RELAX THOSE "JUMPY" NERVES

Only those who suffer with "nerves" can appreciate the agony and torture they endure. It seems as though rest and relaxation are forever denied them. To sit still is impossible. To sleep peacefully and restfully is out of the question.

No wonder many unfortunate people who suffer from nerve inflammation seek relief in bromides, narcotics and other dangerous, habit-forming drugs. But the nerves are only fooled for a short time. Back they come after the temporary effect wears off, throbbing, twitching and aching with a maddening intensity worse than ever.

The only way to obtain permanent relief is to heal the affected nerves, not merely deaden them. Kops Neuritis Tablets are compounded for this purpose. Harmless. They contain no bromides or narcotics. They go direct to the cause of the trouble. Endorsed by many leading physicians. Get a one-dollar package and start this effective treatment today. Your druggist will recommend them. Red Cross Drug Store will supply you. Mail orders filled.—Adv.

27 YEARS AGO

Daily Morning Observer, May 18, 1898.—The recent rains mean several thousand tons more of hay than if it had not occurred.

Mrs. Robert Lyle left last night to attend the G. A. R. encampment at The Dalles. She is a member of the W. R. C.

The Misses Willie and Carrie Lachner, of Baker City, who have been guests of Mrs. Frank Pike, returned home Tuesday morning.

The Elgin train was an hour late yesterday on account of loading 9 cars of stock for Maud McDonald. They were Wallowa cattle and intended for the Omaha market.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fayle, of Portland, are in the city guests of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Currey. Mr. Fayle is representing the firm of Fuller and Co., and Mrs. Fayle is accompanying him on his trip.

A. T. Hill arrived yesterday from McMinnville, Oregon. Mr. Hill will engage in the drug business in this city in partnership with A. V. Alden. Their place of business will be the Buzzini building, which was built especially for them.

On last Sunday, while riding a fractious horse at Ladd canyon, George Harmon was thrown to the ground sustaining a fracture of the left collar bone. Mr. Harmon who was otherwise severely bruised by the fall, was brought to town and Dr. Biggers reduced the fractured bone and administered to his wants professionally.

La Grande Theatres

"The Narrow Street" At Sherrys Last Time Tonight.

For those who like fun, witty and wholesome, I strongly recommend the Warner Bros. photoplay, "The Narrow Street," which is being shown at the Sherry theater, last showing tonight.

The picture has been translated to the screen by Julien Josephson from one of this year's best novels written by Edwin Bateman Morris, whose subtle blending of humor and mystery, generously flavored with a fascinating love story, has produced a most enjoyable photoplay.

"The Narrow Street" is one continuous thrill after the other, making you laugh and sympathize with Matt Moore and Dorothy Devore, who manage to get into the very embarrassing pass of being husband and wife in name, with a few extra twists thrown in.

His bachelor quarters rudely desecrated by a nameless girl, who frankly confesses she is hiding from the police, Siman Haldane is unwillingly forced into the questionable position of harboring a strange young woman, whom he soon learns to love with all the starved intensity of a solitary life. Unable to confess his love in view of the compromising situation, he helplessly aids and abets the temperamental Doris in her mysterious activities. The vivacious Doris is graphically portrayed by Dorothy Devore, whose comedy training has given her the knack of bringing out the ridiculous in any incident.

David Butler furnishes a good foil for Matt Moore, in his role of the smooth-tongued, beautifully dressed salesman, who tries to secure Doris for himself. Gertrude Short gives a clever interpretation of the stenographer, while Russell Simpson, George Fearce, Kate Toncray and others complete the cast.

Milton Sills Here Next Wednesday In New Drama.

Milton Sills, film hero, steps again out of the camera's eye onto the screen at the Arcade starting today when his latest First National drama "I Want My Man" opens for a run here.

In this latest appearance Sills is co-featured with Doris Kenyon and supported by a cast which includes Phyllis Haver, May Allison, Paul Nicholson, Kate Bruce and others.

Film fans will find an interesting contrast between Sills' notable role in "The Sea Hawk" and his characterization in "I Want My Man." The latter is that of a war-blinded soldier who returns cured after eight years in France to find this country steeped in a mania of pleasure chasing.

"I Want My Man" was adapted from the novel, "The Interpreter's House," by Struthers Burt. It was produced for First National under the supervision of Earl Hudson and was directed by Lambert Hillyer.

Charleston Exhibit Shows Many Unique Articles of Silver

CHARLESTON, S. C., (AP) — A collection of rare old silverware, comprising a number of priceless family heirlooms, has been engaging the attention of Charlestonians who are said to be interested normally in matters antique, especially when connected with their historic city.

Notable among the articles in the collection, lent by a number of old families, is a silver coffee urn said to have belonged to Oliver Cromwell. The urn, which is dated 1653, is now in the possession of the Pinckney family.

A handsome tankard of 1672, found among the ruins of John's Island after the Civil war, is another object of interest. It bears the coat-of-arms of the Wilson family. There is a Durham cow, purchased in London as a cream pitcher in 1691, and kept among the possessions of its owners for more than 200 years.

The collection contains a porringer of 1758, the work of Paul Revere, a renowned silversmith of his time, in addition to a butter boat, a tea caddy on which is embossed the figure of King Charles, and a trophy cup, the base of which is formed by three horse heads.

Among the more dignified pieces are a chalice of St. Thomas' parish of 1740, a silver service presented to one of the early bishops of the Episcopal church in South Carolina, an urn of 1762, upon which the national ode is inscribed, and handsome candlesticks belonging to an old family of the state.

Listed among the articles which may be classed as exceedingly rare in this day and time are a silver filigree bouquet holder used a century ago by a bride who was married in the Huguenot church, a candle snuffer and an egg boiler. There is also a punch dipper with an English coin fashioned in the bottom.

More elaborate is the tray of the George III period, bearing the Campbell coat - of - arms. Silver horns used more than a century ago to call the townspeople to fires are also to be found in the collection.

An authority on silverware declared, after viewing the collection, that Charleston has the handsomest group of antique pieces in the United States with the exception of New York City.

OAKRIDGE TO CELEBRATE

OAKRIDGE, Ore. — A body of the business men of Oakridge met last week and formed an organization to arrange for a Fourth of July celebration known as "the end of steel celebration." Tentative plans include a rodeo, horse races, passenger airplane, baseball games, boxing and wrestling matches.

Between 1000 and 2000 men from the railroad construction work and hundreds of tourists are expected.

Dr. W. L. Peate is president, R. F. Setzer, vice president, Charles C. Darnell treasurer and Charles H. Croner secretary of the new organization. Howard F. Farlow was employed as field manager.
