Many Rodeo Champs Appear with Hoot In "Let 'Er Buck."

Fifteen of the Universal Ranch Riders, expert horsemen and ropers, who have been competitors in many Universal westerns, are happy as kids these days.

"They've been to Pendleton, Oregon, with Hoot Gibson and Edward Sedgwick where "Let 'Er Buck," Hoot Gibson's big rodeo special which comes to the Star theatre today, was filmed.

Hoot makes this picture in the town where he first gained fame and which led to his entering pictures. He won the world's championship in the annual Pendleton rodeo several years ago and in several of the events has remained undisputed master. He attended the past year's big round-up of the West with his entire "gang," Ed Sedgwick directed. He made the last twenty Gibson productions.

Some of the riders include Tommie Crank, movie roping champion of the world, and Henry Corbett, holder of the bull dogging championship. Many of Hoot's company entered the rodeo events of their ability.

Raymond D. Senneker and Director Sedgwick wrote the story, taking it from Charles Wellington Furlong's novel.

Actor Dives 60 Feet Into Thorns in "Idle Tongues."

A thrilling dive off a sixty-foot cliff was taken by Percy Marnock in the Ince-Film National production, "Idle Tongues," coming to the Arcade Theatre today.

27 YEARS AGO

Daily Morning Observer, April 25, 1898—Yesterday the summer schedule of the Wallowa stage took effect, connecting with the Elgin train. While ascending the Wallowa hill a boy riding a horse frightened the leaders who crumpled the coach and upset it throwing the driver, William Arnold, out and badly hurting his arm. The horses got away and went to Elgin, a distance of several miles. A little later A. H. Crossfield, who was a passenger went back and secured a wagon in which to bring Mr. Arnold home. Billie used to be well known to all the old residents, but the past eight years has lived in the northern part of the county.

E. L. Eckley, editor of the Chronicle, visited Stumptown yesterday in the interest of his bright and new paper.

"The daughter's portion to her father's disregard for the conventions that make a home sacred in one of the most interesting angles or modern life that we have seen depicted on the screen this season.

To Lou Tellegen, the erstwhile "great lover" of stage and screen, the producer has given an opportunity for a unique characterization. The make-up for his part, Mr. Tellegen with a few grey hairs and the first wrinkles of middle-age necessary to portray the successful business man of forty-five. Comedy, "Some Nurse."

W. H. Ripper, populist candidate for county judge and T. H. Gilman who will contest for similar honors on the republican ticket were in Union yesterday.
