"Third Dimension" Stereoscopic Movie Coming to Sherrys.

The "third dimension"—depth—is on the screen at last. The latest and most startling invention in motion picture science, the illusion of perfect perspective which makes actors and objects "stand out" from the screen in a life-like and startling manner, has been used in making "Plastigrams," a one-reel novelty that will be on the screen at the Sherry Theatre Sunday Monday and Tuesday.

Fortunes have been spent trying to perfect a process that would supply the effect of the old stereoscope which graced the parlor table in our grandmother's time, but with the exception of the Lvs-Leventhal process, by which "Plastigrams" was made, the results were impractical for ordinary motion picture houses. The new process, which is the invention of Frederic Eugene Ives, inventor of the half-tone process of printing, is so perfected that the use of this stereoscopic picture is possible in any motion picture.

"Greater Than Marriage" Featured By Sherrys.

"Greater Than Marriage," Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at Sherry's Theatre is an adaptation of Louis Joseph Vance's best seller, "Jean Thursday." It was made into a photoplay by Victor Hugo Halperin.

Marjorie Daw has the role of Jean Thursday, dramatic star, with Lon Telleran appearing as the husband. The conflict between Jean's ambition to continue her career on the stage and the husband's insistence that she devote her life to the duties of wifehood forms the basis of the story and gives rise to situations that seem destined to grip the interest of every picture lover as it has enraptured millions of readers of the novel.

As followers of Louis Joseph Vance know, it is a theme that appeals in particular to women and girls. Moreover, as the decision of the actress wife respecting the aid but ever recurring conflict between home and career affects men also, and as the film is brimming over with action, it is certain that interest will by no means be confined to sex.

Besides Marjorie Daw and Lon Telleran, whose work in this production is said to carry them to new heights of artistry, the cast is composed of such popular players as Peggy Kelly, Tyrone Power, Mary Thurman, Dagmar Godowsky, Raymond Bloomer, Effie Shannon and Blanche Craig. Also showing The Screen Sensation "Plastigrams."

Exceptional Cast In Doug's New Film At The Arcade.

The cast of Douglas Fairbanks' new picture, "The Thief of Bagdad," which commences an engagement at the Arcade Monday, represents every country in the world with the exception of Siam and Greenland, and one of the three extras who claimed to be from Iceland admitted having spent two years in Greenland. Being laid in an imaginary locale with fanciful settings and environment, it was essential that this picture include as many bizarre personalities as possible. More types would not answer this need, for, strangely enough, every principal character in the production is what casting directors call, "an acting part." This means that actual histrionic ability was as much a requirement as unusual cast of feature.

Doug is said to have spared no expense in finding the right people and the result is as polyglot a gathering of people as ever embarked upon common enterprise.

The difficult and important characterization of the Mongol Prince, was the work of So-Jin, a very famous Japanese actor, who is perhaps the only great Shakespearean actor that Japan has produced. His counselor was delineated by Kanayama Nambu, who was associated with So-Jin in his native land. The picturesque sworder was played by Sam Hakker, a Senegambian. Of course, being Oriental in atmosphere, the production required many Oriental types for its mass scenes and it was not unusual for 1000 groups to include seven or eight different nationalities of the far East. Moroccans, Tripolitans, Arabs, East Indians and Senegalese predominated, but all the sunbaths were Abyssinians. There was one player in the cast, by the way, a full-blooded, 100 per cent American, who exemplified the rule set forth in the first paragraph—that acting ability was an essential requirement in the casting of the picture. His name is Douglas Fairbanks and he is quite well known in Hollywood.

Top-Notch Vaudeville Bill Booked by Arcade for Sunday.

Another Top-Notch bill that is said to meet Vaudeville's requirements and filled with one hundred percent entertainment value will be seen at the Arcade Theatre on Sunday next.

Les Hummettes is a European Novelty that will please the grownups as well as the youngsters. The little figures will sing and talk. They do everything a human being could do, yet they are such tiny creatures, and are not worked by strings or other devices. Lew Rose & Brownie in "Moments of Joy," a burlesque comedian and a petite acrobatic producing their latest hick comedy success with singing and eccentric dancing numbers and a fine of rural comedy patter. Fuller, Clark & Co. a satire on making "A Movie Star," a riot of fun and laughter showing the humorous side of a movie director endeavoring to make a movie star out of a young and ignorant hood, a comedy cyclone full of ridiculously funny lines and situations and a burrah finish. Harry Ferris and a novelty ventriloquist whose stunts are new and very humorous and put over in an original style causing many hearty laughs along with good vocal song hits. Living Brothers in "Xylophonists Supreme," musicians of talent, which gives rise to repeated calls for encores. They have been acclaimed artists of rare merit and prima favorites. Orchestra and pictures also featured on same bill.

WATER DECISION IS DUE

PENDELTON, Ore.—The decision as to where the surplus water that will be provided by the Brockway reservoir shall be placed has not yet been made, according to a statement by H. M. Schilling, manager of the Hermiston project. Just where the water will be applied is a question that has been a topic of discussion for some time, and at times it has been suggested that it would go to the Tree project in which Senator Stanfield is expected to own a considerable body of land. According to Mr. Schilling, George C. Kreutzer, director of reclamation economics, when in Hermiston recently, ordered that

An economic survey of all the land on which the extra water might be placed should be made. The survey is expected to include the Tree land and property in the Westland district and around Stanfield.
