WAR GAMES PROVE LITTLE IN PEACE

The shore defenders theoretically sank all the enemy warships. But they kept on coming. "Hey!" signaled the shore force, "you're theoretically sunk." The beach was signalled back the fleet commander, getting landing parties overboard. Thus after being completely wiped out, the invaders captured the island.

This may seem funny, but in real warfare it's exactly what's liable to happen. Destroying an enemy "theoretically" isn't quite sufficient. Of course in those Long Island maneuvers, the referee's decision finally stood, but in wartime it wouldn't. Sure-enough fighting is different from moving pieces on a chess board.

So what does the outcome of the Hawaiian war game may be. It doesn't do to take it too seriously.

Predictions that present immigration restrictions eventually will retard the wheels of industry, to lack of hands to keep them turning, don't worry the Labor Department. Some officials do see a possibility of a shortage in manual workers, but if it comes, they say it will mean wages so high that many in the "white-collar" ranks, which are overworked, inevitably will be tempted beyond resistance to exchange their attire for overalls. Which officials think will be a fine thing for the country.

"POLICE UP" TOWN

TEMPLE, Okla.—American Legionnaires here have given this town a sprucing up recently when they all fell to with rakes, brooms, shovels, and ash cans and gave Temple a "policing up" that made it look like the old company street on inspection morning. Prices were given to the citizens with the cleanest and most well-kept yards.

REPORTS OF AGENCIES

NEW YORK (AP)—Bradstreet's today says:
"Trade is spotty, advices of slight improvement alternating with others showing a further quieting and taken as a whole, is still only fair. Retail buying in some sections shows the continuance of the after-Easter lull, while in others, notably Texas and adjoining areas in the southwest, it shows with jolting in the depression caused by one of the worst droughts in history. Scarcity of drinking water and of water for cattle is noted there, with reports that cattle from dry areas have been shipped to large markets in an emaciated condition. Late reports are that the drought in northwest Texas has been relieved. On the other hand, retail buying in parts of the southeast is better than for some time, reflecting an early start for crops and good prospects for this early stage of the season. Industry tends to quiet somewhat with small but often buying still noted as the leading feature."

SEASON TO OPEN HERE TOMORROW

Hein To Pitch

Buck Hein, La Grande's long boy pitcher with the big arm will start the game for the Pirates. Hein has been going big in practice this week and is expected to turn in a game this Sunday like he did at Walla Walla a week ago. Hein is an easy working pitcher who knows when to save himself and when to put in his best hits and looks as if he has something in reserve all the time to use in case anybody starts a hitting rally.

At Barth will win the mask and give to receive Hein's offerings tomorrow.

After his record of 17 strikeouts last Sunday Earl Dunlap of the Bucks has a good deal of a record to maintain for Pendleton. The Pirates are saying among themselves that there will be no repetition of that sort of thing here tomorrow.

The remainder of the Pendleton lineup will be Taylor, catcher, Bill King, first, Chief Clark, second, Babe Adams, shortstop, Barney Hodge, third base, and Belsan, Hunt, Hargett and Olson in the outfield. Gunner Peterson and Bill McGarrigle will be in reserve for the Bucks.

At the same time La Grande and Pendleton are having it out here Baker will be playing the Bears at Walla Walla. The Baker team has been strengthened this week by the addition of several new men. Le Roy Nipes who played second base here earlier in the season is now playing with the Cotts.

JURY ACQUITS WHEELER: ONE BALLOT TAKEN

no choice other than to prosecute. There is no ill-feeling."

One Ballot Taken

Exactly two hours and 12 minutes elapsed between the time the jury retired to deliberate and the time the verdict was returned. Out of this time the jury took one hour to dine. The actual time for deliberation was but a few minutes, according to court attaches. But one ballot was taken.

In spite of Judge Dietrich's order against demonstrations there was a rush toward the bench when the verdict was read. Friends of Senator Wheeler crowded about him and offered double congratulations—on the birth of a daughter and his acquittal.

