Growth of Materialism Is Fought by Churches

 Materialism. Within the past few years there has been a vast increase in the connections, both commercial and industrial, between Latin American lands and both Europe and North America. The result has been that large numbers of representatives from Europe and North America, interested in the material profit, have gone into these countries with their capital and plans for commercial expansion, changing the character and outlook of whole republics.

Big Increase Noted.
 A survey of the development of Protestant churches in South America shows that during the past 20 years the number of evangelical pastors and teachers has increased from 750 to 2,105, and that the number of nationals from the several republics engaged as evangelical pastors and teachers has grown from 1,900 to 3,106. During the same twenty years the number of members of Protestant churches in all these republics has grown from 50,000 to 122,000.

Relative to labor and the church, the report says:
 "Throughout practically the whole history of the organized labor movement, its adherents have seemed to think that the church is a capitalistic organization, dominated by capitalist interests, which seek, through the church, to keep in submission the less favored portions of society. This evangelical christianity in Latin America done anything to disprove this statement? Have its leaders shown themselves in any special way to be the friends of the exploited groups in the national life? Has evangelical christianity any policy to say as to the millitaristic policy of the land in which it is working? Have the churches any distinct mission of peace and international good-will? are among the many social questions regarding which evangelical christianity ought to have some word, the report declares.

The commission asks the congress to make a study of how to obtain a better trained and larger force of evangelical ministers how to strengthen the present training schools, and theological schools as to staff and curriculum, and how to carry on a special ministry for students, working-men, so-called "intellectuals" and other groups not now reached by North American evangelists and the national pastors working with them.

La Grande to Be Host To East Oregon Racers

 The race track secretary to succeed P. S. Knight in the office, E. E. Carleton of the University of Oregon made the main speech of the afternoon session in place of J. A. Churchill state superintendent of public instruction who was unable to appear due to illness.
 Mr. Carleton talked principally on the subject of reading. He gave advice on the selection of reading matter, varieties, benefits and other kindred topics of interest.

Morning Speeches.
 The two principal talks of the morning session were made by H. E. Inlow, superintendent of the Pendleton schools and A. C. Hampton of La Grande.
 Mr. Inlow spoke on the subject, "The Present Status of the Testing Movement." He brought out the fact that mentality tests were not to be regarded as an infallible way of judging the ability of a student. He classified mentality tests into different types and told of the advantages and disadvantages of each.
 Mr. Hampton's subject was, "The Improvement of Teachers in Service." Mr. Hampton's talk was based to some extent on data secured through his work with the Inland Empire Association. He told of work being done in other sections of the country to improve teachers and told some recommendations along the same lines.

ROAD MOPES ORDERED OFF LONDON STREETS
 LONDON (AP)—Slow moving taxicabs are to be barred from certain thoroughfares of the capital. There are so many public vehicles here with careful drivers, or mechanics so well worn that they cannot keep pace with the modern car that the matter has been called to the attention of Sir Henry Maybury as chief of London's traffic committee. The "snail" taxis are all right for some of the oldest London inhabitants, but they must keep out of the way of the fast, up-to-date cars or else be arrested for holding up the traffic.

NEW BUILDING BEGINS

The mild weather which has prevailed during the last few weeks practically throughout the North and East has enabled contractors to start much new building, and increased deliveries from retail yards have stimulated wholesale trade. The movement, however, has not yet gathered full momentum, and the market can by no means be called active. Another couple of weeks of favorable weather will be required before the long-expected improvement will set in, says the American Lumberman.

BATTLE ON "BOOTLEG" UNABATED

 The poisonous element in liquor was outlined by the governor, who quoted Dr. W. T. Phis of Hot Lake, as having said that the better physicians never prescribe alcohol nowadays.
 "I could stand pigsties," said the bootlegger, "but I can't stand the man who has a buzz on."
 "We must wipe up a few of the worst places in Oregon, that's all. The younger generation will help."

TRI-COUNTY GRANGE WILL BE ORGANIZED

 Other speakers included A. H. Hunter, state representative, and Senator Strayer, of Baker.
 At the evening banquet Bernal Hug acted as toastmaster and C. P. Davies, master of Wallawa Pomona grange; J. H. King, master of the Baker Pomona grange; J. A. Nice, master of the Union Pomona grange; Governor Pierce and others responded.

Elect Officers.
 J. A. Nice was re-elected master for the coming two years. Officers named for 1925 were: J. H. King, man, assessor; W. H. Glicker, lecturer; Bernal Hug, steward; W. D. Stover, assistant steward; George South, chaplain; E. A. MacLennan, treasurer; James Glicker, secretary; John Lewis, gatekeeper; Mrs. J. E. Westerman, clerk; Mrs. Bernal Hug, Pomona; Mrs. J. A. Nice, Flora; Mrs. L. J. Chickwick, lady assistant steward; J. E. Whitehouse, Jack Goshaw and M. L. Carter, executive committee members. Mr. Davies and Mr. King installed the new officers.
 Resolutions were adopted favoring the patronizing of home industries by business men in buying home grown products, butter made from Union county cream, and no shipped in butter or butter substitutes. Resolutions were also adopted opposing the proposed irrigation scheme or any other bonding until there is a market for what products are already raised; recommending that state and freight business be prohibited from using state highways where they parallel or connect towns with ample railroad facilities unless they pay toward maintenance.

 The evening session was taken up largely with conferring of the fifth degree to a class of about 60 new members of the Pomona grange. The work was exemplified by the Hurricane Creek drill team. More than 30 members from that grange assisted in the work.

his entrance to Black River Academy, at Ludlow, Vt., nearly 40 years ago.
 The Sargents lived at Ludlow and young Coolidge went to their house to board.
 As a timid, bashful boy from the village of Plymouth, Calloway was scheduled for a "course of reports" by the more sophisticated academicians.
 Then John Sargent passed on word that the newcomer was sort of under his protection and that he'd lend to anybody who tried to tend to Cal. Sargent's fist was as big then as it is today and his sleeps more supple. The hint was sufficient.
 Sargent comes to Washington with the reputation of being "a big man from a small town."
 Ludlow, 12 miles from Coolidge's home town of Plymouth, is a burg of only 1700 inhabitants. Life there is calm, simple, natural.
 It is from such surroundings, Coolidge believes, that a true perspective of law as well as life can best be gained. There, fundamentals alone stand out.
 The superficialities, the abnormalities, that so often warp the viewpoint of city dwellers are missing. The technicalities, the evasions, so much practiced by big
