Teachers in Cold North Dream of sunny island.

HONOLULU (AP)—The influx of applications of mainland teachers for position in the Hawaiian schools this year is growing daily into proportions that lead Superintendent W. E. Gibson, of the department of public instruction, to predict that the number will exceed that of last year, when there were 200 applications from mainland teachers for 175 vacancies. There will be only about 100 vacancies this year and preference will be given, as in the past, to graduates of the territorial normal school or the University of Hawaii.

Turks Beginning to Miss Services of Foreigners

ANGORA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey is considering the establishment of a new system of education to be based along French lines, and the first steps in this direction already have been taken. It was decided last year to wipe out the schools conducted by the mosques, or religious men, of which there were some 500, with 12,000 pupils, and now a proposal has been put forward by the minister of education to set up a new university at Angora, the city destined to be the political, military and educational headquarters of the country. All local private schools are to be brought under a central jurisdiction. There is evidence here of a desire to encourage foreign capital to enter Turkey; the need of outside help in reconstruction is recognized. Prejudice against foreigners is lessening, for political leaders have begun to learn how difficult it is for Turks to accomplish many tasks that foreigners at one time did with ease.

SHOW DELIGHTS BIG AUDIENCE

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" shown at the Arcade theater last evening, not only was of the high standard of road shows Meyers & Ford have booked lately, but it exceeded former ones.

As a ninth producer, the 1925 version of McManus' famous Maggie and Jiggs strip, more than lived up to advance notices and the large but mostly not to mention the gales of laughter that swept the theater time and again throughout the two acts of the show.

Jiggs was portrayed by Walter Vernon exceedingly well and Ray Parsons' impersonation of Dinky Moore ran a close second. In fact, every character — Maggie, Kitty, Patsy Moon and the rest, was handled to perfection.

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" is accompanied by a mirth chorus that is both pleasing to the eye and versatile in accomplishment. Practically every member appeared in solo numbers that demonstrated their ability in dancing, singing and providing amusement and entertainment alike. The costumes were very well planned and added much to the general effectiveness of the show.

Another feature that cannot be overlooked is the vocal solos of Fred Robinson, (Kitty), Louie Vernon (Maggie), Dorothy Remington (Ladly Eugenia), all excelled in this respect. Nina Taylor, too, dancer, furnished several delightful numbers.

To cap the climax, the final scene entitled "Give Me a Man," was one of the snappiest and best of the evening.

The entire production was staged by Bert Angleton. Music was furnished by the Arcade orchestra, led by Kenneth Gekeler.

Now Anette Kellerman has quit the stage. She is going to concentrate all her energies to give to crippled children a training to rebuild physically weak bodies.

"I loved theatrical work so well I kept delaying fulfillment of my early promise," says Miss Kellerman. "But now I am definitely through with the stage to devote my life to helpless children."

Little Billy Campbell of Los Angeles hurried Miss Kellerman's retirement from the stage.

Billy couldn't play the games his chums played as both legs were in steel braces. But he was always chosen at umpire.

One day he came to Miss Kellerman, downcast. No longer was he to be umpire. Politics within the gang had named another, Billy, it seemed, was doomed to the sidelines.

"Now is the time," said Miss Kellerman. That night she refused two theatrical offers, each promising $5000 a week salary. She would take Billy, and other little cripples, and help them to become strong in body.

Out in a broad valley of the Vergo hills, 14 miles north of Hollywood, is an old Spanish grant known as the "Hidden Rancho." Miss Kellerman purchased 112 acres of scrub and cactus.

There now she is building pools and clubhouses, tennis courts and dormitories.

In the pools children will be taught how to gain control of inefficient limbs. The course in training starts with having the children learn suspension in the water.

Then a slight agitation of the water is effected, increasing in later days until the legs move of their own volition. Having learned to suspend and move the legs in the water, actual swimming is then encouraged, giving strengthening exercises.

Miss Kellerman has utilized a downtown pool pending completion of "Hidden Rancho." Already she has some pupils and the results have been so marvelous that she is contemplating starting such schools throughout the country.

"Four years' curative progress made in three months," pronounced a doctor of one child at Wooding, who came to the school barely able to walk is improving so rapidly that in less than two years physicians believe she will be playing tennis and with no trace of a limp left. Every case, say those who have watched Miss Kellerman's efforts, shows 50 to 75 per cent improvement within a comparatively short time.

"I do not want this effort to be considered charity," says Miss Kellerman. "Of course, the little boys and girls who come for the swimming curative courses will not be charged a cent."

"But the school, and others to be established, will be made to pay their own way."

This will be accomplished by water shows which Miss Kellerman will conduct through a woman's club which she will operate in connection with the schools.

"I am more proud of this than of anything I have ever done," Miss Kellerman says.

"It is wonderful to watch the dying of that infernally complex which accompanies affliction. The child who can do one thing well—swim in this case—loses this feeling of inferiority."

"And this, I feel, is something to be proud of."

Senator Bursum, New Mexico, denied he improperly used his influence before a government agency in view of efforts to sell American cattle in Mexico.

A favorable report on the nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general was ordered by the senate judiciary committee.

PROGRAM OF EVENTS FOR MEET READY

Decorations in the hall are now being put up under the direction of Harley Richardson of Richardson's Art and Gift shop. Mrs. J. J. Burbridge is preparing the menu which is to include much delicacies as baked ham and lifted apples, round chicken and all the entrees. At the bottom of the menu announces "bottled goods" but hastens to add that bottled goods will consist of Whistle, pop or some similar beverage.

CITY FIGHT COMMISSION ORGANIZED (Continued from Page 1.) then be made to the boxing commission, which will have final authority to decide whether or not a license shall be granted to the promoter desiring to stage the match. In this way the program must pass through the hands of nine persons before finally being oked. It is believed that by following this plan strictly, real matches are assured La Grande fans.

Another matter that will be entirely in the hands of the boxing commission is the appointment of referees for all matches.

Mr. Day, sr., tried to hurry his trip to the west coast by going by airplane to Kansas City, but found he could make better time by rail. "I think the girl is temporarily dazed," he said as he was preparing to leave. "She must be out of her mind to do such a thing."

The younger Mr. Day was prominent in the younger social circles in Chicago. His father is president of the Life Underwriters' association and is prominent in social work. The marriage of his son last September to Bernice Lundstrom, daughter of Mrs. G. B. Lundstrom, Chicago, was a surprise to both families. Mrs. Lundstrom is now with her daughter in California.

Washington railroad offices report that interest in the event is nation-wide, that the demand for tickets is such that special reduced rates are to be in effect.

Railroads in the Trans-Lake association are selling round-trip tickets for one and a half times the price of a one-way fare.

The other roads have not yet made definite announcements, but by regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission they must act in uniform in such matters.

Applications for reservations are pouring in to the city's various hotels.

Those received so far include a request from Charles D. Hines, national committeeman for New York state, for a reservation of 25 rooms and seats at the inaugural parade.

Willis B. Dye, of the Indiana State Republican Committee, has asked for hotel accommodations and seats for 125 persons.

The recent Scott divorce case brought the prohibition scandal in Washington to a climax. The real drys realize that they must suppress drinking congressmen who vote dry. Against those who vote wet, the drys can't do much in the former's own constituencies. But the drys who drink are vulnerable.

The drys are sending thousands of letters to voters in the districts the wet drys represent, saying, in effect:

"Do you know that your congressman drinks? Well, he does. It's up to you to put a stop to it."

This campaign is getting results. The wet drys are in a state of hysteria. But aren't they also somewhat sore on the dry drys? I'll say so.
