PUZZLE CRAZE HITS EUROPE

ROME, (AP)—The crossword puzzle craze has reached Italy in its triumphal march from the United States.

The engaging pastime which has made dictionaries best sellers, first took Great Britain by storm and then crossed into France where it overcame the prejudices of thousands of citizens of that nation which more than any other in Europe, had been famous for its philological insularity and for its passionate insistence upon the purity of its verbal expressiveness.

Now the craze, disguised as "Indovinello delle Parole Incrociate" has crossed the Alps into Italy and its proponents predict confidently that nothing can stop its advance into the heart of central Europe and even into the geographical crux of the Balkans where languages and dialects abound.

Foreigners in Italy had for some time been interested and disturbed by the peculiar anagrams and speculations in front of black and white squares in foreign newspapers, but it remained for a weekly newspaper to explain the mystery and incidentally to introduce the craze.

That the "parole incrociate" is but a distance relative of our own crossword puzzle is immediately apparent after a literal translation of some of the explanatory definitions. Here are several furnished with the second puzzle: In water I am strong and gay; smiles at every one but rarely at him who touches it; it is pure; toils when death appears; an immense adjective; always seared; beyond the octave; renowned for work of genius; found in Italian politics; perceptible; more luminous am I more impalpable.

In this puzzle there are eight right and left words and 13 up and down. No word less than four letters and eight have eight letters each. The newspaper announces it will publish a puzzle each week and offers $2,000 lire in prizes for accurate solutions during the year.

One large Roman daily has already announced its intention to publish the puzzles, and other newspapers are said to be preparing to follow suit.

British Army Sees Value Of Well Cooked Rations

LONDON, (AP)—The British army has never been better fed than it is today, says a war office official. Cooks are specially trained and their work will easily challenge comparison with that of West End chefs.

So sure are the authorities of this fact that Britain's new way of feeding its fighters will be demonstrated at a cookery and food exhibition in London next month. Cooks from the three service branches, army, navy and air force, will be there.

The excellence of the army cooks' culinary efforts is due largely to a new book issued by the army command, which gives full instructions as to baking, steaming, braising and frying, as well as recipes and hints on carving.

PLAYFUL ELEPHANTS DELAY TRAVELERS IN SUMATRA

THE HAGUE, Holland (AP)—Further reports received here concerning the mysterious deserted city in the Upper Langkat region of Sumatra state large quantities of elephants' bones have been found there. This gives rise to the belief that here may be one of the hidden places to which elephants retire when they feel death approaching. African and Indian elephant hunters agree that sick elephants withdraw from their herds to some remote spot only known to themselves to die alone.

Elephants seem to be on the increase in Acheen, the Sumatra Post observes in this connection. A light railway train which runs along the edge of the jungle was held up the other day by a herd of 40 big tuskers which fearfully amused themselves by pulling up all the fencing and boundary posts in sight before they decided to move on.

Friend Saves Friend From Operation For Kidney Trouble

Alvita Restores Health

Worried for three years by thoughts of an operation, R. G. Frazer, 554 So. Grand Ave., Pasadena, Calif., takes advice of a friend and regains his health by use of Alvita. Here is Mr. Frazer's own story:

"For the past three years I had serious thoughts of an operation, due to a serious case of kidney and prostatic trouble. In talking to a friend regarding this trouble he suggested I try Alvita, assuring me if it did me no good it would surely do me no harm, as it was purely vegetable compound. I used to suffer from pain, getting up four or five times each night, and I want to tell you I am entirely relieved after taking one month's treatment of Alvita. Do you know it has even helped my appetite."

Alvita is prepared in highly concentrated tablet form from the deep-rooted alfalfa plant, which by scientific analysis is rich in lime, iron and phosphates. Unlike drugs, Alvita is a vegetable remedy, which has proved especially beneficial in building up weakened, run-down conditions, and in overcoming kidney, bladder and prostatic trouble. No matter what you have tried, try this remedy of nature now. A dollar buys a box at any drug store.

Red Cross Drug Store will supply you. Mail orders accepted.—Adv.

Florida Selects New Way to Help Safety

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida state road department has devised a simple and inexpensive device that promises to cut down railroad grade crossing accidents. One already is in use as an experiment and the department plans to build others in its state-wide road construction program.

The device now in use is located on State Road No. 1 at Cottondale, where the highway crosses the Atlanta and St. Andrews Bay railroad. It consists of two parkways, one on either side of the railroad enclosed by a concrete curb which divides the travel, causing the motorist going in one direction to pass on the right of the parkway, while traffic in the opposite goes to the left.

One section of curb begins 70 feet from the end of the railroad, and is constructed along the center line of the highway to the end of the ties. Another section begins at the same point and is constructed in an arc of a circle on the right of the center of the highway, and intersects the first section of curb twenty feet from the end of the ties. The greatest distance between these curbs is ten feet and the curve is sufficient to make it necessary to slow down to get through.

A sign designating the railroad crossing and a warning to go slow is placed in the parkways at the extreme ends away from the railway as a warning during the day and a red reflector is placed at the same location as a warning at night. Flowers and shrubbery may be planted in the parkways to beautify the spots.

THE lines of this coat are familiar, but the trimming is not. These mottled bands that trim the hem, sleeves and collar are ducks' breasts used as fur banding would be. The material of the coat is a very heavy satin, lined with a delicate gray.

DEEP SEA TALE STARTS OLD SEA DOGS GONSPING

HULL, England (AP)—Wind-jammers have become so scarce on the high seas that today a sailing vessel of any kind attracts more or less attention in almost any port and especially after a long voyage. In the eyes of seafaring men the full rigged ship is rapidly disappearing and it has been estimated that there are but 125 of this type of vessel in commission in all the world today. Of these only five are owned by British interests, compared with hundreds a few years ago.

After one of the worst voyages ever recorded on her log, the four-masted German sailing ship Georg Kemme arrived in Hull recently from Mobile, Ala., loaded with cotton, after being marked up as nearly five weeks overdue. The ship was caught in a West Indies hurricane in December, blown back on her course for hundreds of miles, lost most of her sails, and was nearly dismantled. She was on the verge of being tossed ashore when her anchors caught and held just in the nick of time.
