WORLD-WIDE FUSION IS HOPED FOR

range of capacity and genius which marks this nation for a prominent destiny. The American people have commended the respect of the world.

"It is not so many years since visitors from other quarters of the world were wont to contemplate our continent of races, origins, and interests, and shake their heads ambiguously. They feared that from such a melting pot of diverse elements we could never draw the best, the tempered metal that is the only substance for national character. Even among ourselves were many who listened with nervous concern to such forebodings. They were not quite sure whether we had created a nation with the soul of a nation. They wondered if perhaps we had merely brought together a large number of people in a large place.

Americanism Proven
"Had those prognostics been justified when the hour of trial came, it would have meant disaster to us and to the world. But instead of crumbling into a chaos of discordant elements, America proved the truly national unity. It demonstrated conclusively that there is a spiritual quality shared by all races and conditions of men, which in their universal heritage and common nature. In time of supreme trial why may we not hope that the same intrenchment will at length reach men and women wherever they are found on earth?"

President Coolidge praised the Scandinavian immigrants for their contribution to American life, but made no direct reference to present day immigration problems which prompted congress to enact the law designed to limit the flow of aliens from south Europe and encourage immigration from countries in the northern part of the continent.

Recalling that just one hundred years ago a group of 32 persons set out from Norway on the 45-ton ship Restauration as the first organized party of immigrants from that country, the president said that "Minnesota would not be Minnesota, the group of imperial northwestern states would not be what they are, but for the contribution that has been made to them by the Scandinavian countries."

During the period from 1815 to 1848, Mr. Coolidge asserted, immigration from northern and western Europe not only built the United States "into numbers, wealth and authority in the world, but had a tremendous reflex on Europe."

"But for American example and influence," he added, "the democratic movements of 1822 and 1848 in Europe might have been long postponed. The broadly democratic evolution which swept Europe so greatly in the latter half of the nineteenth century might have failed entirely."

month (By the Associated Press)—Secretary of State Kellogg, in a speech at the Norse-American Centennial celebration today, warned against tampering "with the foundation principles upon which representative democracy is built." The secretary declared the principles of the constitution are being assaulted by propagandists who advocate the overthrow of government and the substitution of class tyranny, and by a "considerable body of our citizens, who in the name of liberty and reforms are impatient of constitutional restrictions and by insidious approaches and attacks would destroy their guarantees of personal liberty."

Woodmen of America Headed for Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, (AP)—The national convention of the Modern Woodmen of America, held quarterly, will open here the week of June 21, continuing through the entire week, with approximately 1,200 delegates attending.

Many attractive features are planned, among them competitive drills by picked teams, with nine army officers acting as judges. The drill teams are the best of the organization's camps, and will come here after having stood the test of the preliminary meetings, more 15,000 of which have been held in preparation for the national event. "Synthetic Night" is expected to be the most colorful of the week's activities, and is to be held on the waters of Lake Michigan, fronting Juneau park, which forms a natural amphitheatre.

John J. Blaine, governor of Wisconsin, will be one of the principal speakers at the convention sessions which are to be held daily.
