ARGENTINA IS RADIO LOVER

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The radio craze has grown to such proportions in Argentina that one can hardly find a house without radio antennae on its roof. It is estimated that the country's population of only 9,000,000 is now buying radio outfits at the rate of nearly $2,000,000 annually. American manufacturers probably sell the majority, but there are also in the market German, English, French, Italian, Belgian and Argentine radio sets.

The Radio Club Argentina, organized about a year ago, by amateurs and experimenters, now has a membership of 900. In Buenos Aires, there are four broadcasting stations, one of which is mutually maintained by a group of importers, dealers and local manufacturers of radio material, who organized for the purpose the Asociacion Argentina de Broadcasting.

A radio exposition to be held in Buenos Aires in May or June has been projected by the Radio Club Argentino in order to raise funds for a club house and experiment work. They are inviting exhibits from all countries.

Madden Mine Paying Again.

MARSHFIELD, Ore.—Out of a mine old in coast mining history there is now coming new riches in gold and platinum. The Madden mine, in litigation some years ago, worked in early days as a heavy producer of gold and from which one man made a fortune, was opened last year by a syndicate, the Crystal Mining company of Portland, with Jack Rohner as chief engineer. During the winter the mine has been paying at the rate of $2 a yard of the black sand, in gold and platinum. Rohner said they will have the mine operating at a 200-yard-a-day capacity before long.

Pedestrians Fight for Rights

LONDON (AP)—Recent proposals to permit automobiles to pass through the London streets at greater speed than at present has brought about organization of the Pedestrians' Protection Society. Members of the association will oppose vigorously any steps to abolish "that important factor of public safety, the speed limit of motor vehicles," as has been sugested in pending legislation.

EDITORS TO HANDSET LINE

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Ore. (Special)—The meeting of the State Editorial association at the University of Oregon which will be held in connection with the annual Newspaper Conference, is scheduled for 9 a. m. Friday, March 13. Conference dates are March 13 and 14. The regular session of the conference will begin Friday at 11 a. m. when delegates hold a joint meeting with the Pacific Northwest Circulation Managers' association.

A. E. Voorhies of the Grants Pass Courier and A. L. Mallery of the Oakland Tribune will report to the editorial association on the plans made for the entertainment of delegates at the annual association meeting in Grants Pass next summer. Reports will be made on the program planned for the Pacific Coast conference of representatives of the Washington, Oregon and California associations, to be held in Portland in April.

Gordon J. Taylor, editor of the Molalla Pioneer, will give an analysis of acts of the last legislature of importance to the press.

"Why Not a Field Secretary" is a topic scheduled for discussion. G. Lansing Hurd, manager of the Corvallis Gazette-Times, will make the opening remarks.

Responses from publishers, editors, advertising men, circulation managers, and printers in Oregon indicate that the conference will attract the largest number of delegates in the history of these meetings.

Death Duties May Wipe Out Ancestral Estates

GLASGOW, (AP)—The great estates of England, Scotland and Ireland are doomed to be done away with eventually owing to the death duties of landowners collected by the estate and which sometimes total as high as 60 percent. The landlords protested vigorously at first but in vain and in most cases have resigned themselves to their fate.

Speaking before the Glasgow Conservative Club, where he was entertained on the attainment of his ducal jubilee, the Duke of Montrose said he doubted that the rising generation realized the transition which is taking place in regard to their future.

"We are running very fast in these democratic times," he said, "and the big estates and ancestral castles which were a feature of my younger days must gradually disappear in virtue of the death duties as they are now assessed. The landlords' rights are being curtailed every day, but nevertheless I can not help but think that I have lived during the most prosperous time of this old country of ours. Possibly we won't miss the old castles, after all."

Gates Sawmill Reopens.

MILL CITY, Ore. — The Gates Mill company, whose sawmill is located at Schroeder, about a mile east of Gates, started the plant for the first time in about two years, and it is planned to operate steadily from now on. The planing mill has been running about a week and logging operations began about ten days ago.

DRAINED LAND PRICES HIGH

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., (AP)—The state of Florida is reaping a harvest of gold from the vast tract generally designated as the Everglades, as a result of drainage operations begun there more than a decade ago now half completed.

Land that formerly was covered with shallow water and supported a growth of saw-grass and other semiaquatic vegetation and considered practically worthless at one time, now is looked upon as a bargain at anywhere from $500 to $1,000 an acre. W. J. Conners, Buffalo, N. Y. newspaper publisher, who already owns vast tracts of the land, recently offered the state $50,000 for 51 additional acres fronting on Lake Okeechobee, the second largest fresh water lake in the United States, which lies at the head of the Everglades territory.

The Everglades came to Florida from the United States under the provision of an act of Congress of 1850, know as the swamp and overflow land grant act, on condition that the land be drained by the estate. Prior to 1905 the territory, consisting of 6,000 square miles, remained in its primeval condition and little was known of the soil, flora or fauna. Seminole Indians were the sole inhabitants, having their home on the edge of this vast inundated prairie and subsisting on hunting and fishing in the interior.

As the drainage operations proceeded, however, and adventurous pioneers began to settle here and there over the land, it was discovered that almost any crop produced anywhere under the sun could be grown on the land that was being made tillable, and the scramble for possession of farm sites began and has never subsided. The soil consists principally of muck or peat.

Reclamation of the land is authorized by state law and is being accomplished by canals and other drainage works, the entire cost being bore by the levy of drainage taxes upon the lands being reclaimed.

The drainage operations are in charge of Fred C. Elliot, civil engineer of wide experience, who saw service in construction of the New York City subways, later in the mining districts of the west and of Mexico. He has been chief engineer of the Everglades drainage district since 1912 and knows every mile of the territory, which is located in the southern portion of the Florida peninsula.

In undertaking to drain the land, says Mr. Elliot, Florida has embarked upon the greatest reclamation project ever begun by any state in the union. "The turning of this expanse into land means adding more than 6,000 square miles of territory to the state, which is equivalent to annexing a strip of land 60 miles wide and 100 miles long or an area greater in size than the states of Rhode Island and Connecticut combined," he declares.

Approximately 500 miles of canals have been constructed to date in carrying on the work, representing a total excavation of earth and rock of 63,221,122 cubic yards. Fourteen masonry locks and dams have been constructed and other important work accomplished, at a total cost to date of approximately $10,500,000. Locks and dams in the canal make navigation possible for boats as long as 100 feet with proportional width and draft. Boats may cross the state from the Atlantic ocean to the Gulf of Mexico via the canals and Lake Okeechobee.

The health of people living in the Everglades is said to be as good as anywhere else in the country.

Lane Officers Seek Man.

EUGENE, Ore. — Sheriff Taylor and his deputies are looking for J. Van Burton, who, it is alleged, has left the city after having issued a string of bad checks. He is charged also with the theft of an automobile, which he hired for a few hours.

Two at Hood River Sentenced.

HOOD RIVER, Ore. — Judge Fred W. Wilson applied the maximum sentence of a year in the penitentiary to Norman Miller, who pleaded guilty to a charge of non-support of his wife and infant. Jack Crawford, middle-aged ex-Wasco county resident, was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary. He pleaded guilty to making moonshine in the upper valley.
