better stay at home in bed, since it costs 10 per cent more energy to stand up than to lie down.

"The heat produced in 24 hours in a human body," the report continues, "is made up, first, of an irreducible minimum going on all the time to maintain the fires of life at a normal rate, when in complete repose in bed. To sit quietly in a chair costs for practically no increase, but there is an in-

American Legion

OMAHA IS GETTING READY FOR LEGION'S BIG MEET.
By M. E. JAY.
OMAHA, Neb. (Special)—A brilliant electrical parade with "The American Legion" as the theme and costing approximately $50,000, will be one of the innovations of the Legion's big annual convention October 5, to 20, inclusive, at Omaha, according to an announcement made by the Omaha national Legion convention committee.

This spectacle will be put on by the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, who each year present the "March of the Middle West" at Omaha, and whose fame as royal hosts has spread to the four corners of the land.

"Nothing can express the scope of the carefully worked out plans and the spirit, which we are confident will make the 1925 convention the greatest in the history of the American Legion," said Everett Buckingham, chairman of the committee.

With $45,000 already in the bank and an additional $75,000 pledged by Ak-Sar-Ben with an ideal central location, with a convention committee consisting of the city's most influential men, Omaha is tackling the problem of fitting a multitude, which it is expected will reach 100,000, with vim and vigor.

Instead of the usual one parade, there will be three, each of which will be worth coming to Omaha to witness. Major General George H. Dunning of the Seventh Corps area promises to mobilize the entire area in Omaha to stage one of the greatest military spectacles ever held in America.

There will be auto tours, bonfire, quoit and cow riding stunts at the stockyards, athletic contests, band concerts, and the Ak-Sar-Ben carnival which will be developed into a street exposition

In the spring of 1862 Captain Grant asked Mrs. Sheffield to take into her home as boarder himself, Lieutenant Phil Sheridan, Captain George H. McLean and two others. Who she objected that she would be unable to care for so large a household, Captain Grant replied:

"Oh, that can be easily managed. I shall detail one of the soldiers who is a good cook to do the cooking, and besides, I have an excellent cook book and am a pretty good cook myself. I am sure that we shall manage very well."

Grant missed his wife very much at this time and frequently expressed a desire to resign from the army and live with his family, which some time later he did. After the potato failure, Grant and his business associates bought all the chickens for 20 million around and chartered a vessel to ship them to market in San Francisco. The ship returned with the news that the chickens had died on the way, however, thus deal-
