LABOR CASE DECIDED BY HIGH COURT

(Continued from Page One.) state courts interpreted this action of the highest tribunal as leaving unimpaired the limitation of the hours of labor, but the contrary view was largely held in Washington when the federal court in that city last week in a decision of the hours also was unconstitutional. The order complained of provided for an eight hour day with six days constituting a week's work, employees to receive overtime pay for longer hours and for work on Sunday. The state contended that this was a valid exercise of its police power, especially in the protection of the health of the workers, many of whom were women. It insisted that the federal courts could only examine into the constitutionality of the law determining whether the hours of labor fixed by the industrial court were just and reasonable, and that in the packing industry eight hours a day was not such an unreasonable and arbitrary limitation as to render the regulation unconstitutional under the federal constitution. There was a material difference, contended for the state, between the fixing of wages and the fixing of hours of labor. Counsel for the packing company took the position that when the case was before the supreme court on the question of wages the action of the court had been of such a character as to require the Kansas courts to not establish their own rule in interpreting the constitution, but to follow the action of the federal court. It is insisted that the effect of the action of the federal supreme court was to hold that the act providing the industrial court was unconstitutional in its entirety, because it deprived employers and employees of the freedom of contract guaranteed by the federal constitution, and proposed a system of unlawful compulsory arbitration for the settlement of industrial disputes. Having declared a state statute invalid wages by its invalidation of the federal supreme court, counsel for the packing company contended, had to effect labor the position that the regulation of the hours of labor was invalid, the two being so closely associated that it was impossible to regulate hours of labor, especially when provisions were made for overtime pay, without that regulation having a direct bearing upon wages.

COURT NOT TO MAKE REFUND

(Continued from Page One.) different taxes on the property affected. Same Rules Here. The acceptance of this law was made optional in the county courts according to U. G. Couch, county judge, who stated this morning that the Union County court had not passed the bill in effect and that, therefore, the taxes of this county are under the same rules and restrictions as formerly. This statement was made to correct an impression that the bill was in effect in Union County at this time.

RECITAL WILL BE THURSDAY

(Continued from Page One.) Eric's unique voice, and it is very expressive. She not only has beauty of tone and phrasing but has a wonderful personality. Miss Cheney formerly made La Grande her home and has many friends here. The skill of Victor DePinto, vocalist, is well known among La Grande home as he has been appearing a number of times before local audiences. He has studied extensively in Europe under famous teachers. Miss Margaret Nott, pianist, is a musician of note. In addition to being an unusual soloist she is also a very fine accompanist. Less than a year ago she returned from New York where she had been studying with Josef Lohrste, the master pianist and teacher. She also acted with Schmitt.

New Memorials Will Grace Potomac River

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Potomac river's proscribed scenery will be seriously troubled this summer, for work is under way on two memorials on its banks, and a majestic bridge to span its bosom.

One of the monuments at the foot of New Hampshire avenue and E street, will commemorate those who lost their lives in the Titanic disaster, in a figure with outstretched arms. John Erickson, inventor and constructor of the Monitor of Civil war renown, will be remembered in the other piece of statuary, 300 feet south of the Lincoln memorial, not far from the Titanic statue.

FIFTH AVENUE IN ITS GLORY

(Continued from Page One.) whether a shade more pronounced and the skirt quite a bit shorter. Probably the day's greatest surprise, in a fashion way of speaking, was the absence on Fifth avenue of the extremely short skirt that the mode-makers have been predicting. "Quintessence" was predominant in the colors of dress fabrics. Many black costumes appeared, relieved, usually by small splashes of color here and there. Black satin coats, the lower edge trimmed in fur, also were worn. There was no fur at neck or sleeves.

At the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday musical program was rendered by the choir and Paul Krautz sang a solo "Let Thy Will Be Done" Raymond Smith, of Cove, talked at the morning service and Reverend Winters preached in the evening. The other churches of the city also had special programs. Miss Kathleen Campbell directed the excellent musical program at the Episcopal Church. Mrs. Adolph Newlin appeared with several beautiful selections on the pipe organ at the Catholic church. Other musical programs were in charge of the choirs of the church. In the evening the main feature was a cantata given at the Presbyterian church.

NAVY PLANS AIR FLIGHT TO HAWAII

(Continued from Page One.) in the expansion of the world's greatest regular air route. Funds Available July 1. With the beginning of the new fiscal year July 1, funds will become available under which contracts can be made for carrying mail by airplane or airship on any routes selected, and numerous organizations already have asked for extension of the service to their cities. Only such routes as post office officials believe can be operated without loss to contractors, however, will be considered in the opening up of these new avenues of communication.

Extensions now under consideration include routes between New York and Boston (Chicago and St. Louis), Los Angeles and Salt Lake, Elko, Nevada, and Pasco, Wash., Minneapolis-St. Paul and New Orleans via St. Louis and Memphis; Pittsburg and New Orleans, and Chicago and New Orleans via Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville and Birmingham.

The New York-Boston route probably will be arranged to make connection with the transcontinental service and the new Chicago-New York night service. The Chicago-St. Louis service likewise would be a feeder of the overnight New York-Chicago service. The Los Angeles-Salt Lake and the Elko-Pasco routes would connect with the transcontinental service.

Ladies' Dresses JUST RECEIVED! A large assortment of Ladies' Dresses for Spring and Summer wear. Priced very low at $9.50 to $15.50 55 STORES

The Elko-Pasco route would serve the cities of the northwest, the air mail being handled to and from Pasco by the railway mail service for Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, at a considerable saving of time over the present practice of sending it to San Francisco for relay. The routes between New Orleans and the northern cities would operate independent of the transcontinental service.
