

MOVIE STARS HAD 'ENOUGH'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Motion picture stars who live in this Los Angeles suburb, in common with others of their profession, are not averse to publicity, but when the "rabber-neck" waggers exceeded what is locally regarded as the limit, they promptly called upon the police for help.

The trouble started with the sight-seeing auto buses. The advertising slogan "personally conducted visits to the homes of motion picture stars" proved a lure, and the operators found that seldom failed to get a load of passengers out of a downtown hotel lobby in Los Angeles.

Arriving in Beverly Hills they parked in front of some film favorite's home, and the chap who was backing through the meadowphone would say something like this:

"Here we have the residence of the star of the movies. The lady in white sitting on the veranda is her sister. The gentleman sitting on the left is her fourth husband." All of which was embarrassing and annoying to the objects of attention. The sightseers even got bolder and would venture into the private grounds surrounding the home.

So the residents got together and confided their troubles to the chief of police. The lumbering buses may still travel the streets of Beverly Hills, but they are met with the order to keep moving.

Capitol City's Traffic Director to Be Strict

very few appeals to be sent to the Atlanta penitentiary for 25 years. That, however, is just what Gerald Chapman wants, and in his case it's easy to understand why. He is a man who has been in the federal government only long enough to be convicted for murder, and he thinks a borrowed article should be returned in as good condition as it was borrowed in. Besides, if he's hanged, how can he serve out his long Atlanta sentence for robbing the mails?

The Justice Department hasn't made up its mind.

The fact is the attorney general isn't as much interested in Chapman's technicality as Chapman is. The government has more prisoners than it wants now. At this very time Luther E. White, superintendent of federal prisons, is at Leavenworth, trying to find an excuse for padding out the convicts by ten. Leavenworth has more than twice as many inmates as it was built to hold. Atlanta isn't quite that bad, but bad enough. So much accommodation wasn't needed in the old days. Prohibition law violations hadn't been invented then.

Smallpox is more prevalent than the government Public Health Service likes. Not only are there too many cases but they are increasingly malignant.

The idea is that people develop considerable power of resisting a disease they have had among them for several generations, and either don't catch it or have it lightly if they do. Thus the disease finally runs itself out. Only it isn't dead, just dormant. Reawakened, it usually finds a generation which has lost the old immunity, and begins again as a much worse disease than it left off.

Just so with smallpox. It partly ran itself out and was partly stamped out by vaccination. Now that it appears to be resurging it may prove to be deadlier than ever, though fortunately under superintendence of federal prisons, it is at Leavenworth, trying to keep vaccinated, in the Public Health Service's idea.

from many American residents of France who are averse at the prospect of a capital levy. Some of them have large French property holdings, especially the branches of various big American companies.

A capital levy, if made, will hit them all. They can't get their wealth out of the country, either. Present French laws forbid. The government proposes to take a large chunk—10 per cent, and it will be more than that if the franc slumps, as probably it will.

If France were a little country like one of the Central American republics, the State Department might see its way clear to opposing this confiscation. Being France, it isn't like to do so.
