

NEWS of SOCIETY

Seventy-five members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church met yesterday afternoon at the church. This meeting closed the membership contest which has been in progress for the past month and at four o'clock a delicious three-course banquet was served by the ladies in the dining room of the church. The table was beautifully decorated in Easter colors and spring flowers, and Easter motifs forming a clever centerpiece. Dainty favors, made by Mrs. Evelyn Henshaw, were given these present.

Previous to the banquet an excellent program, arranged by the winning side, was given in the community room of the church.

A number of E. P. O. girls enjoyed the dance given last evening in the ball room of the Elysia Temple. Music was furnished by the Star Novelty orchestra.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church met Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. Mrs. Trenholm had charge of the devotional and Mr. Payne rendered a beautiful vocal solo. Mrs. H. W. Leighton presided over the business meeting and Mrs. A. H. Cooper gave the lesson study, which finished "Ming Kwong," the study book which the society has been using.

The Presbyterian Missionary Society will meet at the church tomorrow afternoon, April 10, following the Good Friday services, which will close at three o'clock. The subject, "Our Black Brothers," will be in charge of Mrs. H. H. Hanna. Mrs. Coulter, recently from Louisiana, will speak of some of her experiences among the colored people. There will also be a round table discussion. Mrs. T. C. Bowen will give several special musical numbers. An invitation is extended to all interested.

Imbler (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Andrews entertained at dinner recently in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hazen. The table was prettily with a centerpiece of dainty spring flowers. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hazen, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kiddle, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stingham, and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Andrews.

Hints for the Housewife

SURPRISE RICE
Most families like the occasional surprise dishes and the housewife who delights in trying out new recipes will readily see the possibilities of this wholesome one-dish dinner.

Remove the seeds from one sweet pepper, chop and parboil for a few minutes. Chop one small onion fine and add to the pepper, which should be thoroughly drained. Then add three cups of boiled rice and mix well. Put a layer of this mixture into a well buttered covered enameled ware baking dish. Add a layer of tiny sausages (about one pound) which have been partially cooked, and cover with the remainder of the rice. Pour one cup of milk over it all and dot with butter. Cover and bake for a half hour in a hot oven. Then remove the cover and bake for another half hour.

In order to keep this dish somewhat of a mystery until the first portion is served, do not transfer it to a platter or other serving dish. Enameled ware baking dishes are so china-like in appearance that there need be no hesitancy in bringing them to the table.

CAULIFLOWER WITH NITS

Lovers of cauliflower will like this way of preparing it, which is quite different from the few familiar methods.

Remove the outside leaves and soak the cauliflower head down in cold salted water for fifteen minutes. Drain and boil head up in an enameled ware saucepan with enough water to cover. When tender, drain and place right side up in a buttered enameled ware baking dish. Melt three tablespoons butter, add three tablespoons flour and one of salt. Stir until well mixed and then add one and one-half cups milk. Bring to a boiling point, stirring constantly. Pour over the cauliflower and sprinkle with a little cayenne pepper. Melt two tablespoons butter, add two-thirds of a cup of chopped walnuts and one-third cup bread crumbs. Spread over the top of the cauliflower and bake in a hot oven till delicately browned.

Serve from the dish in which it is baked.

QUEEN BUYS OWN UTENSILS

WINDSOR-ON-THE-THAMES, (AP)—Almost the last journey away from Buckingham Palace made by Queen Mary, known as England's most "homewifely" queen, before departing with the king for his Mediterranean cruise, was a one-day visit to Windsor Castle to see that the spring cleaning had been started in proper order, so that everything would be sparkling and spick for her return toward the end of April.

Incidentally, the queen brought with her to the castle, her summer home and one of the world's most magnificent structures, a number of labor saving devices which she had bought herself the day before at an ideal home exhibit in London. One of these was a new kind of knife cleaner, the queen examining the apparatus and making several inquiries as to whether the polishing roller would not harm certain old fashioned knives of very delicate make which were used generations ago in the kitchens of Windsor. Another exhibit which interested the queen keenly was an improved kind of

map. She watched the demonstration with interest, and even took hold of the handle herself for a moment, but she did not buy, much to the disappointment of the dealer.

Economy, however, is the watchword at Windsor as well as the royal palace in London. Under the present regime there is an encouragement for waste-freeness such as obtained in the days of other rulers.

One of the favorite cities among residents of Windsor concerns Queen Victoria and is known as "The crocus and the sentinel." Soon after her ascension to the throne, Queen Victoria was delighted by the appearance of the first crocuses of the season near the castle terraces. Fearing that
