FEMALE THUGS REPEAT CRIMES

LONDON (AP)—The most habitual offenders against the laws of Great Britain are women, according to the report of the committee of magistrates and the directors of convict prisons for the past year. No fewer than 7,253 out of the 8,801 women received into prison in the year had been convicted before, or 82 per cent, compared with 62 per cent of the men. More than 1,000 women had been convicted 11 to 20 times, and 2,586 more than 20 times.

The report also shows that the total number of prisoners received and sentenced was 53,219 compared with 69,822 for the preceding year, a decrease of 2,616. At the convict prisons 456 persons were sentenced to penal servitude in 1923-24 as against 495 for the previous year.

Referring to the general conduct of prisoners in all establishments, the commissioners say there is no doubt that there is a different tone in the prison population of today, due partly to the fact that the majority of the persons received are of a less violent type than formerly, but also to a change in the attitude of the authorities towards the prisoners which tends to bring about a better spirit in the prison communities.

Inventors Encouraged To Submit Good Ideas

LONDON (AP)—The simple expedient of offering prizes of $50 has resulted in the discovery that there are 152 amateur inventors in England whose inventions have a commercial value. The Institute of Patentees offered prizes for the best inventions in several classes, and about 500 inventions were submitted from which four major prize winners were selected. The 152 inventions will be submitted to various manufacturers.

The major prizes were awarded to the inventors of a bottle with a lid that will not fall off a portable fire; a microscope based on the theory of relativity for gauging the speed of machinery; and a machine for bending rods and tubes. Sir William Grey-Wilson, head of the institute, is an inventor of renown and his home is full of his handiwork. One of the most ingenious is in the chicken house. A few grains of corn are placed in a trough, the chickens peck at the corn, a spring is released which opens the door of the house.

Justice Without Mercy Rules in Spanish Court MADRID, Spain (AP)—An 86-year-old of the municipal corporation of Bejar, a town near Salamanca, has been sentenced to imprisonment for periods aggregating 201 years. The man was accused of falsifying public documents, and his punishment was fixed by the law courts of Bejar at a little under 21 counts with a fine of $150.

The same court not long ago sentenced a former mayor to a series of terms of imprisonment totaling 394 years and 273 days. Both men have begun serving their full sentences.

CALL BIDS FOR SECOND ST. SEWER

(Continued from Page 1) truck of complaints, fines and other police business will be installed shortly. The audit of the city's books for last year showed that the system which has been used in the past was inadequate for the purpose. A new method is to be worked out by the city attorney and the city manager in collaboration with the chief of police on order given by the commission last evening.

Plan Turned Down A report by L. E. Beckman, civil engineer who has been making an investigation of the present La Grande sewage system and the plans for a new one were presented for the consideration of the commission. The old sewage system is becoming inadequate and the commission is investigating methods of improving it in order to more efficiently dispose of the city's waste. Mr. Beckman's proposed specifications would call for an outlay of $194,702.87 by the city. Mr. Hill, president of the commission, expressed the opinion that the expenditure of such a sum of money would not be wise at the present time in view of the need of work on the city water system. The plans were passed over for further investigation and consideration. The remainder of the session before adjournment was devoted to the reading of bills.

Many Women Exhibit Dogs at London Show

LONDON (AP)—Eight thousand dogs, from comical little pups weighing but a few ounces to massive, mopping 80 lb. Bernards, were entered this month in Great Britain, the greatest crowd of canines ever exhibited in England. Almost one-fourth of the entries were Apschans. The interest in them beginning after the war has increased with unexampled rapidity, until the Apschan has become the most popular of all show dogs in Great Britain.

Each year the proportion of women exhibitors increases. Most of the kennels scattered over the country are nowadays in feminine care. The men, however, still are in the majority among the owners of sporting dogs. This year, with King George among the exhibitors, the Labrador seems the most popular of all retrievers. Their popularity is due to their surprising hunting qualities, but with due regard for their good looks, docile disposition and their ability to do many things. They are both faithful companions and trustworthy guards.

