THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law.—Gal. 5: 22, 23.

Home runs in March don't count in July.

Since most banks already have presidents many of the June college graduates will find jobs scarce.

Difference between a radio and a radio fan is if you get a radio fan started he keeps on talking without any help or encouragement.

COURTESY.

We Americans are not the most courteous people in the world, and we might as well confess it. Many a humbler people have much to teach us in the grace of urbanity and the fine art of gentle manners. We are a young nation, and in spots at least still raw and a little crude. We have not yet learned that conduct in nine-tenths of life. But if we are wise, we will improve our manners and form the habit of courtesy in all the contacts of life. Courteous people carry with them an indefinable charm. To meet with them and to know them is to experience something akin to looking upon a great picture or hearing a particularly fine piece of music.

Who admires a boor? Who cultivates a cad? Patrons avoid the impolite salesman and protest against doing business with a discourteous employe. Nor does an employe gain anything but ill will by unceasing dealings with those under him. What a boon it would be to live in a community where courtesy was a ruling passion, where people delighted to say "Thank you" and view with one another to go out of their way to show a kindness or do a favor. Courtesy is a community asset always. Courtesy becomes youth especially.

TRADE BUILDS CITIES.

If merchants and their helpers were not a pretty good natured class of people, whose rough edges have been worn away by much contact with their home folks, they would have reason to get irritated at times.

There are some people who will send off or get to distant cities and make important purchases of clothing and house furnishings. Then when they find that they want some little trifling article in a hurry, they will rush down to the home store and demand that it be supplied to them instantly, and blame the store if it does not have precisely what they want. They expect these stores to keep stocked up all the time on a wide variety of goods, yet they will not help supply the all-around patronage which is the only basis for keeping such a general stock.

It is a tremendous convenience and advantage to have a fine group of retail stores in a town. Such establishments connect a community with sources of supply that deal all over the world. A good store supplies the comforts and essentials of civilization, and it is a wonderful benefit to have it close by where you can call on its service at any moment, and get its supplies and its advice.

But people cannot expect to have the kind of stores their community is entitled to on the basis of its population and wealth, if they are constantly running off to other places to buy goods. Unless they give their patronage to their home stores, the home stores can not serve them efficiently.

It is well to remember that the home stores and the men who own and operate them are a tremendous force working all the time in La Grande to provide this community with all forms of modern equipment, to improve its civic advantages and to advance its prosperity. When you support them, you back up and help your community.

THE OLD HOME TOWN • • • By Stanley

There are no doubt some persons who truly believe that they'd be better off if they had more fresh air, but one can't place very much faith in that "friend" that opens the office windows and then leaves the room.

Radio Announcer: Miss Amy Stubbs, lyric soprano, will now sing "All Alone."
Listener: That's good. I couldn't stand more than one like her.

All things come to those who wait, by which time the novelty has quite worn off.

To catch suckers, merely offer some unreasonable returns and let nature take its course.

The man taking the agricultural census stopped at a rural residence and after acquiring certain information asked the housewife how many children she had.
"Four," was the answer.
"In all?" asked the census taker.
"I don't know whether it's all or not," replied the woman.

If thinking isn't painful, to most men way is it that most men frown while they're thinking?

Then, too, he could live for a couple of years.

We would start by exiling those housewives who persist in having their floors so slick that a fellow does a flop every time he steps on a rug.

If we have an old-fashioned summer it will be a good deal warmer on the Fourth of July than now.

"Has the baby had the measles yet, Mr. Smith?"
"Sh-h! Don't speak so loud. Whenever he hears anything mentioned that he hasn't got, he cries for it!"

He who hesitates is awfully old-fashioned.

The most expensive thing about a house is company.

All the wisdom of the ages boiled down to benefit husbands consists of two words, "Pet her."

EUROPE MARTS NOW AVAILABLE

BERLIN, (AP)—Ready always markets in Europe for their produce, the department of agriculture at Washington is showing increased activity on the continent. After the war it took over the records and offices of the American system of food administration, and today has bureaus in London, Berlin, Paris and Rome, with sub-offices in various other strategic centers. William A. Schoenfeld has been sent to this city as general director for Europe.

The products bought by Europe from America are, in the order of their importance, cotton, grain, tobacco, fruit and meat. The various European bureaus study local crop reports, the needs of the population for the various articles imported, and the time when the American crop is wanted in Europe. They inform the European purchaser of current prices and, wherever the department has established standards recognized among the American producers, place these at the service of the European buyers. This increases confidence in American business honesty, and thus helps the American producer in winning back the European market which he lost in large part during the war. Another phase of the work of the European bureaus is that of keeping information on improved methods of agricultural development discovered or introduced by European farmers. If a sugar beet grower in Germany succeeds in raising a particularly fine grade of beet through a method peculiar to his farm, the bureau in Berlin immediately investigates and sends its information to Washington.

The department of agriculture in Europe works in close cooperation with the commercial attaches and the consulates, but limits itself strictly to raw products. Take the case of fruit, for instance. Apples, pineapples or oranges in their natural state or the concern of the department, but the moment an apple is canned or dried, it falls into the jurisdiction of the commercial attaché. In this way overlapping and conflict are avoided.
