CHORUS AND BAND HEARD IN CONCERT (Continued from Page One.) The program was very gratifying to the audience and went far in proving the ability of the members. The first appearance of the chorus, accompanied by Mrs. J. Donald Meyers at the piano, found a pleasant blending of female voices in splendid harmony. The second appearance, with band accompaniment, enhanced the impression built up earlier in the program. These numbers made up the first group sung by the ladies, each one selected carefully with reference to both excellence and appeal. The two groups together, ending with the matchless "Lost Chord" by Sullivan, were made up of diversified selections that permitted a glowing exhibition of the chorus' wide range of possibilities. More than a column could be written on the various selections on the program but space forbids. The program, except encores, was as follows: Band 1. Overture to "Il Guarany" Gounod. 2. (a) "Angelus" from "Scenes Pictoresques," Massenet. (b) "Dear One" Fisher. 3. Excerpts from Suite "Peer Gynt" Grieg. (a) Aase's Death. (b) In the Hall of the Mountain King. 4. Extra number. Minuet, Paderewski. Chorus 1. (a) "By the Waters of Minnetonka" Lieurance. (b) "Sail a' Amour" Edgar. (c) "Oh, Didn't It Rain" Burleigh. Band 5. Scenes from the opera "Marta" Wallace featuring incidental tuba solo by Oscar Humphries. Chorus 1. (a) "From the Land of the Sky Blue Waters" Gaidman. (b) "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" Burleigh. (c) "The Lost Chord" Sullivan. Arranged by Louie. During the day, the various churches of La Grande staged musical programs in keeping with Music Week. BOXING CARD HERE TONIGHT (Continued from Page One.) ready to show Ford the time of his life. The special event is of interest for the reason that it is also a return affair. Toughey Myers of Pendleton and Mickey Fick of Reith, 110 pounders, will furnish the fireworks for this affair. These boys fought recently in Walla Walla and put up a real exhibition according to the reports from the Washington city. Bill Pidecek will referee the main events. EMPLOYMENT SURVEY TAKEN PORTLAND, Ore. (Special)—A total of 91,712 men were on April 23 employed in 1,525 logging camps and sawmills of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, according to a survey just completed by U. S. employment service headquarters and made public here today. The survey, which for the greater part is based on figures coming direct from the various logging and timber manufacturing companies, covers both the Douglas and fir and western pine regions. Sawmills in the fir districts of Oregon and Washington at present employ 42,128 men, as compared with 14,128 men employed in the pine mills east of the Cascades. Fir logging camps now employ 27,995 men, and in the pine camps 5,547 men are at work. Totals for both pine and fir districts show 24,855 loggers as compared with 57,257 workers in lumber mills.

American Workers Speed Up Because They Love Sports

BRITAIN (AP)—Dr. Technicus, professor in the Berlin Technical college, declared in European workers compete with American workmen in speed and intensity of labor. Based on his statements on observations made in the United States last year, the professor attributes the superiority of American workers to the American devotion to sports. Even when there is no time to exercise, he says, the American workers keep up a stiff pace, and this speed is general throughout America. American sports give men the disposition to "work with delight, buoyancy and rhythm."

Opponents of Liquor in Mexico Adopt American Propaganda

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Joining forces with the Mexican confederation of labor in its campaign against alcoholism, the federal department of health will aid the confederation's dry missionaries with a flood of literature depicting the evil consequences of associating with John Barleycorn, known in Mexico as John Palmer. Propaganda necessarily used in the United States and other foreign lands has been adapted for the requirements. The legal bureau of the department also is engaged in drafting projects for anti-liquor legislation, mainly of a restrictive, not prohibitive character.

Courts When Asked To Prohibit Woman Talking

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Woman's right to talk not only was upheld, but the generally admitted impossibility of restraining her from indulging in speech was legally recognized recently by Judge Walter Gates in superior court. Robert R. Stacy-Judd, a prominent architect, sought an injunction to restrain his wife from talking about him. After remarking that some of the things said had been "indeed a bit caustic," but he candidly admitted that he thought no court possessed sufficient power to stop a woman from talking.

Business "Man"

Prince Ethel Now a Farmer.

POTSDAM (AP)—Eust Froelich, second son of the ex-Empress William II, calls himself a farmer in the new city directory of Potsdam. He omits the long list of military and hereditary titles which the Hohenzollerns have thus far added to their names in the city and telephone directories. This designation of prince is part of his name under post-revolutionary German law, and not a title.