Justice Sits Unmoved Despite Large Families (CONOLELLI) (AP)—Establishment of a nursery on the third floor of the federal building here, close to the courts of the United States district court, for infants whose mothers are being tried on probation charges, is advocated by Judge William T. Rawlins.

Recently five Japanese women attended court, each with an infant in arms or one hanging on her breasts. They were only witnesses, but often, court attaches say, women convicted of bootlegging appear for sentences with five or six swarthy children, claiming parentage of them all and pleading their forward in a plea for mitigation.

Famous Swedish Rembrandt Will Be Loaned to Holland STOCKHOLM (AP)—Sweden's most valuable Rembrandt painting, the gigantic "Claudius Civilis," which the city councilors of Amsterdam once rejected for their court, held as not "Swedish enough," the Dutch capital now wants to be shown at the jubilee exposition to commemorate the 450th anniversary of Amsterdam's city under that name.

Money Cannot Purchase Happiness, Woman Says

(Continued from Page 1) Puritan descendant, master of millions and 75-year-old father of her two children, had looked past her, through her and beyond her. Eyes of the two in estrangement are meeting. The glance lingers back memories to Mrs. Stokes. A type hair is fiery red and whose grace and beauty have the preserved attractiveness that follows her 27 years.

Memories whether she will them or not, they push the time back to happier scenes. Now in love with no one, Mrs. Stokes is in love with love.

"Ah," says Mrs. Stokes, "You speak of love, how that." And pushing back the scarf of her window there is revealed a file of horridly-bound traffic. Girls and men. "How I envy them," she says. "There they go, happy and free, each with someone to care for her. Each with a sweetheart or husband, honest and good and kind. And I—I have only this ache in my heart which is broken."

"They can go to the ten-cent moving picture show, and get more happiness than I could get in a box in a fine theater. I sit dressed in fine clothes and the ache never goes." Love is Supreme. "Truly, love is everything. Riches count for little. But I will not say just because I married a rich man and found bitterness that riches are always a bar to happiness in marriage."

"The trouble, however, with most wealthy men—especially with those who were born wealthy—is that they do not know how to use their wealth. They think their wives should be satisfied with money and fine clothes alone. But they want to make dolls of them. And all the while the wife's heart craves only love. They don't realize that love and companionship and understanding are the things that every woman wants."

Money Not All. "People come to me and say they envy me. They tell me I ought to be happy. You have money and everything," they say. "You can buy or get anything you want." "Yet how untrue this is. There is one thing I cannot buy. Money never could buy it. I cannot buy love."

"The frame of the woman seems to waver. She looks far away. Past the busy street her glance roves, past the throngs that are scurrying home to their dinners and husbands and lovers."

Mrs. Stokes is thinking of the greatest that were and of the greatest that never came true. "But I am not bitter," she says. "I know in my heart I have never given a wrong thing in my life. And I know the world believes me when I say this."

"I was very much in love when I married. But all that is over. Money is a bar to happiness only when possessed by a man with a weak character. "But if a poor girl loves a wealthy man and he truly loves her, let them marry. It all depends on the man. Love cannot be insured by wealth."

"Neither is wealth a bar to it. But love means everything. Believe me when I say that, because I have found it to be true."

Tilson Is Paradoxical; May Unite North, South

(Continued from Page 1) place for miles around—where Senator Tilson, the future congressman's father, lived and entertained in simple but feudal style. Getting an education was not an easy thing for Tennessee mountaineers in the days following the Civil War. There were few elementary schools in the country districts, and secondary schools were practically unknown. Sending children away to private schools or colleges was an unheard-of thing.

John walked three miles to and from school, each day to get his "Three R's." And at the age of 20 he struck out from the farm to get "more farm."

He passed for a while at a little Tennessee school, now known as Carson and Newman college. There
