Income Tax Facts

No. 28

Under the "information at source" provisions of the revenue act of 1924, all persons "in whatever capacity acting" are required to report to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue payment to others during the taxable year of $1,000 or more. Information returns are carefully checked with the individual return to the taxpayer to who such payments are made. Thousands of delinquents, and additional taxes aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars have been discovered at the result of this audit.

The act requires report of payments of "interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income."

A separate return of information for each employee whose salary or wage for 1924 was $1,000 or more is required of employers. Payment for overtime, fees, commissions, bonuses and the fair value of food and lodging furnished as part payment for services should be included. Heads of branch offices and subcontractors employing labor, who have the only complete records of payments therefor should file the returns directly with the commissioner. When both main and branch offices have adequate records, the returns should be filled by the main office.

The requirment is not limited to periodical payments, but a single payment of $1,000 or more must be reported. Real estate agents are required to report payments to landlords. Fraternal organizations and associations are required to report payments to officers. Banks are required to report interest paid or credited to a depositor, if the total during the year equalled or exceeded $1,000.

Forms for filing information returns may be obtained at offices of collectors of internal revenue.

The collectors, however, are not authorized to receive these returns which should be addressed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Sorting Section, Washington, D. C.

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE By Condo

La Grande Theatres

"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" Pleases Audiences.

Mary Pickford has turned to sheer romance — the romance of chivalry—to present us with her most stupendous production—and in selecting this novel of Charles Major's, rich as it is in story interest and saturated with an atmosphere redolent of the glamorous Elizabethan period, she gives us a picture which will be lasting in its impressions. "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," at Sherrys is a fitting successor to "Rosita." But because it carries a wider appeal as a novel through being a best seller for years, it should meet with instantaneous response wherever shown.

Miss Pickford has expressed herself in a wide variety of roles, but none have approached that of Dorothy Vernon in allowing her the full shading of her art. She might have stepped from the pages in her whims and caprices — and there are many moments when she scales the heights of emotion. Pathos, anger, surprise, temperamental playfulness, despair, in fact all the registrations of dramatic art are in her compass of expression here. It is her triumph of triumphs.

The star has entrusted the direction to Marshal Neilan, responsible for one of her earlier triumphs, "Daddy Long Legs." And he, in taking Waldemar Young's compact and straightforward script, has visualized it so that the many conflicts are ever dominant, though the plot is subordinated — as it should be—to the characterization. After a slow start, the picture picks up momentum and finishes with whirlwind speed — yet the action here is perfectly comprehensible because of every sequence being clearly outlined. Neilan has the fine assistance of Charles Rosher, than whom there is no better photographer to create rich camera effect.

The many characters stalk through scenes of pageantry and revelry. We look upon stately mansions and mediaeval castles—all thoroughly picturesque. We have thrills when Dorothy rides atop a massive wall to reach her lover—and again when she saves the queen's life. We have intrigue and suspense, humor and conflict all the way—and we follow it with unabated interest despite its obviousness. Miss Pickford's support is exceptionally splendid in Clara Kimball Young's portrayal of Queen Elizabeth — a rich revelation of character—and Anders Randolf as the pompous, blustering father gives a compelling study—one comparable to Holbrook Blinn's study in "Rosita."

Now that they have found Leginska, missing New York pianist, we hope radio singers soon learn what's become of Sally.

Fashion Show Is Featured In "Born Rich."

What is one of the most vital factors in the production of a motion picture? A mere man would never be able to answer that question no matter how many "guesses" he is given. As for the women—well, we'll supply the answer.

It is the star's or the leading woman's gowns.

An incredible amount of time and study is given to the dresses to be worn in a picture, and there are several good reasons why producers are obliged to go to such pains. In the first place, the women in the audience would feel "cheated" if they were not treated to the sight of several stunning creations of the modiste's art. Secondly, those in charge of overseeing the costuming must never lose sight of the fact that fashions change almost overnight.

The latter problem is one that causes many headaches. Months elapse between the time a picture is started and the time it is shown on the screen. It would never do for a producer to show his star in gowns that have gone out of style in the meantime. Therefore he sends out scouts to the centers of fashion to learn what the styles will be six months or a year hence—and during the intervening period, Striking a balance, they are able to design gowns that will be up to the minute at the completion of the picture—and many times far in advance of the showing of those styles in the fashionable shops.

As a result of this condition the motion picture actresses often are the first to appear in the new styles, and their appearance on the screen in a new gown automatically brings it into "vogue."

While necessary to the success of a picture, this custom is an extremely expensive one, and it was especially so in the case of "Born Rich," a First National picture, now showing at the Arcade theatre, in which the leading roles are portrayed by Claire Windsor, Bert Lytell, Doris Kenyon, Cullen Landis, J. Barney Sherry, Frank Morgan, Maude Turner Gordon and Jackie Ott.

Every gown worn by Miss Windsor in this Garrick Pictures offering was especially created for her by the most noted modiste in New York City. Being a member of the set which was "born rich," the character has to dress the part; hence the reason for this action.

The result of all these efforts is a veritable fashion shown at the Arcade theatre Tuesday.

TIMBER TRACT BOUGHT

ROSEBURG, Ore.—Negotiations pending for several days between the Glendale Lumber company and C. A. Becher of Redwing, Minn., were completed when the lumber company purchased 2255 acres of timber land on McCullough creek, near Glendale. This makes approximately $150,000 worth of timber which the company has purchased in the last four months as a part of its new development plan. The company will soon move its mill from Fernvale to Glendale and will construct about four miles of logging railroad to its holdings on Windy creek.

The company was organized in 1900 with a cipital stock of $25,000. This has been increased to $200,000. Before the death about a year ago of D. N. Snyder, president of the company, had completed extensive plans for improvements and the development of holdings and his outlines are now being followed by his heirs and other stockholders.

Electricity Robs California Cooking of Its Drudgery

SAN FRANCISCO (AP).—More than 10,000 farmers' wives in California cook by electricity, according to figures compiled by the largest power distributing company in the state.

In the interior valleys, where wood, coal or oil is not readily available, cooking is done to a large extent by electricity.

Statistics indicate that there are in the state 197,504 rural light and power consumers, and they are served by 16,513 miles of distribution lines. Practically all the farms are lighted electrically.
