PARK PEOPLE ENJOY PARTY

THE PARK (Special)—Sunday has proved to be a most enjoyable day for a series of neighbors giving an informal visit to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lay at the old Martin place. The delightful welcome guests began to arrive early in the forenoon, and about the time for the "rats" to be spread out, the surprised host and hostess found that their table had to be used twice in succession in order to provide for all. The day passed in playing various games among the youngsters, while the mothers cared for their babies, visiting, chatting and exchanging recipes for good things to eat. The men talked about the old and talked much on the residents of the day.

George McInnes, bachelor of a real society to the Baker market. Clarence Vanorder expects to have all his year's supply of wood cut and hauled soon. He is working at it between logging and chum times. Bert Van was helping George McInnes load the stack day. Lydia Vandover reports that her children had a swell time recently but are well now.

A long letter was received from Harold E. Watts, an old time resident here, who had the old Brown ranch at one time. He is now at Hill City, Idaho, and reports some hard struggling in that country. Among other things he mentions, "I have been here six years and I had three good crops with poor prices and three poor crops with good prices. Suchers around here are biting at the tail of some best producers. They are getting a lot of cheap land down in the Wyoming way for the raising of beets. If they would tell me that they were raising polar bears, I might take a chance. It's the country where two years ago, horses from all white standing." He intends coming on a visit next summer if they don't charge us over $2.25 a pound for my seed wheat," he writes. Here Harold Watts was a hard worker and a good farmer and neighbor and it's the wish of all that he will lay better in the future. News came from Walt Hart, once owner of the old Martin ranch here, who is now running a logging business in Idaho, is doing splendidly there. His old friends and neighbors here are glad of his good fortune. Another letter from Kenneth Vanorder, Highland Ave., to his sister, Elva, telling that he and his wife are doing fine and that he is in a fine country full of good people over there, much like they are here. It is gratifying to hear that Kenneth has such a fine position over there. It was too cold last week for Kenneth Vanorder to transport the several boxes of bees from the Wankley Ranch at Big Creek, so the bees will remain there until softer weather. Coyotes Fight Deer. Jack Hunter, Jr., son whose three coyotes had a three fight with a large buck deer. The place was tramped for about 200 feet in diameter—a circle where they had run the buck at bay. Much hair was in evidence but no blood. The buck had apparently left refreshed, for the long jumps in the snow indicated that he was much alive. This happened not far from the paddock ranch at the forks of the road. Jack was working on the telephone line along the creek from his home. No cougar tracks have been seen yet this winter. There are signs of lynx and bobcats back of the Thompson place north
