The Piercing Pains of NEURITIS

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

These are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only relieve. You've got to get something more lasting.

The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to use a bottle of Allenby Special Formula No. 2. He sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced if not entirely banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more, or until the pains have entirely disappeared.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your neuritis is in the shoulder, neck or leg. Allenby's Special Formula No. 2 will stop the torturing and give you speedy relief.

Red Cross Drug Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you. Mail orders accepted. Adv.

Yesterday we sold 44 gallons of paint, 57,000 cedar shingles, 18,000 feet of vertical grain flooring in North Powder. A large truckload of lumber and shingles into Union. A large wagon load of lumber and shingles to north of Island City. Twelve rods of roofing, many doors and windows, nails, etc. It is not hard to sell the material, but it keeps us jumping to get it here fast enough. It must be the price has something to do with it.

No. 2 cedar shingles, $2.35 per M.

Showing At The Arcade

The redoubtable Doug is a lovable irresponsible rascal & THE THIEF OF BAGDAD.

La Grande Theatres

Fairbank's Picture, "Thief of Bagdad," Scores Big Hit.

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad," a feature of the screen, generally accepted as being the pinnacle of moving picture accomplishment, now playing at the Arcade. Douglas Fairbanks, great success has been owing in great part to the fact that, to begin with, he had a great romantic story, and that in the picturing of it he did not allow the mere seeking after spectacle and the like, to interfere with its development. The story has been the main thing always. "The Thief of Bagdad," one might imagine, considering the enormous amount of talk that has been created by certain features in this picture—such, for instance, as "The Magic Carpet," with which the Thief and the Princess soar over the housetops and into the sky; the Winged Horse, which flies through the clouds—that it was a mere stringing together of extraordinary happenings. In point of fact, "The Thief of Bagdad," a realization of Arabian Nights stories in a richly and romantically told tale. The Winged Horse and the Magic Carpet are but mere trappings to excite the eye; they are indeed necessary developments of the story. It is because Douglas Fairbanks has been able to produce on the screen those most astounding happenings, which are a part of the extraordinary Arabian Nights story that "The Thief of Bagdad" purposes its picture, according to all accounts, that has yet reached the screen. The criticisms from other cities disclose the fact that Mr. Fairbanks has brought to the moving pictures something new and astonishing. The critic of the New York "Times" said "A feat of motion picture art which has never been equaled." The reviewer of the New York "Telegram" averred that it is "The greatest picture we have ever seen or ever expect to see," while the "Herald-Tribune" said it was "The greatest film ever made." The critic of the Boston "Post" said: "It is too long to compare this marvelous fantasy with any other photoplay production." The Philadelphia "North American" said: "You have to see it to believe it. Not merely a feat of the field, it reveals a field of its own."

Those of the day. He has much to his credit such as "Mrs. Paranoor," "The Lone Wolf," "Tomb-hill," and "The Brass Bow." He was born in Washington and in ten years of literary career had won the enviable distinction of putting on the market, either popular novels in addition to a number of short stories, verses and serials which were published in periodicals.

Unlike many authors, Mr. Vance does not confine himself to one type of fiction. His novels cover a wide range of subjects and character studies varying from stories of the stage like "Greater Than Marriage" to such works as "The Lone Wolf" and "No More Land." The story of "Greater Than Marriage" tells of a girl who craves a career upon the stage and is driven from home because of her ambition. She makes good upon the stage and then marries but the old desire to appear before the footlights returns to her and she is forced to choose between her husband and her art.

Louis Joseph Vance, author of "John Thursday," the novel from which "The Thief of Bagdad" is adapted, is one of the popular au-

The play is headed by Marjorie Day, Lou Tellegen, Peggy Kelly, Cyrene Power, Mary Thurman, Dagmar Godowsky, Raymond Blommer, and Eric Shannon. Also last chance tonight to see "Photogram."

Real Thrills Risked in New Hoxie Picture.

Jack Hoxie's brother—for pleasure purposes only—in "Flying Hoxie" Universal picture to be shown in the State Theatre next Wednesday is Barthel A. Hoxie. Hoxie, the star, is a sheriff and circumstances lead him to suspect his brother as a notorious bandit known throughout the cattle country as "The Raven." The brother in one of the scenes drives an automobile full of men over a hangover road and at a certain point the men leap from the speeding machine and vanish in the brush while the brother drives the car to the edge of a cliff and jumps just as it plunges into space.

Carve is a feet 4 inches tall, also he is an athlete and he figured he could make the jump from the car without difficulty but his height hampered him a bit in getting ready for the jump and he did not clear the car until the front wheels were over the edge of the cliff. Then he tumbled for a second or so while Hoxie's director, Cliff Smith, and the camera crew looked on in horror.

"Well, farther than that in an airplane once," nonchalantly said Vance as he was being congratulated on his exploits. He joined the Royal Flying Corps of Canada at the beginning of the war, quitting the Iowa university for the purpose. The injuries he sustained in the fall caused him to be invalided Ashland Reaps Foot Ball Law. ASHLAND, Ore.—Following the passage of an ordinance by the local city council recently imposing a tax of 13c a tick on the local foot ball and raising it illegal for youths under 17 to enter foot ball grounds, the proprietors of the local foot ball stadium before the council and requested the repeal of the ordinance this week. The council refused to grant their request.

Edward Osterlander Home.

SALEM, Ore.—Edward Osterlander, member of the public service commission, returned here from Washington, where he attended a hearing in connection with the proposed central Oregon railroad development. The hearing was held under the direction of the interstate commerce commission and was attended by a large number of railroad attorneys and other persons interested in the project. H. H. Carey, chairman of the Oregon public service commission, attended the hearing.

OVERCOMES KIDNEY TROUBLE WITH ALVITA

Having heard of your Alvita Tablets, I came to your store two weeks ago and bought a box of six tablets for $1.00 and within one week was absolutely relieved of a long-standing trouble with my kidneys or prostate which necessitated my being up from four to six times during the night.

I can hardly express my appreciation for the good these tablets have done for me in this regard. I am a man of mature age, but I feel like a young man today—I am buying one-half dozen boxes of Alvita Tablets to give to my friends.

(Signed) C. A. MOTT.

Alvita Tablets are scientifically prepared from the wonderful alfalfa plant, which through its long root absorbs the vital elements—lime, iron and phosphates—necessary to health and vigor. Alvita has proved especially beneficial in overcoming kidney, bladder and prostate trouble. No matter what you have tried, try this remedy of Nature now. A dollar buys a box at Red Cross Drug Store.
