Mae Murray As "Circé" At Sherrys for Last Time Today.

The combined efforts of Mae Murray, Vicente Blasco Ibanez and Robert Z. Leonard have produced a remarkable motion picture in "Circé the Enchantress," which opened last night at the Sherry's Theatre. Last time today.

Mae Murray is the star of "Circé the Enchantress" and she does some of the best work of her career in this production. Ibanez, who is the author of "Circé the Enchantress," has written a highly dramatic and yet romantic story which provides Miss Murray with one of the best vehicles she has had. Robert Z. Leonard is the director and he has shown rare skill in his handling of the picture.

Mae Murray enacts a triple role. The mythical "Circé," the "artless, sweet convent girl," the temptress, pleasure-seeking coquette; Miss Murray plays them all with the feeling only known to the great artists of the drama.

Miss Murray's supporting cast includes James Kirkwood, William Haines, Charles Gerard, Thomas Ittekketa, Gene Cameron and Lillian Langdon.

The 2-reel comedy "Hull and Sand" is way above the average.

Telephone Girl Is Champion of Matrimony Game.

It is not generally known, except in the innermost circles of the telephone profession, that telephone girls make the most desirable wives.

This was the closely guarded secret discovered in making a personal survey of more than 2,000 New York telephone girls in connection with "Daughters of the Night," the high speed picture dramatization of the great little American telephone girl coming to the Star theatre on Wednesday.

Telephone girls marry quicker than is the case of young girls entering any other occupation. Not mathematically, of a group of many 1,500 girls each who become telephone operators, stenographers, office assistants and sales girls, the better girls will easily win the marriage championship for speed and numbers. At least, this holds good in cities.

There's a reason for that! Applicants for jobs as operators in the nationwide telephone service undergo a most careful process of selection. They are scrutinized, examined and tested for qualities, the possession of which is bound to make them preferred favorites in the matrimonial race.

Neatness, of course, and all other virtues, are prime requisites; but further, quickness, alertness,

Vehicle for Local House.

"The Gaiety Girl." Mary Philbin's spectacular new starring vehicle, a Universal-Jewel adaptation of L. A. R. Wylie's novel "The Inheritors," comes Wednesday to the Arcade theatre. The new picture, the first in which Miss Philbin appears in the modern garb of a girl of today, follows her sensational successes in "Merry-Go-Round" and "The Highway," in one of which she appeared as a Viennese girl, in the other as a wait of New York's old Bowery.

The new picture is a story of an aristocratic English girl, forced by circumstances on the stage, tricked into an odious marriage, and delivered from her predicament by one of the strangest tricks of fate ever seen on the screen. The gay night life of London, the hectic revelry of the Gaiety girls, and other spectacular embellishments mark the action of the story.

A strong cast supports "The Merry-Go-Round Girl" in the new picture. Joseph J. Dowling, who played the title role in "The Miracle Man," appears as her stern grandfather, descendant of a race of kings; James O. Barrow, veteran character actor, is seen as the scrivener of the ancient family; Gene Darmond, famous for her beautiful gowns, appears as the dashing

Royalty's Neighbor Plays Piano On 102nd Birthday Anniversary
 INGOLDSTHOPE, Eng. (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Tylden, a neighbor of King George and Queen Mary at Sandringham House and York Cottage, celebrated her 102nd birthday recently by playing the piano from memory for the benefit of scores of her relatives and friends who had assembled to pay their respects.

Two years ago, on her 100th birthday, Mrs. Tylden was visited in her home by three queens—Queen Mary, the queen of Norway, and Queen Alexandra. She and her family have long been known in the district, where her husband, the late Rev. William Tylden, was vicar of Dersingham, near here, 50 years ago.
