REFERENDUM NOT FAVORED

The following resolution has been forwarded to the Evening Observer:

Resolved that: The State Highway commission desires to declare its hearty approval of the attitude of the State Association of County Judges and Commissioners in its recent declaration against the proposed referendum on the associated High and Truck bill recently passed by the legislature. The highway system of Oregon is not constructed and maintained by general taxation, but by fees in the form of license and gas tax paid by the individual motorists of the state. The burden, therefore, should be equitably distributed. The initial heavy construction and heavy reconstruction costs are caused in the main by the users of heavy motor equipment. Many of our roads will have to be rebuilt and be constructed in a manner to withstand this equipment. In our opinion, this bill does not justify a supplementary fee, but does attempt in a manner to distribute the burden equitably among those who use the highways.

ed, but Atlantic coast takings are restricted. The softwood producers find that in the middle west, city demand is better than that from country districts. Farmers have had an early start on spring work in their fields; they buy conservatively and pay cash. Retailers have been holding down their stocks, so that present deliveries to jobs will make early replacements necessary.

Hardwoods are in improved call from the building trades, especially interior trim and flooring plants; there has been a pick-up in demand from the automotive industries, while furniture makers continue to take a good volume. Foreign business has so improved as to be the bright spot of the market. While prices are low, there is noted an upward tendency.

HINDENBURG FROWNED ON BY NATIONS

 Press)—The official provisional figures of the presidential election follow:

Von Hindenburg, 14,629,598, Marx, 12,752,649, Thaelmann, 1,921,591, Votes declared invalid, 21,259, Total, 29,345,549.

BERLIN (City Associated Press).—The people of Germany have called to the banner of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and elected him president of the republic. He is the first president of Germany to be elected by popular ballot. He was nominated by the Nationalist-Conservative bloc to replace Dr. Karl Jaros, who failed of election in the first balloting on March 29. His opponent was Dr. William Marx, candidate of the republican bloc, composed of Centrists, Socialists and Democrats. The third candidate was Ernest Thaelmann, Communist.

Von Hindenburg triumphed in his race for the presidency with a plurality close to 345,000 votes. The unofficial final figures are: Von Hindenburg, 14,629,598; Dr. Marx, 12,749,609; Thaelmann, 1,789,999.

Von Hindenburg comes to the chair once occupied by Friedrich Ebert, who was chosen president by the national assembly at Weimar in February, 1919, and who died in Berlin February, 1925.

The women's votes and a heavy turn-out of former stay-at-home voters elected the field marshal. Not until the returns from 23 out of 35 election districts were received and tabulated could the outcome be determined and from figures, says the American Lumberman, Chicago, show that the market is steadily improving.

Coming to a fall off in southern pine production of 6.2 per cent during the week, orders, although 1.5 per cent below the previous week's total, were 5.02 per cent above the actual output. These figures reflect a policy of manufacture according to demand that will give the market greater strength. Most of the new orders come from northern and western centers, demand from the southern states being held back by drought, while that from sections where there has been rain has shown decided increase. The fir mills of the Pacific northwest are succeeding in their efforts to cut down the overproduction that had brought prices below costs. Orders for the week were 8 per cent above output. Ninety-five identical mills had reported shipments for the previous week, ended April 4, at 598,942 feet, as against a three-year average of 747,944 feet. Mill stocks at practically all coast plants are being reduced and are becoming broken in assortment, while prices are rising by California buying has recently improved.

LUMBER DEMAND GAINS.
 That the lumber industry is in the full tide of its seasonal expansion is shown by national statistics for the week ended April 11. The gain in orders, as compared with the previous week, was surprisingly large, and those received by three hundred sixty-one of the larger commercial softwood mills amounted to a full hundred per cent of their production. Shipments also made an increase, but amounted to only 97 per cent of output, which probably made a slight gain. These figures, says the American Lumberman, Chicago, show that the market is steadily improving.