WOMEN LOSE PERSISTENTLY

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Women are persistent losers; they drop, mislay or walk off and leave purses and parcels with a frequency ten times as great as men, says Alfred T. Clothier, custodian of the lost and found department of the Los Angeles street, railway and student of the losing habits of mankind. Nine out of ten lost articles returned to their owners through his department turn out to have been lost by women. Clothier relates his theory is that women lose more than men because they have fewer pockets, but he admits he has not yet discovered why mothers will get off street cars with their babies and leave baby buggies behind. Men make more fuss over what they lose, however, than do women, according to records of the lost and found bureau. An outstanding case was the man who lost his false teeth and would not be consoled until he recalled that "if they don't fit the finder any better than they did me, I won't do him much good." Traveling bags and suit cases left on street cars frequently contain puzzling combinations of articles, Clothier says. One recently found belonging to a woman, contained two dainty silk undergarments, a long, sharp butcher knife and a pearl necklace. Another, the property of a man, held a pair of rubber boots with $4,750 in currency stuffed in the toes, a bottle of whiskey and a suit of athletic underwear. One of the most unpleasant finds reported was a box containing a live rattlesnake boasting 13 rattles. It was claimed by an Arizonian who said he had brought it here to be stuffed. Another parcel contained half a man's head. A student of anatomy was told to handle under his arm a bottle of whiskey and a suit of athletic underwear. "It's Absurd"

It is an "absurd, archaic, caveman's ralling which requires a woman's married name must appear on a passport, says Mrs. Herbert Little, former instructor of Journalism at the University of Wisconsin, who since her marriage has been known by her maiden name, Ruby Black. She asked the National Woman's Party at Washington to seek a change in the ruling after Secretary Kellogg allowed her a passport in the name of Ruby Black with a notation that she was the wife of Little.

POST OFFICE NOT ON LAND

DETROIT (AP)—The only floating postoffice in the world, the steamer C. F. Bellman Jr., again is in service on the Detroit river. Until the last freighter of the season passed through the river here, the small government craft will be in continuous operation, delivering "mail on the fly" 24 hours a day. Operating as an auxiliary to the Detroit postoffice, the "mail boat" as the service is known, has been in service since 1895. Prior to that time, the crews of lake freighters were obliged to wait until their vessels docked at destinations before receiving mail from home. Sometimes letters were delayed three or four months. Now letters are addressed aboard a certain steamer, and the Bellman delivers it. A small powerboat is part of the equipment of the mail boat. As the freighter comes up or down the river, this little craft darts out from its berth astern of the Bellman and draws up alongside the passing steamer. A line is tossed to the powerboat, which holds that until a bag of mail is tossed up and outlying mail returned. Then the powerboat casts off and returns to the Bellman ready for the next trip. The entire operation occupies but a few minutes and is accomplished without delaying the freighter. More than 2,000,000 pieces of mail matter to and from the freighters is handled by the mail boat during the navigation season. It is said that more vessels pass through the Detroit river than any other waterway in the world. During the peak of the navigation season an average of 100 vessels is recorded each 24 hours.

FRUIT SITUATION SERIOUS

SALISBURY, Ore.—The fruit situation in Marion county is the most serious for many years, according to R. N. Van Trump, county fruit inspector, who returned here after a survey of the orchard districts. Mr. Van Trump said the Italian prune crop would be far short of normal, a similar condition exists with relation to the Petite crop. On the lowlands the cherry crop was badly damaged, while in the higher elevations the crop will be short of previous years. Not more than a 15 per cent crop of Loganberries will be harvested. The raspberry and blackcap crops will not be 20 per cent of normal.

Geneva Conference On Arms Opens Today

GENEVA (By the Associated Press)—Traffic in arms cannot be considered merely as a commercial matter and escape international regulations, declared Count Henri Carton de Wiart, former Belgian Premier at the opening today of an international conference on the control of traffic in arms. Referring to the presence of an American delegation, Wiart said America's official participation has a new and important significance. "Her signature and ratification are indispensable for the success of our task." Artificial Forest Fire Staged. BEND, Ore.—More than 500 residents of Bend drove to Tamao creek to witness a demonstration "forest fire" staged by Boy Scouts and forest service employees in connection with the observance of American Forest week. The effect of the miniature forest fire was heightened by lines of red fire strung through the timber. The Campfire Girls and Boy Scouts held a program just before the "forest fire" was started. Traveling to see new things isn't as interesting as sitting still seeing the old ones change.

APPLE BLOOM IS UNIQUE

HOOD RIVER, Ore.—The most unique apple bloom ever seen here was brought to town by T. W. Berry of the west side. Springing from a cluster of nine normal blooms, the petals of which had already shed, the blossoms was four inches across. It had three layers of petals, while the average apple stem is only 1 1/2 inches. The jumbo bloom was picked from a Siberian crab tree. Four Indictments Returned. MARSHFIELD, Ore.—The Curry county grand jury returned four indictments yesterday, three for theft of automobile tires, the fourth for hunting out of season. Judge Kendall, holding the session, will receive the petition of Coos county residents asking an injunction against good roads May 12. Judge Kendall will not return from Curry county until the latter part of next week.
