Texas Embarks Upon A New Venture in State Education

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)—"The College-That-Is-to-Be," soon is to open its doors out here on the plains of west Texas. Science, the landscape is as level as a table and the vision as far as the human eye can see.

A state institution, with more than 2,000 acres and $1,000,000 to start, without a scholarship fence, but with "scholarship steps" without a Greek letter fraternity but with a burning desire to instill character and teach democracy, this is the ideal of the College-That-Is-to-Be, which is the name given the new Texas Technological college by its first president, Dr. P. W. Horn.

The college is being built to meet the demands of this vast section for a public institution of general higher learning. The legislature appropriated $1,000,000 and the citizens of Lubbock chipped in, at a low price, 2,000 acres of the plains to start it on its way. The first buildings are now about completed and the college expects to open its doors for freshmen and sophomores next September.

In a new country, and with a new school, Dr. Horn has set out to build what he believes is a brand of college. As a warning of what he expects to make it, he has issued what he calls some "Horn-heresies."

First of all he proposed to the board of directors that Greek letter fraternities be excluded, and the board promptly adopted the proposal. There is to be no hazing of freshmen at the new school. No one is to be summarily dismissed because of poor scholarship, but the school is going to attempt to adjust itself to the needs of the student and find a place for him, Dr. Horn said. The present system of dismissing about one-third of the freshman class and sending them home hopeless failures, is "indefensible and well-nigh criminal," he declared.

"Many Men," Etc.
The faculty is to be composed of "many men and womanly women, above pettiness, strife and jealousy, fitted with the ability to get along in the little world of the college and in the great work outside."

With the idea of adapting the buildings to their particular purpose and to the climate and historical background of the section, the old Spanish type was selected. On hazing, Dr. Horn said: "The real trouble is not that the freshman is paddled, but that he is paddled because he is a freshman."

Flying Air Pilots Talk To Base 110 Miles Away

CHICAGO (AP)—Telephone communication between airplane pilots flying 4,000 feet in the air and radio station W.G. was maintained clearly over a distance of 110 miles during the military show here recently. When the army flyers descended at Chanute field the reception was still strong, indicating that intermittent talking might have been continued over a greater distance.

The previous record for communication between a land station and an airplane by radio was 49 miles. Spectators at the show were listeners in during the tests, the radio station re-broadcasting the conversations. This was another feat said by radio engineers to have been successfully performed for the first time.

The army planes used a 50 watt master oscillator sending set, with three 50 watt tubes, an oscillator, modulator and speech amplifier. In addition to a 5 watt amplifier. The radio station used a neodymium receiving set while the army men used an army 5-tube super hydrotype for receiving. A two pound lead weight held down the antenna. Within the city limits the planes had a 50 foot wire over the side, which was extended to a 200 foot aerial as they got farther away.

The officer in the front seat of the airplane, by means of ear phones, could hear both conversations, the talking of his companion and the conversation from the land station.

FIREMAN, OFF DUTY, SAVES TWO FROM SUFFOCATION

CHICAGO (AP)—Fireman Olin Williamson, off duty, waiting for a suit at his tailor in the 12-story Morton building, Tuesday heard an alarm of fire from that building, and hurried through it on an inspection tour. He found the flames spreading from the seventh floor. On the top floor he found two women unconscious from smoke, and tucked one under each arm, and carried them to safety.

The men who inflict the punishment are really injured more than the freshman because the idea of class distinction is instilled into their minds even more strongly than into the minds of the freshmen.

"It is possible to have a college for American youths of such a nature that no clear-cut social lines will be drawn between the freshmen and the upper classes? Many college presidents say that it is not. At any rate, the College-That-Is-to-Be aspires to be a college of that particular type. It believes that the face of America is set against arbitrary class lines, and that the face of the American college should be set against them."

"It should be the policy of a college in a democracy not to build a fence around it in order to keep out folks who want to enter, but rather to build steps up to it in order that those may enter who desire to do so, and can profit by doing so."

THE QUALITY STORE

When the Highway Commission oils the stretch of the Old Oregon Trail between Lone Pine and Union we will have a taste of what motorists experienced this side of The Dalles some weeks ago.

Think of the thousands of dollars that Los Angeles will have to spend in advertising to counteract the impression given Mystic Shrine delegates from all over the nation when it rained during the convention last week! It's most unfortunate! And most "unusual!"

The Vacation Bible School parade yesterday was an impressive thing. It helped the city visualize the helpful influence that Bible training and supervised recreation can have on four hundred little tots whose future habits and ideals are now being established. There is no question about the value of that influence.

THINKING IS BAD BUSINESS.

In a poll of the United States Senate taken by The New York Times recently as to how its members felt on the Dawes plan to change Senate rules, Senator McNary is quoted as follows: "I don't care to discuss this Dawes business at this time. But I will say that I don't think it will get very far." If this is the complete and exact wording of the interview, Mr. McNary used one too many sentences in replying to The Times' query. He is at perfect liberty to refuse to discuss "this Dawes business" and he is equally free to think that it won't "get very far," but the senator made a mistake in expressing that thought. It smacks somewhat of ignorance and a senator, above all people, should guard against displays of ignorance. It's possible, of course, that Mr. Dawes won't "get very far" with his proposed changes in senate rules, but our knowledge of the way the vice president formerly handled his business affairs in Chicago, the A. E. F. purchasing bureau in France, the U. S. budget in Washington, and the re-organization of peace demands and German finances in Europe would tend to make us believe that the whole problem will be advanced a good bit farther than some of the members of the Senate may believe now. Dawes is in office for four years and will devote just about 48 months of that time to the job of getting more efficient rules at work in the Senate, if it takes that long. And those who know Dawes have a wholesome respect for his ability to accomplish things. This is one of the things he has set out to accomplish, and it must be remembered that the personnel of the Senate today may change somewhat by the time Mr. Dawes retires from office—some of the changes being influences no doubt by the energy and sincerity of the vice president. So Mr. McNary's prediction as to what will happen to the Dawes plan is a bit ill-timed. The support that Dawes has won from such men as Senators Pepper, Cummins, Capper, Underwood, Edge, and others is to be reckoned with, and though a majority against the proposed changes is now easily forecasted, time alone can tell whether they will remain outcast.
