CONCERT AT BAKER WAS A SUCCESS (Continued from Page One) A vocal solo, "Arditi," by Mrs. A. L. Richardson with the band accompaniment was very beautiful. The Monday Musical sextette, composed of Messdames Earl Stoddard, Lee Bouy, A. W. Nelson, J. M. Holmes, Lester Stoddard and Maxwell sang a very harmonious selection, "The Garden of Flowers" by Danna. The final suite on the program was a group of songs by the whole chorus with band accompaniment. These included "The Land of the Sky Blue Water," "Cadenza," "No Body Knows," "Burling," and "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan. The program closed with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the band.

BAKER, Ore. (Special)—Today's Morning Democrat says: "A well filled house welcomed the La Grande, amateur band, and Monday musical chorus to Baker last evening, when the combined organizations presented a program at the Baker theater under the auspices of the MacDonnell club of this city.

"La Grande has a band of which it may well be proud, and from the opening number to 'The Star Spangled Banner,' volumes of applause followed every effort of this brilliant group of musicians. The band, numbering 25 is directed by Andrew Lowry.

"The Monday musical chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Jessie A. Hoskins of Baker, gave many very pleasing numbers. It was largely through the efforts of Mrs. Hoskins that Baker was privileged to know the work of the musicians from Baker's sister city.

"The singing of 'The Garden of Flowers' was made the more lovely by the pastel costumes of the singers. This number was particularly delightful.

"Mrs. A. L. Richardson's singing of 'Arditi' was charming, and after receiving a tribute of flowers she gave 'Somewhere a Voice is Calling,' as an encore.

FEAR HARMFUL TO CHILDREN

CHICAGO (AP)—Parents, relatives and teachers by means of threats, unsuitable stories or through the contagion of their own fears, bring fear into the lives of at least 37 per cent of the children of America, the National Kindergarten and Elementary Kindergartens have determined from a questionnaire answered by 277 of the students.

Where fear was not attributed to the home, it was usually supplied by playmates and practical jokes or by too close contact with the forces of nature, according to the college, which blamed 51 per cent of the cases of fear on these sources. Eleven per cent were unable to recall the cause of their outstanding fear, and only a little over 1 per cent could remember no fear at all.

The list of fears included virtually everything that entered into the life of the child, with the general exception of members of his family. The first of dangers ranked first. Animals, insects, gnats, flies, punishment, burglars, false dreads, cannibals, teachers, parents and doctors were counted off one to others.

Less than 10 per cent of these fears could be considered as a protection against danger, and the evidence, "The remaining 90 per cent are more than children, they are a menace to the mental, physical and social development of the child. Their effect is not limited to childhood, for more than half of these relieve students admitted they never had been able to overcome their fears. Scarcely four per cent of the respondents, however, considered themselves as completely free from fear, which has been carefully explained or demonstrated to the child, do not have this indelible stain."

The questionnaire also asked for suggestions as to the prevention of fear and first on the list was the advice that the child should never be frightened, either in fun or in order to secure obedience; that adults keep their fears to themselves and stop using the child as a safety valve; that they learn to control the child by other means than threats or dreads, and that they keep the child from the fearful or horrible elements in stories, either in fiction or in real life.

STOCKMEN ARE OPTIMISTIC

WALLOWA, Ore. (Special)—Many feel that the stockraising industry has much brighter prospects than for a number of years, and that the extremely low prices for beef stock are nearing an end. The early spring here saved a large amount of feeding expense for stockmen, with the grass becoming well started on the ranges, much stock was turned out before April 1. This is the earliest range here in a number of years.

Eugene Gastin returned home the latter part of the week from Snake river where he has been for the past few months herding sheep for Leonard Johnson.

H. K. Shintaffer of Evans has been busy the past several days seeding grain on part of the J. H. Hunt ranch which he has rented. John McDonald has rented the corner Clyde Taylor farm east of town, now owned by Mrs. Margaret McDonald, and is preparing to commence plowing summer fallow there in a few days.

Roy Gastin moved his large gasoline tractor home from Dry creek recently. The engine did not operate satisfactorily last season, and Mr. Gastin expects to have it overhauled and put in first class working condition for threshing season.

Ed Bell came home from the Woods near Maxville the last of the week, he has been logging there for the past several months.

Willard Bell returned home recently from a several months trip to the coast.

A heavy frost struck this section during the past week. Many of the fruit trees were in full bloom and some fears are entertained regarding the probable damage done by the frost, however, no serious results have been reported as yet.

A number of farmers were delivering fat hogs in town the latter part of the week. While the prices have fallen off some during the past few weeks, the big price being paid here at this time ranges around $11 per hundred.

New Police College To Train Recruits From Other Cities

NEW YORK (AP)—A piece of detective work appropriately undertaken by the newly established Police Academy which Commissioner Enright has dedicated as the future West Point of the nation's blue-coats.

Last year police headquarters was arag over the mysterious and longed absence abroad of Inspector John J. Noonan, now the academy's first commandant. He had slipped away with no one knowing it, and the question was: Who was he after?

The question was never answered for it developed that the inspector's secret mission was merely to do some quiet and correspondingly discreet scouting the police world over, in order to make the present police academy the sum of the latest international ideas in police training.

Inspector Noonan, it has been explained, was sent overseas by Commissioner Enright with credentials to Scotland Yard and the police chiefs of Paris, Vienna, Berlin, Rome and other capitals. He was ordered to keep lips sealed, eyes and ears open, and saturate himself with the best in training facilities and methods to the end that the "West Point" dream might be realized.

Commissioner Enright announces that the academy will be open not only to New York police and police recruits, but also to those from other cities. A limited number will be accepted from outside New York who will be trained to serve as instructors at home.

The academy will have special departments devoted to training men as police clerks to do the highly specialized police paper work; to prepare traffic experts to meet the growing complexity of motor transportation problems; to teach the art of fingerprinting, ballistics measurements and other phases of criminal identification, and to the special training of officers and instructors.

The academy also will contain the first training department for policemen anywhere in the world. It will retain and enlarge the existing training schools here for recruits, detectives and mounted men.

The academy opened recently with an initial enrollment of 325. The course is for three months.

EGG PRICES HAVE CHANGED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Department of Agriculture experts in hunting down data for a statistical compilation of the price range on agricultural products during the past 100 years, have come across some astonishing exhibits of the low cost of foodstuffs in bygone days.

It is a matter of record that Caleb Hibebeck, a merchant of Perry county, Ohio, purchased from Hellen Majors, a farmer, 25 dozen eggs at three cents a dozen, and sold him two gallons of whiskey at 25 cents a gallon. But this happened in 1840.

The records further show that Hugh Manney, of Lake City, Mississippi, in 1848 sold 98 pounds of raw cotton at $1 cents a pound. In 1850 cotton in Minnesota sold for 89c a bushel, and wheat for 75 cents a bushel. In 1848 in Chester county, N. C., ham sold for 7c a pound, beef $1, ham sold for 7c a pound, $1 a cord.
