Many La Grande Folks Are Showing How to Avoid Needless Suffering.

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden.

Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many La Grande people. Profit by this La Grande resident's experience:

Mrs. Mary Campbell, 1524 Monroe St., says: "I know from experience that Doan's Pills are a reliable remedy for kidney disorders and general physical depression. Whenever I notice any symptoms of kidney complaint coming on a few Doan's overcome the trouble."

FOUR YEARS LATER, Mrs. Campbell said: "I have never found anything to equal Doan's for attacks of kidney complaint."

La Grande Theatres

"Man Who Came Back" Based on Stage Success.

William Fox has produced another picture from a nobly successful novel and stage play in "The Man Who Came Back" which opens a three day run at the Arcade theater Thursday. Directed by Emmett Flynn, the picture was made by a talented cast of well known screen performers and it is said to be one of the best pieces of work ever done by the versatile director.

Originally a novel by John Fleming Wilson, "The Man Who Came Back" was dramatized by Jules Eckert Goodman and produced by William A. Brady, in 1917. Mary Nash and Henry Hull had the leading roles and the play ran on Broadway for 467 days. In Chicago it played for twenty-one weeks. In another production Conrad Nagel had the title role and his success was equally as phenomenal.

In the Fox picture George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackall have the principal parts and are supported by a capable cast including Cyril Chadwick, Ralph Lewis, Emily Frazar, Harvey Clark and others well known to the American theater-going public.

The story deals with the notorious hoodlum of a New York millionaire who eventually becomes a dorelet in Shanghai. His fall and rise, the latter influenced by a woman, make a narrative which offers a wealth of romance and all of the action necessary to a first rate picture. According to advance notices the Fox production promises every opportunity.

"The Painted Lady" Coming to Star For 3-Day Run.

"The Painted Lady," the William Fox special production featuring George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackall which is booked to open at the Star theater on Friday for a run of three days is more than an adaptation from the darsily restful Saturday Evening Post story of Larry Evans.

It's Life Itself. Its South Sea love, fierce hate, romantic, painted passion and vengeance, "shot" from the scenario by Thomas Dixon Jr., under the brilliant direction of Chester Bennett.

Luther Smith, played by George O'Brien, he of the million dollar smile, loses the smile on returning from a voyage, finding his mother dying of grief, his little sister Alice dead after being ruined by a brutal captain, the Sea Wolf.

Vowing vengeance, Luther ships for the South Seas as first mate with "Captain Sutton" of the schooner "Valture," not knowing he is the Sea Wolf. After a fight with the captain about the very Bible given him by his poor little sister Alice, Luther quits the "Valture" at the first South Sea island. Here in a languorous South Sea cabaret, he sees "The Painted Lady" and she him. It's love at first sight, the girl of his dreams meets the man of hers.

Under the Southern Cross, embraced by amorous breezes, he declares his great love. "The Painted Lady" has not quite lost her soul. However, complete her to tell him her unvarnished painted past.

Innocently sentenced to jail, unable to keep honest employment as an ex-convict, hounded by hunger into paying the price of virtue for a meal, she was driven by the world to become "The Painted Lady." As such she is cruising the South Seas with Roger Lewis, millionaire clubman, on his yacht Louisa.

The finish, climax on climax, is terrific. Few plays have such a punch following punch. All the tense, heart-throbbing, nerve-tugging surprise scenes.

Luther, entering an opium den of dorelets, spies his "painted lady" cowering on an auction block in the Sea Wolf's fangs! He sees red, with blood-shot eyes.

An inhuman fight follows; wild animal against beast of prey.

"So This Is Marriage" Is a Photoplay You Should Not Miss.

Now and then comes along one of those films of which it seems reasonable to say to everyone, "You can't afford to miss it." And that, as this reviewer believes, is most certainly the case with the Habera Henny production "So This Is Marriage," at Sherry's last time tonight. This picture, from the original

The fact that the radio can transmit the voice only, but not the gestures, they contend gives an erroneous impression of the artist and thus interferes with his popularity to such an extent that his commercial value is lessened.

Prohibition Aids U. S. Efficiency. Say the Welsh Manufacturers.

CAIDIFF (AP).—Prohibition has increased the efficiency of American workmen by 20 percent, says a report by Sir and Co. entry, Ltd., tinplate manufacturers, on the state of the Welsh tinplate market in 1924. The report adds that this factor must be taken into consideration if it ever comes to clear-cut competition between the American and British tinplate workers.

"It is fashionable in some quarters to laugh at prohibition," the report continues, "but this calculation seems to suggest that, rather than a laughing matter, it is a factor of very real importance."

story by Carey Wilson, is an ultra-modern one, dealing with the marital difficulties of Peter Marsh (Conrad Nagel) and Beth Marsh (Eleanor Boardman), and the influence of a bachelor student of books—and women—Daniel Kianin (Low Cody).

The young wife is gay and frivolous. When Peter mildly protests against her extravagances, she retorts:

"Why don't you earn more money, other men do?"

She finds comfort in the companionship of Rankin and runs to his home for comfort when her husband has treated her roughly after hastily taking her from a restaurant where, after many previous experiences of the sort, he has heard her criticized for her extreme manner of dress, and her irresponsible ways.

Finding that Beth really loves her husband, Rankin shows her the error of her ways by reading to her from the Bible the story of David and Bath-Sheba. Mr. Henley tells this on the screen in natural colors by the Technicolor process, using hundreds of vividly gaphed extras in the pageant and feasting scenes which form the amazingly beautiful background for the title. No one, whether he is a regular motion picture-goer or not, should fail to see this sequence. It makes one realize more than ever, if that's possible, for having eyes to see with.

This is a Louis B. Mayer presentation through Metro-Goldwyn. The scenario was done by John Lynch and Alice D. G. Miller. Others in the cast are John Patrick, Clyde Cook, Claire de Lorez, Shanon Day, Jack Edwards, Estelle Clark and Thelma Morgan.

Canon Takes Piling at Church Music and Would-be Singers

YORK, Eng. (AP)—A great deal of church and chapel music is "beneath contempt and even immoral" and "appeals to all that is low," Canon Bell, presenter of York Minister, declared in an address on religion and music.

"I believe God," he added, "does not want people to be so constituted as to think that they can slog when they cannot. I believe we can play golf or cricket to the glory of God, but I do not believe it is any good trying to sing a song to the glory of God when we cannot sing at all."