District Attorney Slattery shook hands with Senator Wheeler and spoke of the verdict and the new daughter.

"I hope they both get along all right," the prosecutor said to the senator.

Senator Wheeler rushed forward as soon as propriety permitted and shook the hands of each of the jurors.

Court was in session only two minutes. After the verdict was read and the formalities completed, Judge Dietrich discharged the jury and the trial of Burton K. Wheeler, storm center of politics, was over.

Wheeler Issues Statement
Senator Burton K. Wheeler issued the following statement here Friday night:
"The verdict is exactly what I expected. There could have been no other. The verdict is not only a vindication of me but also of the senate committee, of which Senator Borah was chairman and of the great majority of senate colleagues who voted for the Borah report, which found me innocent of these charges, and against the department of justice."

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE DISAPPOINTED BY VERDICT

WASHINGTON (By the Associated Press)—Department of justice officials made comment today about the collapse of the case in Montana against Senator Wheeler. The severity with which the jury threw out the department's charges and acquittal of the senator manifested a complete disappointment.

No officials would predict whether separate proceedings against Wheeler in the District of Columbia would be pressed. His friends predicted this case would never be tried.

45 Buildings House Agricultural Offices

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Department of agriculture officials are hopeful that the next Congress will authorize continuance of the department's building program begun in 1903, and thus permit concentration of its activities under lower roofs. At present the department uses 45 buildings scattered to the four corners of Washington, one of them six miles from the administration offices.

For 25 of the buildings the department pays rent totalling $152,500 annually. For the eight-story structure housing part of the bureau of agricultural economics and biological survey, $35,360 rent is paid, while another eight-story building used for the forest service costs $25,000 a year.

The smallest rented building is a carpenter shop hidden in an alley in the center of Washington and for which $20 is paid annually. The shop stands next to a brick stable in which Wilkes Booth is said to have slept and stabled his horse the night before he shot President Lincoln. The stable is used now by the war department.

In 1922, during the term of office of Secretary Wilson, construction was begun of a building to house administrative offices of the department. Two 12-story wings were completed and occupied in March, 1923.

TRAPPED MEN ESCAPE DEATH

from the mine who had been imprisoned for under ground in the Star workings of the Hecla about two miles from the shaft. United States mine rescue crews poured water down the shaft of the mine upon the blaze that had broken out shortly before midnight in the pump station of the 2000-foot level.

Meanwhile, helmet crews, equipped against 98 dangers that lurk in the underground workings of the mines, waited impatiently at the head of the shaft until the flames had been sufficiently controlled and the shaft had cooled enough to permit them to enter the tunnel in search of the imprisoned workmen.

Friday afternoon they sent the mine cage to the 2000-foot level and it came back only warm. Three of them went down, under command of Karl T. Spacha, chief engineer of the mine rescue crews of the 'Colour' Mine mining district. It was not long afterwards before they came up again and reported conditions improved. Some of the entrapped miners themselves came up the shaft.

Trapped Men Put Out Fire.
The 14 men, turned back by the smoke and flames when they sought the shaft at the alarm of fire, sent out by the mine head, went back into the star tunnel and obtained a pump which was there. They then put into commission and by 1 o'clock Friday morning they had returned to the battle against the fire. From then on, it was simply a matter of pumping water on the fire and waiting for the smoke to clear.

The fire started shortly before midnight in the pumping plant at the base of the main shaft on the 2000-foot level. The pumpman on duty left his station, it was stated, which was returned about 10 minutes later he found the plant afire.

Three men rescued from the 1600-foot level, Sivern Jewell, Van Vorhis, and Richardson, were partially overcome by smoke and gas but soon were revived.

Richardson said he was in a drift tunnel when the fire broke out.

The men turned on the air line and tried close to it they were able to get fresh air, and thus ward off death by suffocation. He said he knew nothing of the fate of the 14 men trapped on the 2000-foot level.

Of the 48 men in the mine when the fire broke out, all but 17 were led to safety by K. J. Kelly, the pumpman, who discovered the fire in the pump station on the 2000-foot level.
