Sixth Victim of Train Wreck in Kansas Dead

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Kenneth Hunter, an army private stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., died at a hospital here, bringing the list of fatalities as the result of a collision between a Missouri Pacific passenger train and a freight train Saturday near Neuman, Kan., to six.

Bunker was one of four enlisted men who were riding the blind baggage of the passenger train No. 104, southbound from Omaha to Kansas City, when it crashed head-on into the freight standing on a siding.

Corporal Charles Hall was killed outright and Private Dillon S. Cousland and J. A. Painter were dangerously injured. Cousland is in a local hospital with his right arm severed at the shoulder and Painter's left hand is off.

New Airplane Shaped Like Fish. CLOYDEN, Eng. (AP)—A new airplane, to carry eight passengers at 113 miles an hour, is being tested here. The fuselage is shaped like a gigantic flying fish, the wings being like elongated fins and the rudder looking like the tail.

Interesting Claims Made For New Radio Invention

BERLIN (AP)—An instrument called the wireless ticker caused great interest at the recent Berlin radio exposition which, incidentally drew some 400,000 visitors during the two weeks it was open.

This ticker is the invention of an Italian, Maurice Compere. He calls it the "Comperes" method, which can produce numberless different combinations of frequencies and transmit them to numerous stations, separately and secretly, and an ordinary wave generator. The receiving machine includes a wave receiver which is connected with a so-called resonator, and again connected with a typing apparatus.

Not only will local theatergoers see a bigger production of this story than even the stage play could be, but they will have the privilege of seeing Arthur Hohl, one of Broadway's newest favorites, in the same role he created for the stage production. Others in the cast are Mimi Palmer, Florence Dixon, Helen Frazer, Barbara Moores and George Lessey.

Lincoln Finds His Way to Films—Coming to Arcade.

Abraham Lincoln lives again in the motion picture version of the life of our sixteenth President. When ex-United States Senator Cornelia Cole met George Billings, who impersonates the great man, he exclaimed: "You look so much like Lincoln that I was shocked when I first saw you. I last saw President Lincoln the afternoon of the day he was assassinated, and you look enough like him to be him."

La Grande Theatres

Biggest New York Stage Plays Coming Here Soon.

Local theatergoers need no longer cast envious eyes towards New York city and blame the miles that lie between here and there because they are unable to get a glimpse of each season's big Broadway stage successes. Motion pictures and the enterprise of the management of the Arcade and Star theatres are doing much to make these regrets unknown with each new season.

During the past year, more than ever before, have the big motion picture producers kept their eyes on Broadway stage successes, bought the screen rights to the best of them and they will be seen at these theatres during the new season just begun. One of the first of these will be the William Fox special production of "It Is The Law," which begins an engagement at the Star Wednesday.

Senator Cole was one hundred and one years old September 17, 1923, and for many years he was a close personal friend of Lincoln, both before and after his election to the presidency.

Mr. Billings is the same height as Lincoln, has the same gait, mannerisms, voice, temperament, physiognomy, and same gentleness of spirit. He is modest, not at all starchy, and hasn't the least idea that he is a great artist.

His application to play the part

27 YEARS AGO

Daily Morning Observer, February 9, 1898.—Messrs. C. W. Nibley and D. Eccles, the capitalists who have agreed to build and operate the best sugar factory, arrived last evening, and met with the board of managers of the La Grande company.

Sabatini Sea Tale Thrills Crowds At Sherrys.

Vitagraph affords the screen another availing, roaring picture of romance with its adaptation of Rafael Sabatini's "Captain Blood," at Sherrys. The story is replete with lively incidents developed in spectacular fashion.

The story deals with an English physician transported to the Barbadoes for giving medical aid to a rebel. His hearing attracts the notice of Arabella Bishop, niece of Colonel Bishop, governor of the island, and she prevails upon her uncle to buy him as a slave.

Interested at the treatment accorded the prisoner on the island, an escape is plotted and successfully carried through when they overpower the crew of a Spanish galleon and take possession of the ship. Capt. Blood leads the pirate crew.

The lawless crew battle their way through numerous exciting incidents and are finally successful in saving the governor-general of Jamaica.

In recognition of his service Capt. Blood is restored to favor and replaces Col. Bishop as governor of the island.

J. Warren Kerrigan, as "Captain Blood," gives a convincing portrayal while Jean Polge lends charming support in the role of Arabella.

The United States has about 25,000 miles of concrete road, but it seldom reaches to where you are going.
