La Grande Theatres

Hoxie Comes to La Grande in New Western Play.

Galloping horses ridden by men who have a reckless disregard for danger create an atmosphere of the Old West and of excitement in "Flying Hoofs," Universal Picture coming to the star theater today with Jack Hoxie as the star. The big cowboy actor does some of the most spectacular riding of his recent career on his beautiful horse, Scout, in the picture which is a thrilling story of a man's devotion to duty.

The exteriors were filmed in the Santa Cruz mountains where giant redwood trees and grassy slopes combine to make some of the most beautiful scenery ever recorded by a camera.

Two wholesome interests run through the story, one of them that between the character portrayed by Hoxie and the daughter of a rich cattlemen, having a decided comedy twist.

Hoxie is cast in the part of a sheriff who, because of his repeated failures to capture a notorious bandit known as "The Raven," finally is becoming the object of ridicule. Finally circumstances point to the fact that his brother is the bandit and the sheriff arrests him.

Clifford Smith, who has directed Hoxie in all of his recent pictures, made "Flying Hoofs." The supporting cast includes Charlotte Stevens, Alys Maxwell, Duke R. Lee, J. Gordon Russell, Bartlett Carr, William Wych and William Lester.

The sheriff's posse and the bandit band of "The Raven" are made up of these hard-riding recruits from the cattle ranges who have gained fame as Universal Ranch Riders.

There are a number of spectacular scenes, including a trap for a speeding automobile, a just as it plunges over a cliff. Also there are a number of timely dramatic scenes a numerous surprise situations.

"Revelation" at Sherrys, Is One of Greatest Pictures.

"The most satisfying picture of the year," describes Metro's special production, "Revelation," which opened last night at the Sherry theater. Story, cast and direction are all three of extraordinary worth, so that the spectator enters away from the theater feeling that he has seen something head and shoulders above the ordinary feature.

Motion picture fans have been saying all along that the crying need is better stories. They are Daily Morning Observer, April 7, 1898—Prof. Briggs, of Hilgard, in attending the democratic convention.

The O. R. and N. will construct the tracks for the sugar factory (Hummels) instead of letting the work be contract as they at first expected.

J. H. Hills and family, who have been residing in La Grande during the past winter, will leave today for their stock farm near Hildard.

E. E. Taylor, J. H. Morton, J. H. Weaver and J. A. Matherson, delegates to the democratic convention, arrived yesterday.

The city council met last evening in regular session, and after allowing the usual minutes of title against the city, passed an ordinance permitting the Oregon Sugar company to tap the city water mains and conduct water to their factory to be used for fire protection and other purposes for which it may be utilized at the factory. Another ordinance was passed increasing the salary of the city marshal from $50 to $70. The council reappointed F. E. Eddy as water superintendent and W. H. Stoney as street commissioner. Attorney

J. W. Knowles was appointed city attorney to take the place of W. W. Hindman, whose term of office had just expired. C. H. Finn appeared before the council representing a client with a proposition to purchase from the city a portion of the 80 acre tract of land where the best house is now located and Mrs. Clark was also present with a similar proposition. Both proposals were referred to the committee for investigation.
